Mr. Sorochuk did not appear in writing nor did he appear at the meeting, and it was moved and carried that the recommendation of the Pound Committee as referred to the Council on Sept 16th be confirmed, and that the investigation fee be assessed to Mr Sorochuk.

Mrs. Mary Lockhart's pound complaint was referred to the Council. The secretary-treasurer reported that he had notified Louis Holden of the recommendation of the Pound Committee and that he could appeal the recommendation in writing the office no later than Oct 14th, or that he could appear personally at the Council meeting.

Mr. Holden appealed the recommendation on Oct. 14th. However, the Council was of the opinion that the recommendation was just and fair, and it was moved and carried that the Pound Committee's recommendation be confirmed, and that the investigation fee be assessed to Mr. Holden.

Some discussion ensued in whether or not the County's own road equipment would be able to complete the construction program, and it was considered that this was not possible.

It was therefore moved and carried that Messrs. Gibson and Krupienicki contact Mr. Simmonds, the contractor on the Special Contingency Grant Road, and endeavour to get him to do the road construction work for them.

A letter from Flagstaff-Beaver Auxiliary Hospital and Nursing Home District No. 20, advising that Cr. Roddick's term of office on the board expires Oct. 31, 1965, was referred to the Council Cr. Roddick could be re-appointed for a further term of two years, or a new member could be appointed if the Council so desired.

Moved and carried that Cr. J. H. Roddick be re-appointed as a member of the Board of the Flagstaff - Beaver Auxiliary Hospital and Nursing Home District No. 20 for a further term of two years as from Nov. 1, 1965.

It was moved and carried at 1:30 p.m. that Council now adjourns, to re-convene at 10:00 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 19th.

RE CONVENED MEETING

The Council re - convened in regular meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 19th.

Special Contingency Road

A delegation, consisting of Messrs. Nick Laskosky, Lad Mielniczuk, Mike Sperling, Fred Tchir and Jim McLeod, interviewed the Council in regards to the Special Contingency Road south of Holden and the fact that the work on this road had been stopped for the year with a part of the road uncompleted to the N.E. corner of Sec. 19-49-16-W4th. Mr. Laskosky stated that the contractor had advised him that it would take some $4,000 to complete the road to the point mentioned, and he suggested that the County complete the road and be reimbursed by the Provincial Government next year. The secretary-treasurer stated that he had made this suggestion to E. Bellshemin Sr., district engineer, who had stated that this could not be done. It was pointed out that this particular portion of the road was dry at the present time but would, no doubt, be wet in the spring, so that the work could not be done until the season was well advanced, and this would result in the people using the road having to put up with detours and construction conditions for a considerable length of time. Mr. Laskosky stated that the people using the road were fed up with this situation and requested that the matter be referred to the proper authorities. It was also mentioned that it was intended to put a light coat of gravel over the unfinished portion of the road and that this gravel would be lost during construction next year.

It was moved and carried that the Department of Highways be requested to complete the road to the N.E. of 19-49-16-W4th

Viking School Building Committee

The Superintendent referred to the fact that John Allen, who had been the member from Viking on the School Committee, was not now on the Committee, and that someone should replace him on the Viking Building Committee.

Moved and carried that Cr. Johnston be appointed to the Viking Building Committee.

A letter from the department of water resources concerning the drainage problem in Sec. 13-49-18-W. 4th was referred to

Q. I've just been told that a bride property has about six months in which to write her thank-you notes for wedding gifts received Is this true?

Q. Is it necessary to reply to a wedding invitation, and if so, what is the correct form?

A. It is much nicer and in better taste to wrap them attractively.

Q. Should a man remove his hat while talking with a woman in the lobby of a hotel?

ALBERTA JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE YEAR

BULLETIN:

CHIP LAKE GIRL WINS SPECIAL AWARD

Doris Pollard of Chip Lake is too young to be named a Junior Citizen of the Year. She is only four years old. Yet, this tiny girl rescued her two brothers and baby sister when fire destroyed their home!

On December 22, 1964 Doris was in the house playing with her two little brothers. Mrs. Pollard had to accompany the veterinarian to the barn to look at some sick animals.

Suddenly there was a terrific bang — sparks from the stove were everywhere. Doris hurried her two young brothers outside — then she went back into the burning house and carried out her baby sister Sharon. Doris is like any other little girl of her age, but on that fateful day last December, she acted like a mature adult!

We congratulate Doris on winning this Special Award. Our thanks to Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors for their active co-operation in the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year program, sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies.

This is a Special Award announcement made in connection with the Junior Citizen of the Year program. Our special thanks to Ronald B. Smith, Editor of the Western Review and to Doris' nominator, Mrs. M. Bruner of Wildwood.

Frank Fane returned to Ottawa

Frank Fane, Progressive Conservative candidate for the Vegreville federal constituency, was re-elected to Parliament in Monday's election, with a considerable majority over the four other candidates running in the field.

All opponents lost their $200 deposit, as failing to gain 50% of the votes cast for Fane. They were Nick Kuzyk, Liberal; Metro Tranyn, Social Credit; Norman Flack, NDP; and Walter Markowecki, who ran on the Communist ticket

Voting was fairly brisk at the polls, as considerable interest has been aroused during the nomination of Fane as PC candidate Many were somewhat surprised at the poor showing of Liberal Nick Kuzyk, as he has been quite popular at meetings during the campaign

An eight-trailer Centennial Caravan, one of eight such caravans which will be touring Canada during the Centennial Year, 1967, will be stopping in Camrose from October 13th to 17th The caravan touring Alberta will be known as No 7 It will spend six months in this province, the Northwest Territories and the Yukon, bringing to residents the story of Canada from the earliest times up to the present

The caravan with its eight trailer units and tractors will be set up in a special pattern on the exhibit site in Camrose, which will be a portion of the Fairgrounds The location was checked out earlier this year with Centennial Committee Chairman George Meyer, with approval of the City Office

Seven of the trailers will contain a continuous story display, while the eighth will be a service unit There will be a central exterior area where an area will be set up for the presentation of local programs featuring folk singers and dancers, bands, orchestral groups, drama or pageant presentations, during its visit to each community. The Camrose Centennial Committee will be considering ways of adding local flavor to the caravan's visit here

Inside the trailers, many modern electronic and film techniques will be introduced to aid the telling of the story of Canada, and it is hoped that the viewers will enjoy an experience unlike any they have had before and emerge with a new awareness of their Canadian identity.

Carrot grows through ring

While gardening or building in Wainwright some years ago, the late Bob McKay apparently lost a gold ring. It was found around the middle of this carrot recently by the present residents of the Wainwright house, and was returned to Mrs. McKay who lives in Tofield. The ring has lost none of its sheen.

"....RODNEY, IF GRANDMA WANTS A SCREW-DRIVER IT'S HER PRIVILEGE...."

Feeling of kinship

People in this district must have felt a sense of identity with the millions from New York to Montreal who went without electric power for several hours Monday and Tuesday, for power shortages in this district are not entirely unknown. One of the worst in years was the disastrous storm last winter which interrupted power over a very wide area, in some districts for a week or more.

Yet it's hard to imagine even the havoc such an interruption would cause in densely populated metropolitan areas such as New York, where complete blackouts are almost unknown. Even such a complex item as traffic ground to a standstill as traffic controls were inoperative. Motorists were dependent on the gas in their cars as electrically operated pumps refused to deliver. Communications, cooking, merchandising . . . everything, almost, ground to a halt.

But the opportunities for break-ins and burglaries were wonderful, as alarm systems failed to operate, too. We can feel for them, here, but the problem is so different it's almost too hard to imagine.

Sure, it's worthwhile

Well, the election's over, and many people are wondering if it were all worthwhile, and if it proved anything.

Of course it was, and of course it did.

Even though there was never any clearly demonstrated necessity for the election in the first place, it served its purpose. It proved pretty conclusively there aren't enough Canadians who would support the Liberal party under Mr. Pearson's leadership . . . to return them with any more members than they had at dissolution. It proved pretty conclusively that John Diefenbaker is far from finished in his own party, as he was able to pick up more seats than he had held.

And it proved even more clearly that a growing number of voters have lost their feeling for either party, and are swinging to the NDP side. Whether they would actually vote for them to form a government or whether it was just a protest vote remains to be seen, but the fact remains that nationally two out of nine voters lent their support to the party of the left.

Sometimes history repeats itself, and apparently, sometimes it doesn't. When Diefenbaker a few years ago asked for a majority government after several hectic months in office in a minority position, the country gave him a majority the like of which may never be seen again. When Pearson asked for it, voters seemed almost deaf. Perhaps the circumstances differed tremendously in the two cases, but right now, it seems, the voters aren't at all averse to letting the politicians struggle it out on the floor of the house. Perhaps they feel they get better government that way, no matter how thwarting this may be to ministers or government leaders.

The test will come in seeing whether we have loyal and responsible opposition, or merely obstruction and politicking.

Damage at Holden

Holden, Alta.,
November 1

Editor, The Mercury:

Hallowe'en is over, but quite a number of boys decided to spend their Sunday, doing more damage, to the vacant house on my property. After breaking more windows they smashed down the back door with a grain auger.

This vandalism was reported to me by the person who saw them, and I have informed the police, and from now on the parents will be held responsible for any further damage

Some parents should follow the advice of Premier Manning, and take their misbehaved children out to the backshed and inflict a few slaps on their backsides to smarten them up

One wonders what is in store for such boys, who have no respect for elderly people Their future looks grim These boys are 12 and 14 years old, and should know better

Please, let me remind you that these boys go to church Maybe they have never heard, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you"

WHAT IS AUTUMN? To a hunting dog, it is a cool, crisp morning, waiting patiently by his master's side among the reeds of a pond, until a rifle shatters the silence, and then there is a job only he can do. It is the chilling waters as he runs to retrieve his master's prize, and the satisfaction of the feel of feathers under his teeth.

(Mrs. G. H. Taylor)

HOLDEN, Nov. 10.—On Saturday, Oct. 23rd, a party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kaluzny in honor of Mrs. Kaluzny's mother, Mrs. Tekla Sroka, who was celebrating her 80th birthday. Father Adams spoke a few appropriate words and wished her a happy birthday from the Parish, hoping she would have many more. ## Another busy year for Lions Club of Ryley

Ryley Lions Club started its fall activities with the regular dinner meeting September 9th. The club started its fourth year with 18 active members and one member at large.

The second dinner meeting was held on September 23rd when two students from Ryley High School, who had attended the United Nations Seminar in Banff last summer, were guests of the club. Miss Patricia Brown had been sponsored by the club and [redacted] had been sponsored by the Ryley Canadian Legion and the Ryley School Staff. The two students gave a very good report of the activities at the seminar and appeared to have gained some valuable knowledge as well as having had an enjoyable time.

The club, as in previous years, will take an active part in assisting different organizations by canvassing. A canvass for funds for the Red Cross Society was conducted during the month of October and canvassing for the CNIB will be conducted during the month of November. The annual sale of nuts will start during November and will continue through to Christmas. The club will, as in former years, sponsor the New Year's dance in Ryley.

A pool was operated during the World Series, netting the club $100.00. Of this, $80.00 was donated to the Pony-Peewee baseball club in Ryley to assist in purchasing uniforms.

Six new members joined the club in October, bringing the roster to 26 active members and one member at large. The member at large is Don Wray, former CNR agent at Ryley, now stationed at McBride, B.C.

Modern etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q When I receive an invitation to a certain social function, how do I determine whether to wear formal dress or not?

A If the invitation is engraved, it will usually state whether or not the affair is formal. If issued personally or by phone, the host or hostess should give this information. If nothing is said at all, and you are uncertain, by all means ask what you are to wear.

Q I've been told it's improper to breathe upon one's eyeglasses when cleaning them in public. True?

A. True. In fact, it's best to avoid cleaning the glasses at all in public — but when absolutely necessary, do it without the aid of your breath.

Q What are the "cocktail wines?"

A Chilled dry sherry or dry champagne is often served instead of cocktails. A chilled dry white wine, such as moselle, is preferred by some.

Q I have just received an invitation to a cocktail party on an informal card, and there is no "R.s.v.p." on the card. Should I reply anyway?

A. Under these conditions, it is not necessary to reply.

Q When men and women are seated alternately at a dinner table, is it proper to serve all the women first?

A This is neither proper nor practical. The guests should be served in regular sequence, whether man or woman.

Modern Etiquette

Q Is it necessary for a woman to rise from her chair when acknowledging an introduction?

A. While not considered necessary, nor generally expected—still I do like to see a woman rise when acknowledging an introduction, because it does indicate a more genuine pleasure over the meeting.

Q. When you MUST use your handkerchief at the dinner table, should you excuse yourself and turn your head to use the handkerchief without leaving the table?

A You turn your head slightly, use your handkerchief as quietly as possible—and it is not necessary to excuse yourself.

Q Is it ever permissible for the parents of a young man, who has just become engaged, to make the announcement?

A. No. Only the parents of the bride-elect are entitled to do this. If she has no parents, then her nearest relative has the privilege.

Q. When writing a note to decline an invitation received in the mail, should one make it formal?

A This depends altogether upon the nature of the invitation itself. If written formally (in the third person), then your reply is written in the same style. If written informally, you reply in the same vein.

Solve -a- crime ...

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

You hurry to the apartment that has been shared by the two young men, Roger Scott and Thomas Byers. At about 6 15 p.m the distressed-looking Roger Scott and the apartment building manager meet you at the young man's door. You enter and immediately see the body of Thomas Byers lying on the floor of the sitting room, a bullet hole in his right temple and a gun lying on the floor near his outstretched hand.

The police doctor bustles into the room at this moment, makes a thorough examination, and then pronounces that the man has been dead for at least two hours. You then turn to young Scott.

"Tom was always a fine roommate", he says. "Always fair about sharing expenses, and such. But he did have a violent, almost uncontrollable temper . . . had a way of flaring up over the most trivial matters. Earlier this afternoon . . . I think about two o'clock . . . he went into one of his tantrums because he noticed that I had borrowed one of his ties. We exchanged a few words . . . then I left him here to cool off I went to the Midtown Cocktail Lounge, had a couple of drinks, then left there at about 3:30 and took in a movie. I came back here just a few minutes before six o'clock and found Tom . . . lying there . . . dead!"

You point to the dark blood stain on the right cuff of Scott's white shirt. "Did you touch the body?"

"Oh, yes . . . I did", he admits "I wanted to see if possibly he was still alive. I felt his heart, and I guess my sleeve must have brushed against some of the blood on the side of his head".

"Whose gun is that?"

"It's mine . . . I have a license. Tom, of course, knew I kept it in my dresser drawer . . . under my shirts".

You gaze reflectively at him for several long minutes, then say, "I'm afraid you'll have to come to headquarters with me I'm somewhat dubious about some of the testimony you have given me".

Why are you dubious?

SOLUTION

According to Roger Scott's story, he found Tom Byers dead at about six o'clock and had accidentally acquired the bloodstain on his shirt cuff while examining the body at that time. But the doctor has told you that Tom Byers has been dead for at least two hours, and in that time the blood would have congealed and would not have stained Scott's shirt cuff.

This is an Alberta Oilfield?

Can you find the oilwell? It is there, even though it isn't obvious, because this land has been reclaimed for agricultural purposes. While the surface was being used for mineral operations, the Surface Reclamation Council, a branch of the Alberta Department of Mines and Minerals, administered maintenance-of-land regulations and, when operations ceased, established standards for the reclamation of the surface. The surface of all lands used for drilling, mining, quarrying and pipe-lining must be reclaimed to save Alberta's land for future generations.

Since 1947 Alberta has experienced tremendous development of its oil and gas resources. Through policies established by the Legislature and administered by the Department of Mines and Minerals these resources have been developed in an orderly manner, for the greatest public good, netting Alberta 1,825 millions of dollars.

All 11 children home to mark Campbell anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Campbell who have resided in the Round Hill district all their married life, celebrated their golden wedding on August 22nd, 1965, with an open house reception in the Round Hill School Auditorium. Five hundred guests from Barrie, Ont., Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Grande Prairie, and many other district points gathered to extend their best wishes to the honored couple.

Mrs. Campbell, the former Agnes Law, came to Alberta from the United States with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Law, in 1902.

Mr. Campbell came to the Round Hill district with his parents in 1906 from Ontario. They were married on October 13th, 1915, in the McDougall United Church, Edmonton, with Rev. Armstrong officiating.

ALL CHILDREN HOME

To this union were born three daughters and nine sons, 37 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Eleven surviving children were present for the occasion, all seated at the head table with their parents. They are: Albert of Grande Prairie, William of Vancouver, Lester of Edmonton, Margaret (Pike) of Camrose, Donald Jr. and George of Ryley, Shirley (Stenarud) of Holden, and Doreen (Haugen), Thomas, Robert and Stewart of Round Hill.

The bride and groom of 50 years ago received their guests in the gymnasium which was decorated with gold and white streamers and bells, enhanced with many floral bouquets, some of them being gifts from relatives and friends.

The lovely anniversary cake was baked by the three daughters and beautifully decorated by Mrs. Mabel Fergstad, Mrs. Ken Olson and Mrs. Ken Johnson were in charge of the guest book.

The short program was very capably emcee'd by Fred Gotheridge. It consisted of two solos by Valerie Johnson, song by six granddaughters, recitation by Colleen Stenarud, Highland dance by Barbara McCalder, solo by Mrs. Herman Lawson, duet by Mrs. Leonard Stauffer and Mrs. H. Lawson, and some musical selections by Herman, Leonard and Wayne Lawson.

Henry Quail proposed the toast to which Mr. Campbell capably replied.

Gifts from the grandchildren were a large bouquet of flowers and a gold enscrolled chrome mirror presented by Linda Campbell. The great-grandchildren presented a corsage and butonnaire. # Pensions and politics

OTTAWA. — There is at least one good thing about federal elections — they give Canada's older folk more attention and more benefits than they're ever apt to get any other time.

The election just concluded was certainly no exception.

Pension promises fell thick and ripe from the lips of every party leader, in spite of the expectation that the new Canada Pension Plan would take this matter out of politics for all time to come.

At least, that's what the Liberals had expected.

Back in 1963 when Judy LaMarsh introduced the first, feeble version of the Canada Pension Plan, she remarked that no longer would old age pensions be a political football.

In the same speech, however, she was so bitterly partisan, that she practically assured that pensions would continue to be a political football.

NO END IN SIGHT

The path towards the Canada Pension Plan was rocky, and beset with provincial pitfalls. But eventually it was traversed, and the contributory plan to assure all older Canadians a reasonable security will go into effect in January.

What financed the Liberals, was that.

But they reckoned without the other parties' interest in pensions for the two and a half million Canadians who are now 65 who get no special benefit from the Canada Pension Plan.

These people instead benefit only from the flat-rate old age pension of $75 a month, payable next year at age 69, and by 1970, at age 65.

It was this flat rate pension, rather than the Canada Pension Plan, which became the election issue.

HISTORY ALL OVER

There was considerable irony in the whole situation. History seemed to be repeating itself. There were the Liberals confident that the Canada Pension Plan was a wonderful achievement, as it was. Suddenly they were surprised and hurt when the Conservatives, the New Democrats, and the Socreds turned on the heat over the flat rate plan.

Each of these parties offered to increase the flat rate pension from $75 to $100 a month. They advertised it and promoted it all over the country with good effects.

It began to look like 1957, when John Diefenbaker blasted the St. Laurent Government for its measly increase of $6 in the old age pension.

"The six-buck boys", he called them, and went on to win the election, helped it must be confessed, by a great many other factors of the time.

MEANEST TEST

Jolted into action, Mr. Pearson quickly began an exposition of the Canada Assistance Plan. Beforehand, he had merely mentioned this program which is being worked out with the provinces to provide security for old people, the sick, and the disabled. He outlined the manner in which older people who needed it, could get pensions of up to $135 a month under the Canada Assistance Plan.

John Diefenbaker pounced on this. Older people who needed, he said, meant a means test, and that was "The meanest test of all".

Those pensions, he pointed out, would not be paid to everyone on application, but only to those who needed them. Those who didn't need the extra money would get only the flat rate of pension of $75 a month.

LOST GROUND LOST FOREVER

He, however, proposed to give $100 a month to everyone, regardless of need.

The Liberals were caught on the pension issue, just as they were in 1957, and were never able to regain ground on this particular front.

It was an old, old pension story. The first federal and universal old age pension was paid in January, 1952. It was the princely sum of $40 a month, payable at age 70. There was an election in 1953. The Liberals won.

Just before the 1957 election, the ageing St. Laurent Government thought it advisable to make an increase to $46. The six-buck increase was used with devastating effect by Mr. Diefenbaker in the subsequent campaign.

When the Conservatives came to power, they added a $9 increase, in November 1957, to make the pension $55 a month. Then just before the 1962 election they increased it again to $65 a month.

UP AND AGAIN UP

In October, 1963, the new Liberal Government under pressure from the majority opposition, increased the pension to $75. Then the Liberals announced a plan to pay the pension to everyone at age 65, gradually reducing the age from 70 over a five - year period.

Now the pressure is on for an increase to $100, payable eventually to everyone at age 65. If this is done, by 1970, the cost of the old age pension will be $3,600,000,000 a year.

Only the Conservatives have offered an idea about where this sum of money should come from. Mr. Diefenbaker says it should come from the Canada Pension Fund. But he ignores the fact that Quebec has its own funds, and that the other provinces, by law, will control the Canada Pension Fund.

His plan, in fact, could be carried out only by amending the Canada Pension Plan, which would take two years and require the consent of all nine provinces.

But in the great pension auction, difficulties of achievement never deterred any politician. He just makes the promise. The experts will have to carry it out.

NOTICE

BRUCELLOSIS VACCINATION

The COUNTY OF BEAVER

The County of Beaver #9 will be under the Federal Brucellosis Control Area Regulations this fall. Restricted Area Regulations do not apply whereby all heifer calves must be vaccinated within the proper age group.

Compulsory vaccination over the past fifteen years has lessened the incidence of brucellosis to a point where Federal Testing could be carried out with a minimum of reactors.

The Agricultural Service Board is anxious to co-operate with cattle owners who wish to continue vaccinating for Brucellosis and will carry on the Fall vaccinating program by notifying farmers when the veterinarian will call.

The County will be divided into six or seven districts and one organizer will do the notifying in each district. Dr. Bidstrup of Viking will do the vaccinating for the entire County.

Space does not permit an outline of Federal and Provincial regulations regarding vaccinating in a Federal Control Area where cattle are to be sold locally and for export.

Vaccinating fees will remain the same as in the past.

No second calls will be made and farmers are expected to have their calves confined and separated before the veterinarian calls.

Cattle men are urged to take advantage of organized vaccinating in order to protect their markets and assist in the Federal Control Program.

We expect to get the Voluntary Program under way in four or five days time.

League plans carol festival

With the approach of the Christmas season, most choirs have begun preparation of their Christmas music, and as in past years, the Community League is sponsoring a Christmas Carol Festival, on December 15th.

A massed choir will again contribute its usual fine music to the festival, this year under the direction of Miss Glenda Patterson, A.Mus., B.Mus. All choirs, as well as interested individuals are invited to take part. Rehearsals will be held Nov. 25, Dec. 2, 9 and 14, at 8:00 p.m., in the United Church basement.

Along with the joy, satisfaction and spiritual uplift which comes from singing fine music well, choirs will benefit from the knowledge and experience gained by working with a well-qualified director, and it is hoped everyone will take advantage of this opportunity offered by the Community League.

Any choirs which would like to contribute to the festival, and have not been contacted, please get in touch with G. McFadzean.

Enthusiasm rife for mixed curling

A general meeting of the Tofield Curling Club was held in the curling rink Saturday with a good attendance of members. It was decided that curlers could pick their own rinks this year, both in the men's curling and the mixed curling.

There seemed to be high enthusiasm for mixed curling. Rinks are welcomed from adjoining areas; fees are $15 per year, with one game a week.

Curling will start in the next week or so, and all prospective members in both the men's and mixed clubs should contact any member of the executive if they wish to play.

Afternoon curling meeting planned

The curling season is here again, the afternoon curling club is again preparing to get in full swing. The annual meeting of the club is planned for this Saturday at the curling rink.

The regular routine operation for the coming season will be discussed. Election of officers will be held, and the treasurer's report given. All those who wish to curl in the afternoon are urged to attend this meeting.

New executive conducts first 4-H meeting

The first regular meeting of the Ryley 4-H Beef Club was held on November 4th, at the home of Mr Munkedal. The new executive took their offices at this meeting. They are: Gary Weins, president; Darryl Lyons, vice-president; James Panisc, secretary; Gary Kropelnicki, treasurer. The adult leader is Peter Munkedal and his assistants are William Maaren and Bob Hammer.

Since the calf weigh-in was on October 30, at the Lyon's Ranch, it was felt that the roll call be answered by giving the weight and sex of their calf. Thirty-two of the 36 members were present at the meeting.

Mr. Moore of Tofield gave a very interesting talk on "Care and Feeding of Club Calves", and Barry Seniuk told the club of his experiences at Club Week in Olds.

The meeting adjourned, and Mrs. Munkedal served lunch to the members and adults who attended the meeting.

Parents, teachers meet Friday

On Friday, Nov. 12, the first Parent teacher Day of this year was held. The day was very successful, with eighty-six per cent of the parents attending. For those parents who were unable to attend, they may contact their children's teachers for an appointment at their convenience.

Two basketball games will be played in Tofield this week. Thursday night the High School boys will play the boys from the Holy Redeemer College. Then, Friday night the High School boys and girls will play two teams which will be brought from Edmonton by Harold Ferguson and Marian Hardy.

The mixed afternoon curling will begin at the end of the month.

100 years old

For many years she was a resident of the Tofield-Ryley area, moving here from Nebraska with her husband and family in 1911 to a farm near Dodds, now occupied by the Maynard Stauffer family. Her husband passed away in 1913, and she has made her home with her son and daughter, Joe and Lydia, since that time. She moved to Duchess about 20 years ago. She has been an invalid since suffering a broken hip several years ago. Prior to that, she had been a very active person. At the gathering at Duchess, several people recalled examples of how very agile she was even in her 60's and 70's. For some years it had been her ambition to live to be 100.

"BUT I DON'T SMOKE"

By George!

At long last I have driven over the portion of Highway 36 between the towns of Taber and Hanna This is a part of Alberta I had never seen had wanted to see for some time, but the opportunity had not presented itself until the past weekend when I paid a visit to a couple of publishers in that neck of the woods.

The highway, when completed, will be a dandy link between the part of the province in which we live and the southeasterly portion The road is straight north and south over most of the route The portion I travelled passes through no towns, the main reason being that there are very few towns to pass through The road touches only the outskirts of Taber, Vauxhall and Duchess, and is about six miles from Brooks and Hanna.

Only a portion of the south part is paved, and strangely enough I was most pleased to find this out on my return trip Sunday, for the snow was falling fast in the south country, and packing onto the pavement to make it icy and hazardous. The gravelled portion presented no problem at all in this regard. A traveller on the Trans-Canada Highway between Brooks and Calgary last Sunday said traffic was moving very slowly due to ice. This concludes the report from the "Sunny South"!

The snow was getting quite deep, but about 10 miles south of Stettler I drove out of it completely From Big Valley to Camrose there wasn't a flake.

And I'd be willing to bet that the snow in Southern Alberta is twice or three times as deep right now as here Our weather may be a little colder at times through the winter but one thing is sure—at least it's a little more stable than what the Southerners of this province endure

Protect the public

British Columbia's provincial government deserves warm approval for its stiff attitude towards the gas and oil company workers who are striking for higher pay.

Wisely the government stayed out of the mess until the unions threatened a complete tie-up of the province's petroleum industry, and several affiliated unions promised sympathetic support and co-operation. Faced with what would have been the throttling of the entire economy, the government was forced to act on behalf of all the people, and ordered a change in policy.

The fact that labor unions can so completely disregard the essential needs of the public destroys a great deal of the confidence people would otherwise have in them. Even in a strong labor province such as B.C., there has been a great deal of criticism over this complete indifference to the public weal

Q. Upon being introduced for the second time to Miss Jones, is it all right to say, "I already know Miss Jones"?

A. This sounds a little abrupt, almost as though it were too much trouble to make a second acknowledgement. I think it would sound much better to say, "I have already had the pleasure of meeting Miss Jones".

BOWLING WITH THE STARS

by Pat Patterson AMF Staff of Champions

Wearing Apparel

Before you can get into the actual mechanics of bowling, there are some prerequisites which are necessary to your game. The first concerns wearing apparel.

Bowling does not require special wearing apparel as do other sports. However, the game can be much more enjoyable if your clothing is comfortable, and permits the necessary freedom of motion.

Men seldom have much of a problem in their wearing apparel. Their trousers are usually conducive to freedom of leg movement, and as long as their shirts do not bind in the shoulder and arm area, they are considered "action free".

Women, however, are more apt to violate the rules of wearing apparel for bowling and should be more selective in choosing proper attire. Too often the novice will attempt to bowl in either too tight a skirt, or too full, i.e., a ballerina type. The ladies should try to outfit themselves with a flared or semi-flared skirt which will allow a full stride and ample leg movement.

The woman's blouse should have a capped or short sleeve with plenty of room in the back to allow for natural arm swing, even above the eye level.

Service and wreath-laying honors dead of two wars

(M. K. Westmancoat)

RYLEY — The Ryley Canadian Legion Branch No 102 held services on Remembrance Day at 11 a.m. There was a short service at the cenotaph; Lorne Booth was the bugler, and sounded "The Last Post" and "Reveille" as the flag was lowered and raised on the flag pole, and the color party dipped and raised their colors. Legion colors were carried by Garnet Burnstad and Don Campbell, and the Ladies' Auxiliary colors by Mrs. Julia Anderson and Mrs. Barbara Harback

Wreaths were laid by Elmer Anderson in memory of the first war dead and by Harold Vergette for the second war. Prayers were said by Pastor Stanley Rude Then the Legion and Auxiliary members paraded with the color party to the Community Hall for the Canadian Legion service conducted by Pastor Rude.

After the service, Legion members and their wives and families enjoyed a hot turkey dinner in the Legion Hall, where places were laid for approximatly 125 The Auxiliary Ladies were in charge of arrangements

At the end of the dinner, the draw was made for the auxiliary raffle, and little Susan Fisk was declared the winner of the nice electric mixer and bowl with stand. The proceeds of this raffle will be turned over to the Canadian Legion Scholarship Fund for veterans' children.

Thank You

The results of the November 8th election in the Vegreville Constituency make me extremely proud and very humble.

Proud, because I have been re-elected to serve this outstanding constituency for a fourth consecutive term.

Humble, because I realize that without the help and confidence of so many thousands of my friends this great victory would not have been possible.

You have given me, I believe, the highest percentage majority vote in all Canada.

I pledge myself to give you the same untiring, dedicated service that I have always given as your Member of Parliament.

Again on behalf of my leader, the Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker, the Progressive Conservative Party and the Vegreville Federal Progressive Conservative Association, and, of course, myself, I say thank you from the bottom of my heart to all those who in any way contributed to my re-election.

—Frank Fane.

Modern Etiquette

Q. Is it all right to ask one's hostess for an extra dish or plate, when one's own service plate is not large enough to accommodate the food?
A. Better not. By so doing, you would in effect be criticizing your hostess' service. It would be much more tactful to cut down the portions of each food to the size of your plate.

Q When a man meets a woman on the street and walks with her, and she is carrying several packages, should he offer to carry them for her?
A. Only if the packages seem heavy, or if she is loaded down with a number of them. Otherwise, it is not necessary.

Q. Is it correct to write a note wishing a girl happiness after you have read the announcement of her engagement in the newspaper?
A. A note of good wishes is ALWAYS in good taste.

Q Would it be proper for me, the bridegroom-elect, to be present at a shower that is being given for my fiancee?
A. Since these are usually all-female parties, it would hardly be in good taste for you to attend. It would, however, be all right for you to put in an appearance towards the end of the party to help your fiancee home with her gifts.

Q. Is it in good taste to use correspondence cards?
A. For the short, informal type of notes, these cards are very popular and in good taste — for both men and women. However, they should be used only for strictly informal correspondence.

Q If, after meeting and talking with a business acquaintance of my husband, he says, "It's been a pleasure to meet you", what can I say?
A. Just "thank you", accompanied by a smile, is enough.

Q Should an usher at a church wedding offer his arm to every woman he escorts down the aisle, whether he knows her or not?
A. Certainly.

Q. I have on occasion noticed some women wearing rings over their gloved fingers. Is this correct?
A. Indeed not.

CARS CAN KILL. Traffic accidents take a heavy toll of lives every year on Canada's highways, but some people believe air pollution from exhausts on cars is even deadlier. Pressure is now being placed on the auto industries to produce "cleaner" exhausts, and it is hoped exhaust controls will be wide-spread by 1968.

Ross Creek district news briefs

(Iris Bliss)

Sympathy of the district goes out to the Van Buskirk families on the passing of their mother, Mrs. Ada Van Buskirk.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hadburg were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Cleary.

Ernie and Margaret Vickery and Mildred MacKellar, all of Edmonton, were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Howard and Nell Malcolm, after which they visited with Ivan and Florence Malcolm and family.

Graham and Elma Sauder and son, Craig, spent a weekend visiting with relatives at Grande Prairie.

HERE FROM B.C.

Donald and Gladys Van Buskirk of Prince George, B.C., have spent two weeks visiting with relatives and friends. Gladys's sister, Mrs Mary Ferrel entertained relatives at a supper held in her home last Thursday evening in honor of Donald and Gladys.

Joe and Verna Sadowski and Lester and Wilma Osborne were Sunday afternoon guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Ford.

Mrs. Van Buskirk passes Nov. 11

(Mrs. Ellen Bates)

LAKESHORE - McKENZIE — Sympathy of the district goes to the members of the late Bob Van Buskirk family on the death of their mother, Mrs. Ada Van Buskirk, and to all other relatives. Mrs. Van Buskirk was the widow of the late Bob Van Buskirk and former old-time resident of the Ross Creek district. She passed away on Thursday, Nov. 11th, in the Tofield hospital after having suffered a stroke a short time before.

B of M makes awards to rural farm leaders

A competitive $100,000 awards program to develop leaders in farming communities all across the country was announced this week by Horace Seller, manager of the Tofield branch, Bank of Montreal.

The program, the B of M's Canada Centennial Farm Leadership Awards, is open to any man or woman engaged in full-time farming.

There will be 50 awards of $2,000 each, half of them in Western Canada. Their purpose, in the words of G. Arnold Hart, president of the bank, is "to encourage and expand leadership qualities in people in rural areas to enable them to meet the problems arising from growing technological and scientific advances in agriculture and vastly changed economic conditions".

Women are encouraged to apply, because of the important part they play in rural life. As well, owners, tenants, relatives or employees can apply, irrespective of education or age. The only conditions are full-time employment in agriculture.

Award winners will be selected on the basis of their past record in community activity, recommendations of organizations they have worked in, and the value and feasibility of the projects they have chosen themselves to improve their personal contribution to their communities.

Application forms, naturally, can be obtained from either of bank's branches. In looking at details of the plan, Mr. Seller told The Mercury "The aim is not to produce better farmers, so much as it is to produce better citizens, who can assume leadership roles in developing their own communities".

Another Jones film is coming to Tofield soon

Shortly, Tofield area residents will have the opportunity of seeing one of the most unusual and complete films ever produced on the colorful wildlife of the Canadian Rockies. Six years in the making "Canada's Mountain Wilderness" was filmed by well known Edmonton naturalist-photographer, Edward T. Jones, whose television wildlife films are known by most Canadians. As a lecturer for the National Audubon Society of New York, his wildlife film programs are presented in some 234 cities throughout United States and Canada. Also as one of the founders of the Alberta Wildlife Foundation, a non profit organization dedicated to the conservation of our natural resources, he has given to many thousands of western Canadians

The film is a product of six seasons of filming in the Canadian Rockies, depicting not only the magnificent scenery, but concentrating on the fascinating wildlife of the region. Some of the highlights of the all color film include face close-ups of mountain goat, sheep, elk, moose and bear, rainbow trout six to eight pounds in weight spawning in the crystal clear mountain lakes, and fascinating birds rarely filmed.

Caused as family entertainment, this is one film no Canadian can afford to miss. "Canada's Mountain Wilderness" is coming to Tofield later in November. More details will be carried in The Mercury Advertising columns next week.

Another Norway rat found in Edmonton

Evidence of more rats in Edmonton was found last week.

Dr. G. H. Ball, city medical health officer, reported that a large black rat was found dead in a garage near the southside Canadian Pacific Railway yards.

"This is the fourth or fifth Norway Rat discovered in Edmonton in the past two or three weeks. We don't know how serious the invasion is, but we ask Edmontonians to continue to keep a sharp lookout for them", Dr. Ball said.

BREED RAPIDLY

Dr. Ball urges constant vigilance. Two rats could mean 50 or 100 more soon because "only two or three within a short time", he said.

The medical health officer added that two and possibly three of the rats were discovered alive in the city and were killed. One such rat was run over by a truck and left dead on the street. At least two more were killed by city residents and their presence reported to the city health department

Norway rats, says Dr. Ball, could be black, brown or grey. The most important feature in identifying the rats is its long, hairless brown tail.

Senior citizens in the Turner Valley district are grateful for the foresight and concern of a group of enterprising teenagers from this southern Alberta community.

The Oilfield Teen Club began its "meals-on-wheels" project last Christmas to give aged and infirm citizens a good Christmas dinner. That was just a start. Hot, nutritious meals are now supplied regularly.

The Oilfield Teen Club has been active in many other ways. It has adopted a Korean boy through the Foster Parents Plan, worked for the Cosmopolitan Club, furnished a room in the Turner Valley hospital and sponsored social and educational activities. One member recently won three University scholarships, including a national award by the Canadian Legion.

We congratulate the Oilfield Teen Club—this year's Group Award Winner. Our thanks to Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors for their active co-operation in the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year program, sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies.

37 million acres give Albertans room to grow

Over half the land area of Alberta is public land, protected and developed by the Department of Lands and Forests. Most of this public land has been set aside for forestry: to protect the watershed, to ensure a sustained yield of timber and to provide recreational facilities. From time to time, protected land is made available for agricultural use, particularly in the Peace River district where large tracts of land are undergoing homestead development.

Lands are also made available for private development through public auction and agricultural farm sales, cultivation leases, grazing leases and special permits.

Alberta has all the requirements for tremendous growth and 37 million acres of room in which to carry out that growth in an orderly manner.

... The last chance

"In building the government the lines of least resistance were not followed. A dozen men who deemed themselves sure of cabinet rank found themselves overlooked; five of fifteen portfolios went to men imported from provincial arenas without Dominion parliamentary experience. Laurier knew the kind of government he wanted and he provided himself with such a government by the direct method of getting the colleagues he desired wherever he could find them." (Laurier: "A Study in Canadian Politics," by John W. Dafoe).

Looking back, it is easy to see how we slipped into our present mess. Reverse what Laurier did in 1896 and we have what Pearson did in 1963. Now, miraculously, he has a second chance. In 1963 the lines of least resistance were followed. A dozen men who deemed themselves of cabinet rank were not overlooked. There was no search for the right kind of colleagues whever they could be found. Instead we got, with some notable exceptions, not a cabinet but a political hodge-podge, and left in charge of the practical side men who were discredited then and are more discredited now. From the beginning the guide lines were old loyalties and past favors.

Mr. Chevrier became the adviser on Quebec, a disaster; Mr. Walter Gordon, a political dilettante, Minister of Finance, with predictable results; Miss Judy LaMarsh, who had proved her lack of judgment by participating in the public charade of the Truth Squad, became Health Minister. Jobs were found for Mr. Pickersgill, who has for years done duty as an outport Machiavelli, and for Mr. Benidickson. Mr. Dupuis was appointed against advice. A Guy Rouleau could sit in the Prime Minister's office.

Quebec, after Mr. Chevrier departed for London, was handed over to Mr. Favreau and Mr. Lamontagne, and remained in their charge when it was amply clear that neither was competent nor, indeed, determined enough to do the job. Both survive today as members of the cabinet.

All this time there sat in the House of Commons young, able men and women. Miss Pauline Jewett is no longer there. She may well have been beaten because she was never given the kind of political recognition to which she was entitled. Mr. Turner was left in the twilight of a second-class department. Mr. Mackasey (Verdun), Jean-Luc Pepin (Drummond-Arthabaska), Joseph Chretien (St. Maurice-Lafleche), Richard Cashin (St. John's West), John Stewart (Antigonish-Guysborough), defeated Monday, and others, waited unrecognized or with minor recognition.

Mr Pearson, it is said, will never change. His qualities, we are told, make him a success in formulating policy. He lacks the qualities for success as a politician. This may be so. In that case there is little hope for us. But Mr. Pearson is also a man of great intelligence who can respond to events. He has been given another chance. He can now, if he wills it, clean out the incompetent and the discredited from his cabinet and from among his advisers, and start afresh; he does this or he will take the Liberal party down with him to annihilation. He will not always have Mr. Diefenbaker to keep him in office.

—THE MONTREAL STAR.

Winter housecleaning

Housecleaning time usually comes in the spring or fall, but for Lester Pearson it looks as though the time will be in the next two or three weeks. While he is cagily waiting for the official returns from the election on December 8, he can gain time to shuffle and reshuffle the various players in front of him, trying to line them up in the strongest positions possible for the next term in Parliament.

Mr. Pearson has the opportunity to make big yards politically if he will simply face up to the difficult obligation of removing those members who in the past cabinet showed themselves unworthy of cabinet trust. No one likes the hatchet job, but there comes a time when it has to be accepted; after all, it's far better to suffer even the loss of a right arm if it's badly infected than to have the infection race through the entire system.

A LOOK AT THE SUN. When the earth-orbiting Apollo manned missions are launched, one of the duties of the U.S. astronauts will be to photograph the sun through large astronomical telescope mounted on their space vehicle. In space, the sun can be observed free of most atmospheric distortions.

MacDuff Ottawa report

..New faces

OTTAWA. — Finance Minister Walter Gordon's resignation only three days after the general election that failed to produce for Prime Minister Pearson the majority he wanted has set in motion a struggle for power between the two wings of the Liberal Party. The struggle has been intensified because the outcome of the election appears to have speeded up the date on which the present leader of the party may choose to retire.

By resigning as he did the former finance minister also put the pressure on at least three other members of the cabinet. Privy Council President Guy Favreau was shocked by Gordon's action and it immediately stirred up speculation that he would be the next to move out of his front bench seat. The pressure was also on State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne and Postmaster General Rene Tremblay to quit their posts.

TWO FAVORITES

The names of two men as front runners for the post of finance minister are Trade and Commerce Minister Mitchell Sharp and Robert Winters, ex-cabinet minister turned industrialist.

Sharp is acting finance minister, until the post is filled. He, as a member of Pearson's Cabinet, already is regarded by many as having the inside track.

Robert Winters, retired from politics after he suffered defeat in the Nova Scotia riding of Queens-Lunenberg in 1957. He had held several cabinet posts in Mr. St. Laurent's Liberal administration, and is regarded as a favorite of business and investment circles for the finance job.

At his farewell press conference, Mr Gordon was asked if his going would mean that the "philosophical right wing" of the Liberal Party would take over and ditch his economic policies. He said he was confident his policies would be carried on and pointed to the Prime Minister's letter accepting his resignation and key paragraph.

GOOD JOB

It read: "I also want to express my deep appreciation for what you have accomplished as minister of finance in putting into effect fiscal policies which have done much to bring about and maintain the expansion and prosperity Canada at present enjoys, and for your effort to ensure that Canadians maintain the maximum control possible over their own economic and industrial development as essential to the development in the nation. You know that I share this objective with you"

It appeared that the Prime Minister wanted the Gordon policies carried forward. If that is the case then the choice for finance minister will be probably Mitchell Sharp rather than Robert Winters.

THROW BACK

Mr. Winters is looked upon rightly or wrongly, as one of the "old guard right wing". He was a protege of the late C. D. Howe and it was Howe that got Winters into politics in the first place. The left wing element of the party that has been pushing the social welfare program forward at a rapid rate do not look too kindly on the idea of Winters taking over the finance portfolio. They would view that move as a "throw-back" to the kind of Liberalism that they rebelled against in 1958 and 1963.

Mr Sharp on the other hand was sympathetic to some of Gordon's policies. But, he did not go along entirely with the protectionist ideas calculated to discourage foreign investment.

Mitchell Sharp has worked in the cabinet and has helped carry forward some of the economic ideas that Gordon advocated and that the Prime Minister appeared to endorse. Consequently, Sharp will likely be more favorably considered for the finance post than Winters who has been out of the political stream for nearly a decade.

LOOK FOR LEADERSHIP

This could bring on a first rate battle for power behind the scenes. Those wanting the party left of centre will resist mightily any attempt by the more moderate thinking groups to run down the centre or slightly right of centre.

The battle for power is not just for the finance portfolio, but for the future leadership of the party. There is no doubt that if Sharp gets the nod as finance minister his stock will rise rapidly as a possible new leader. Should Winters be finance minister then it will give him a boost upwards for that day which is coming — and coming sooner now than many Liberals had thought prior to November 8—when Mr. Pearson decides to retire.

Meantime the pressures will build up again on his political opponent John Diefenbaker to step down gracefully. The vigorous and hard fought campaign succeeded in re-establishing Diefenbaker in the Conservative Party as a stronger leader than he was before the election.

HARDLY ENOUGH

But he failed to regain power. And with the Liberals winning 131 seats his great ambition to stage a comeback and once again be Prime Minister has been thwarted.

As the weeks and months pass the ambitious men within the Conservative party will once again start manoeuvring to try and bring about the retirement of the leader. Some are hopeful even now that he will decide to call it quits in the very near future. But others [illegible] that they know that "the [illegible] is convinced that he and [illegible] alone was able to bring about the situation where the Liberal [illegible] denied their majority. He [illegible] recently has no desire to retire [illegible] is eager and anxious to [illegible] at his political opponents [illegible] Parliament.

But much as Mr. Diefenbaker will want to stay [illegible] in office the betting [illegible] that within a year [illegible] leadership convention [illegible] be in the cards. The anti-Diefenbaker element within the party ranks in Parliament has been strengthened considerably with George Hees and Davie Fulton both will make determined drives to win the national leadership of the party.

The program will be primarily in more remote areas of the province, with a reduction in the amount of stockpiling in the cen[illegible]

The gross earnings amount will be set at $1,200 per owner called to the work. However, this figure may be adjusted, depending number registering and the amount of work available through the winter.

The truck registration system, introduced some years ago in Alberta, is designed to distribute work among gravel dump truck operators presently in the business and depending wholly on this work for their living. The system is not a guarantee of employment, but endeavors to distribute work among as many truckers as possible.

Only one truck per owner may be registered. This plan has not been adopted to provide work opportunities for truck owners who operate trucks as a side line, and who have other major income sources. In past instances, large firms, professional men, and others, who have substantial business endeavors and also own trucks, have registered units. This is certainly outside the intent of the program, and is considered wholly unfair to truckers requiring this limited source of income during the winter months.

Truckers receiving a call must be prepared to go to work on the date set in the dispatch issue.

Much of the hauling is in isolated areas and a number of the haul routes will be across muskeg terrain and out of some of the major river valleys. The operators must, therefore, be competent and the trucks in good operating condition.

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

You are walking along the dark street shortly after midnight, when suddenly you hear the sound of shouting coming from "Mike's Diner", a small hamburger and snack shop you have just passed. After first trying the front door and finding it locked, you run down the alley alongside the restaurant until you find the rear door. Under your touch, the door swings open and you find yourself in the dimly-lighted [illegible] of the eating place.

A [illegible] voice comes through the door of a closet, "Let me out! I'm in here! The key's on the [illegible] there somewhere".

You find the key, insert it in the lock of the door which then bursts open to reveal a thin, dark-haired young man wearing an apron and a cook's hat. "A hold-up", he exclaims. "The guy came in through that back door about twenty minutes ago. I was out in front closing up the joint . . . had [illegible] finished counting the money [illegible] was about to stick it in the safe. I had already locked the front door, but I guess I forgot all about the [illegible] door. Anyway, this guy suddenly walks in on me . . . told me he had found the back door open, and that he wanted some cigarettes and a couple of candy bars. I gave them to him and rang up the 50-cent sale on the cash register. Then, when I looked up, he had a gun pointing at me".

By this time you and the young man are out in the dining room where your eyes take in the long counter, the row of stools in front of it, and the cash register behind the counter with its "No Sale" sign showing. You saunter over to the front door, noting that its lock is set, also that the curtains are pulled over the front window facing the street.

"I'll admit I was kind of peeved at first about this guy coming in the back door", the young man blurts out. "[illegible] I swallowed his story about [illegible] cigarettes and candy. You can imagine how I felt when I suddenly looked in that gun. Well, there was all the money lying in front of the safe, and he stuffed it all into his coat pockets . . . and then he told me to get into that closet where you found me. He locked the door and I heard him drop the key on the floor, then he told me I'd better keep my mouth shut for at least five minutes, or else he'd come back and blast me. I think I managed to keep quiet for maybe two minutes . . . then I started yelling . . . and that's when you came in".

"Can you give me a description of the robber?" you ask.

"Sure. About five foot ten, blue eyes, a nose that looked like it once was busted, crooked teeth, light brown hair. He had on a suede jacket, grey pants, and black shoes . . . a blue shirt, but no tie".

"I must compliment you", you then say. "That's a very fine and complete description ... of someone who doesn't exist!"

"What do you mean?" splutters the young man.

SOLUTION

You suspect the young man of an attempt to stage a fake robbery. There was one little slip-up in the story he related to you. He told you that he had rung up a 50-cent sale on the cash register. Yet you found the "No Sale" sign showing on the register.

There are more than 700 primary textile mills in Canada, spread across the 10 provinces, and the industry is 80 per cent Canadian-owned. It is the country's second largest source of employment in manufacturing, behind the clothing industry.

Solve -a- crime . . .

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

You hurry to the apartment that has been shared by the two young men, Roger Scott and Thomas Byers. At about 6 15 p.m. the distressed-looking Roger Scott and the apartment building manager meet you at the young man's door. You enter and immediately see the body of Thomas Byers lying on the floor of the sitting room, a bullet hole in his right temple and a gun lying on the floor near his outstretched hand.

The police doctor bustles into the room at this moment, makes a thorough examination, and then pronounces that the man has been dead for at least two hours. You then turn to young Scott.

"Tom was always a fine roommate", he says. "Always fair about sharing expenses, and such. But he did have a violent, almost uncontrollable temper . . . had a way of flaring up over the most trivial matters. Earlier this afternoon . . . I think about two o'clock . . . he went into one of his tantrums because he noticed that I had borrowed one of his ties. We exchanged a few words . . . then I left him here to cool off. I went to the Midtown Cocktail Lounge, had a couple of drinks, then left there at about 3.30 and took in a movie. I came back here just a few minutes before six o'clock and found Tom . . . lying there . . . dead!"

You point to the dark blood stain on the right cuff of Scott's white shirt. "Did you touch the body?"

"Oh, yes . . . I did", he admits. "I wanted to see if possibly he was still alive. I felt his heart, and I guess my sleeve must have brushed against some of the blood on the side of his head".

"Whose gun is that?"

"It's mine . . . I have a license. Tom, of course, knew I kept it in my dresser drawer . . . under my shirts".

You gaze reflectively at him for several long minutes, then say, "I'm afraid you'll have to come to headquarters with me. I'm somewhat dubious about some of the testimony you have given me".

Why are you dubious?

SOLUTION

According to Roger Scott's story, he found Tom Byers dead at about six o'clock and had accidentally acquired the bloodstain on his shirt cuff while examining the body at that time. But the doctor has told you that Tom Byers has been dead for at least two hours, and in that time the blood would have congealed and would not have stained Scott's shirt cuff.

No fleas on this market

I am one of the Market Staff was awarded [illegible] and [illegible] Market. [illegible] residents [illegible] the three [illegible] with a little awe [illegible] made aside in those days when [illegible] Ladners were [illegible] and [illegible] down alone houses, the tall mill [illegible] looked like a vast [illegible] to them.

[illegible] the mill race where we were greeted by the smell of French [illegible] and coffee. No country [illegible] auction or flea market could be complete without these [illegible] odors.

The proprietors run a unique one. Used family furniture dealers and collectors and those with their neighbour to sell were settled along the fence on [illegible] the broad. Their wares, many of them collector's items, were displayed on long wooden tables in some instances planked junk [illegible] on wool blankets on the ground with home made signs declaring them to be bargains at any price from 25c to a dollar.

It was a chilly fall day. Grey ominous clouds scudded across the sky but the weather did not deter customers with a nose for a bargain or long sought antique, from lifting items and exclaiming, "oh and "ah" both over price and quality of the thousands offered for sale. There were buttons at $1.50 and pressed glass marked from $1 in a charge out of all bounds. A fur muff one merchant cuddled over his round figure could be bought for $2.50 the fleas attached but no one seemed to have the courage to deprive him of his comfort.

It wasn't until we had almost made the rounds and I had remarked sorrowfully that I missed the wrangling of the European Flea Market merchants that we met up with a dealer who whispered in my ear, "offer me a price, dearie, for any item you fancy and I'll make a deal." This was what I had hoped our flea market would be like. Bargaining and dickering is half the fun of the market sorrowfully that I missed the wrangling of the European Flea Market merchants that we met up with a dealer who whispered in my ear, "offer me a price, dearie, for any item you fancy and I'll make a deal." This was what I had hoped our flea market would be like. Bargaining and dickering is half the fun for dealer and customer alike. There wasn't anything I really coveted in her array of authentic antique glass and china until I found a small ultra modern and useless polychrome shelf marked $2.50. Chipped and scarred it looked so forlorn on the fringe of her blanket of bargains I offered her a dollar and expected to settle for at least $1.75. With alacrity she rolled it in a piece of newspaper and as though she were offering me the crown jewels tucked it under my arm and extended her hand for payment. It was a rather weak end ing to my hoped-for exchange of ideas. Was it a bargain? I wonder. But it made the days outing complete

School committee meets Nov. 9th

Following are the minutes, in part of the regular meeting of the County of Beaver No. 9 School Committee held Tuesday Nov. 9

The meeting was called to order at 10:05 a.m. by the Chairman Cy Roddick.

It was moved and carried that the minutes of the October 12th meeting be confirmed as written

Moved and carried that the Debenture Statement 58 dated Oct 26th be accepted

Additional Land Required at Viking School

In regards to the additional land required at the Viking school, the committee was advised that Cy Roddick and Mr Allen together with the Superintendent had attended the meeting of the Town of Viking Council, Tuesday, Nov 2nd. At that time the Town of Viking advising that the Town of Viking would sell to the County of Beaver the entire block of land between 48th Avenue and 47th Avenue and between 54th Street and 51st Street, less an area 40 by 70 feet registered in the name of Northwestern Utilities Ltd., for the nominal price of $1.00 was referred to the committee. The town would proceed to have 50th Avenue closed between 50th Street and 51st Street and transfer title to this area of land to the County providing the county would, at its expense, open up 47th Avenue and improve it to the standard that 50th Avenue is at the present time and that, in the event of paving 47th Street, the county would agree to pay the appropriate frontage tax. The Town of Viking would have to have access to the proposed avenue closure for the maintenance of water and sewer lines. The area including most of the present school grounds, to be fenced with 7-foot chain-link fence by the county and the county to assume at the cost of the legal work in preparing the necessary transfers and to pay for the registration of title to the land acquired.

Cy Roddick reported that, in his opinion, the meeting with the Viking Town Council had been very satisfactory. As to the cost of opening up 47th Avenue he was of the opinion that this would be a very nominal rent. The cost of fencing the area would possible amount to some $ to 7 thousand dollars. It was considered by the committee that the offer should be accepted and it was moved and carried that the Town of Viking be advised that the County of Beaver accepts the proposals as outlined in the letter and agrees to abide by the stipulations in the letter

In connection with the building program at the Viking school, the sec 4-teas reported that the necessary documents had been forwarded to the Local Authorities Board on October 18th but that to date approval had not been received for the borrowing of the necessary money. It was, however, considered that approval would be forthcoming within a very short time. It was moved and carried that the report be accepted

The secretary reported that he had informed Mr. Kitt that all available houses in Holden had been considered by the school committee and that the committee had been of the opinion that the house purchased from Mr McDonnell was the best purchase considering the age and condition of the buildings

BULLETIN:

THORSBY BOY HONORED FOR SAVING COUSIN

It was November 21, 1964 when a near-fatal incident occurred near the home of thirteen-year old Tim Alenius. His sister Linda and cousin Pat Wickstrom were skating. In his eagerness, Pat skated out too far. Suddenly, the ice cracked and Pat fell into the icy water of Pigeon Lake.

He could not climb out. Linda skated furiously for her home to bring help, but her father's repeated efforts to reach Pat were prevented because the ice kept cracking.

Then young Tim came into view. Quickly sizing up the situation, he crawled out to the exhausted Pat and caught him by the hand.

He inched even closer, grasped the collar of Pat's jacket, and slowly pulled him onto solid ice. Then Mr. Alenius took over with towels, blankets and hot water.

We congratulate Tim. Our thanks to Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors for their active co-operation in the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year program, sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies.

This is one of a series of Junior Citizen Award announcements. Our special thanks to Howard Bowes, Editor of the Leduc Representative and to Tim's nominator, William Brezicik of Thorsby.

men's Compensation Board, in connection with the 25% merit rebate that the county had received in respect of the year 1964, be received and filed.

It was moved and carried that advice from the Alberta School Trustees Association Zone 2, that the next meeting would be held on December 8th, 1965, be received and filed.

Governor-General's Award

Mr. Pike reported that the Governor General's Award had been awarded to two students this year, namely Glenn Allan and Bryan Dale Nordstrom, from the Viking school. He stated that the medals were on hand as well as the wrist watches, that the students were going to the winners, and that the awards would be given during the week of November 21st. It was moved and carried that the report be accepted.

It was moved and carried that the bus supervisor's report for the month of October, 1965, be accepted and that the expense account in the amount of $55.96 be passed for payment.

Spare Bus Drivers

It was moved and carried that Jack Stumbo be appointed spare bus driver at Ryley with retainer, that Charles Barker be appointed spare bus driver in the Viking, Bruce and Kinsella area and that Robert Kopp be appointed spare bus driver in the Tofield area.

It was moved and carried that ASTA administration bulletin no. 9, containing the resolutions to be referred to the 1965 annual convention, be received and filed.

The superintendent reported that he had received a bursary application from Leroy Durand from Edmonton and that this teacher, having one year training, appeared very satisfactory and should prove an asset to the county's school system when he completes his training. It was moved and carried that the report be accepted and the application approved.

In regards to the teacher from Pakistan, Surjit Bains, the superintendent reported that Mr. Bains had not yet arrived having been advised by telegram that he was further delayed, but that he would most likely be arriving towards the end of November.

The superintendent referred to the street south of the school grounds up to the school in Ryley and the fact that this street was being used by general traffic and that, in his opinion, this street should be restricted to school buses and staff cars. It was pointed out that the street in question is county property, having been constructed and maintained by the county. It would be necessary to have a bylaw prohibiting vehicles except school buses and staff cars to travel over this road with the necessary penalty clauses. It was moved and carried that this matter be referred to the Village of Ryley with the request that a bylaw be passed.

Jim Lindahl, bus supervisor at Holden, attended the meeting at this time and inquired just what his duties were to be. He had been told that he was to keep the two bus garages at Holden clean that he would have to check tires and oil on the buses stationed at Holden and take them up for servicing whenever necessary. Mr. Cwilinka had been of the opinion that he was supposed to be on call during the mornings and evenings, while the buses were out on the road and that this kept him from obtaining steady work. He was advised that he did not have to "stand by" that, if a bus broke down on the road, the driver was to contact the principal of the school who in turn would try to obtain a spare bus or have one of the regular buses go out after it got back in from its run. It was mentioned that the garages at Holden at the present time were badly in need of cleaning and Mr. Cwilinka agreed to clean the garages, provided that he was paid extra for this work and a good wheelbarrow supplied. After the initial cleaning he would keep the garages clean on his regular pay of $7.00 per bus per month.

It was moved and carried that the duties of Mr. Cwilinka be: to keep the garages clean, to check the bus tires, to check the oil; and to take buses to Ryley for servicing; and that extra pay be allowed for the initial cleaning of the garages.

Teacher Recruitment

In reference to the program of recruiting teachers as it had been carried out during the past year, the superintendent informed the committee that Mr. G. M. Gesik, the superintendent, who had handled the interviews for Zones 2 and 3, was of the opinion that this was not a satisfactory arrangement, that he, in fact, had not been able to obtain for his own county the necessary qualified teachers. He and Mr. Pike were of the opinion that it was more satisfactory if, for instances, the two of them went together for the purpose of recruiting teachers and hired the satisfactory teachers on the spot. It was mentioned that this would no doubt come up at the Zone meeting on December 8th, it was therefore moved and carried that this matter be tabled to the next meting of the school committee.

Tenders for car Plug-ins

In regards to the car plug-ins at the various schools, the superintendent referred to the committee tenders for nine plug-ins at Holden in the amount of $213, six plug-ins at Ryley in the amount of $135, and six plug-ins at Tofield in the amount of $178 submitted by Watson (Tofield) Ltd. It was moved and carried that these tenders be accepted.

A LETTER . . .

To the Electors of Division 5, County of Beaver No. 9

After you people have listened to some of the outstanding speakers of various platforms for the past two months, I feel quite humble in writing this letter to you. Nonetheless, we still have to look after our affairs close to home. I therefore have taken it upon myself to stand for election on Dec. 4th as your representative and servant for Div. 5, County of Beaver. Some of you electors know me personally, others do not. Inasmuch as I would like to visit you all right now, but it would be physically impossible, I will just say this—I have always taken interest and taken part in local community affairs. In this, my record speaks for itself. And if I may add, I like this sort of work.

Now, with this promise, I will ask for your vote. Your affairs as taxpayers and the affairs of the County will always be looked after ahead of my own personal affairs. If elected, the first thing I would like to do is get together with all the taxpayers of Div. 5 at some central point and get to know all your problems firsthand, also to discuss some of the problems of this County with the taxpayers. When I ask you to send me as your servant to the County, ladies and gentlemen, I mean just that. The wishes of the taxpayers must be carried to the Council meetings, and not the wishes of the Council imposed upon the taxpayers, and this, if elected, I intend to do. This is all I will say for now, but once again I ask you to give me a vote on Dec. 4th so that I may work for you and your benefit. Three years is a very short time and then you can decide for yourself to what I have said.

Thank you all.

Sincerely yours,
HARRY CHRISTIAN,
Holden, Alberta.

Bardo WCTU discusses "Working Mothers"

Mrs. C. M. Rude

BARDO, Nov. 22—A poem read by the president, Mrs. Mary Finseth, opened the November meeting of the WCTU at the home of Norma Anderson Nov. 10th.

Mr Frygstad from Saskatchewan read from the Bible and also gave a short address.

The reading of correspondence and a motion to send used cards to the Provincial Training School at Red Deer took care of the business. A clip sheet, Legislation re "Day-Care Services for Children of Working Mothers" was given by three of the members followed by a discussion period. It was argued that the mother's place was in the home but since it seems necessary for them to work in so many instances, there is evidence of a growing need of day-care for children with such care to meet the standards laid down by authorities in child health, welfare and education.

WHEN IT ALL BEGAN. Canada's classic football final, the Grey Cup, to be played in Toronto this Saturday, has a history dating back to 1909. # Society director proposes ethnic group program

The executive officers of the Tofield Historical Society met in the Historical Museum on Friday, Nov. 19, with president Harold Schultz in the chair, and five members of the executive present.

The primary purpose of the meeting was to plan for the annual meeting of the Society which takes place in January each year. Since, besides the business conducted then, some entertainment is also provided, the executive decided to try to secure some of the films loaned by the Imperial Oil Ltd., through their local agent, Don Hardy. The president was appointed to contact Mr Hardy regarding the possible loan of these films.

Dave Heidebrecht, director of the Historical Society, proposed that the Society sponsor, late in the winter or in the early spring, an evening's entertainment which would consist of numbers by the many ethnic groups of our community. Mr. Heidebrecht felt that many of the old national songs and folk-dances are slipping into the limbo of forgotten things and this unfortunate state of affairs should not be allowed to continue unchecked. The other members of the executive heartily endorsed Mr Heidebrecht's idea.

If members of any of Tofield's many ethnic groups — Scotch, Dutch, Norwegian, Swedish, German, Ukrainian, Russian, Irish, English, French, etc.—are at all interested in participating in such an evening's entertainment with vocal or instrumental musical numbers or with national dances, any member of the executive of the Historical Society would be pleased to hear from them.

Through the good offices of Mr H. A. Pike, Superintendent of Schools for Beaver County, J. R. Francis has secured the original minute book of the Ingram School District, as well as the assessment roll of 1909 and the school registers from 1933-34. Among these school registers is one for 1911 marked "Tofield Rural" with the original number of the Tofield School District, No 376. This number signified that Tofield was the 376th school district formed in the North West Territories. Ingram S.D. later held that number and Tofield's was changed to 1930.

Entered on the "Tofield Rural" register for January, 1911, are the pupils' names: John Thomson, Mary Thomson (now Mrs. Earl Moore), Dolina Thomson (Mrs. Carl Blake), Georgina Shaw, Winnifred Shaw, Leonard Shaw, Axel Nordhus, Minnie Johnson.

The teacher was Miss Blanche Beaton and the average attendance for the month was 6.61, though the percentage of attendance was 82.62. By the end of June, Minnie Johnson, Hilda and Victor Armstrong, Raymond Hamilton, Edwin Berg and Angus Mitchell had been added to the roll call in "Tofield Rural School District No. 376", and the school had been inspected by E. S. Strathcona, who duly signed the register.

It is hoped to have a complete history of the Ingram School District for publication in the near future.

Rurka-Olson wedding solemnized October 23

Holden Lutheran Church was the scene of a lovely wedding on October 23rd when Carol Irene, daughter of Mr and Mrs Melvin Olson became the bride of Leo Marvin Rurka, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rurka. Rev. Stanley Rude performed the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin sheath gown featuring a full overskirt at the back, the neckline being trimmed with seed pearls and the long sleeves ending in lily-points.

Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a crystal headpiece. Her bouquet was crescent shaped of deep red roses and her jewellery was pearl earrings, a gift of the groom.

The maid of honor, Miss Marlene Olson, sister of the bride, wore a turquoise blue peau de soie gown with white lace jacket. The bridesmaids, Elaine Olson, cousin of the bride, and Vivian Ogrodnick, wore matching dresses of teal blue, styled identically to that of the maid of honor. They wore lace covered headpieces and carried purses centred with a corsage of white 'mums.

Myrna Rurka and Dula Pooke, nieces of the groom, were the flower girls and were similar [illegible] of teal blue and turquoise and carried baskets of white 'mums.

The groom was attended by Gary Scabar, Damon Kondro and Ace Norton. Ring-bearer was Ronald Berreth. The ushers were Dennis and Maynard Olson, brother and cousin, respectively, of the bride.

The wedding music was played by Mrs Carol Maxwell of Viking and the soloist, Mrs. Doreen Burnstad sang "I'll Walk Beside You", during the signing of the register.

A reception for 400 guests was held in the Community Hall, catered to by the Greek Ladies' Aid. The three-tiered wedding cake centering the head table, was made by the bride's mother and beautifully decorated by Mrs. Mary Zwierschke. Master of ceremonies was Oleh Shykora; and Garnet Burnstad, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom ably responded.

The happy couple is residing in Ryley where both are on the teaching staff of Ryley school.

World-famous puppet show coming to Tofield

The Tofield Community League, and through it the community in general, has had an incredible piece of good luck. The Hogarth puppets will be coming to Tofield on January 6, 1966. Only because of the cancellation of a previous engagement can the Hogarths bring their 700 puppets to Tofield.

This fantastic aggregation of puppets travels in a 10-ton truck. With their owners, they have toured many parts of the world. Australia, New Zealand, Africa and many countries in Europe have all had opportunities to see the biggest puppet show of all time, but the Hogarths have not as yet toured North America.

The Hogarth puppets are sponsored and publicized by the Alberta Department of Recreation and Cultural Development. Only through the good offices of Jack McCreath is the Community League able to secure this excellent show. Mr. McCreath knew of the open night in the tight schedule of the Hogarths and kindly phoned C. F. Annis, vice-president of the Community League, who at once conveyed the news to President John Baergen and other members of the executive. They quickly seized the opportunity to bring such stellar entertainment to Tofield.

In England, puppet shows are part of the Christmas tradition—the Punch and Judy show is famous all over the world. The Hogarth puppet show will be at the end of the traditional "twelve days of Christmas", Jan. 6, and will be a real holiday treat for the young in heart, from two to 92!

CHILDREN'S DELIGHT

The Hogarth's aim is to delight the children especially; and to ensure that they miss none of the antics of the puppets, the front seats in the theatre are reserved for the children, by special request of the Hogarths. Here they can see every act of the puppets. The [illegible] tional costumes may [illegible] appreciated by the chi[illegible] but the adults will certainly be delighted by them.

Tickets will be on sale in early December, at $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for children. Since this internationally famous show is a certain sell-out, the advance ticket sale is necessary to ensure entry to this unique entertainment.

Old license plates added to historical collection

John Tiedemann has been making a collection of early Alberta car licence plates. He has one for each of the years 1918, 1919 and 1920.

The 1920 plate is number 16603, with white numbers on a green background.

The 1919 licence plate bears black numerals 11661 on a white background. The "A" in Alta has been given a flourish rather than the usual straight lines.

The 1918 licence plate is of particular interest to the Tofield Historical Society. When Donald Rudacki found one for the same year, the secretary of the Historical Society wrote to Motor Vehicle Bureau to obtain information re the colors used that year. The reply stated that, "the information available indicates that black letters on a medium yellow background were used". However, the 1918 licence plate which Mr. Tiedemann owns is in excellent condition and bears the white numerals 29873 on a black background.

ANNUAL MEETING

The Historical Society is making reservations through Imperial Oil agent, Don Hardy, for the film, "Village In The Dust", for showing at the annual meeting of the Society, which it is hoped will be held on January 28th. "Village In The Dust" is the story of painstaking archaeological re-discovery of an Indian village in Eastern Canada, and should prove fascinating to all who are interested in the preservation of our country's past.

ETHNIC PROGRAM

Any ethnic group interested in participating in the Society's proposed ethnic night program is invited to get in touch with any member of the Society. Any of the following would be most interested to have your comments: Harold Schultz, Conrad Patterson, Dave Heidebrecht, James Francis, S. Dunham, W. Lancaster, Mrs. Neil Phillips, Mrs. Edna Bowick.

Open 'spiel starts Ryley curling season

The Ryley Curling Club opened its curling season with an open bonspiel yesterday (Dec. 1st). The duration of the bonspiel will depend on the number of entries. Interested curlers are invited to contact H. Berke at 30 or 75; or G. Burnstad at 82 or 95.

The Ryley Curling Club invites all persons interested in curling this year to join with the club members for a sport-filled season.

Brownies 'fly up' to Guides

(Mrs. G. H. Taylor)

HOLDEN — On Tuesday, Nov. 23rd, five members of the Holden Brownie troop were honored by their fellow Brownies and their mothers at a "fly-up" ceremony into the Guides. The Brownies were Debbie Giebelhaus, Beverly Sherger, Dianne McDonell, Carol Stecyk and Marlene Kelly, who were presented with their wings by the Brownie leader. As they were received into the senior group, each had their wings pinned on by the Guide leader. These Brownies had passed the tests required, being the Tenderfoot Badge, Enrollment, the Golden Bar and the final one, the Golden Hand.

At the conclusion of the evening's ceremonies, the Brownies served coffee and cookies to their visiting mothers and friends.

Kingman man at Pool meet

President G. L. Harrold opened the 43rd annual meeting of the Alberta Wheat Pool on November 23rd in the Palliser Hotel, Calgary. Sixty-seven of the 70 elected delegates were on hand.

Ingvald Ness of Kingman was named to an order of business committee, along with Emile Cammaert of Rockyford, James McNab of Beaverlodge and Fred Hallworth of Taber.

Society director proposes ethnic group program

The executive officers of the Tofield Historical Society met in the Historical Museum on Friday, Nov. 19, with president Harold Schultz in the chair, and five members of the executive present.

The primary purpose of the meeting was to plan for the annual meeting of the Society which takes place in January each year. Since, besides the business conducted then, some entertainment is also provided, the executive decided to try to secure some of the films loaned by the Imperial Oil Ltd., through their local agent, Don Hardy. The president was appointed to contact Mr. Hardy regarding the possible loan of these films.

Dave Heidebrecht, director of the Historical Society, proposed that the Society sponsor, late in the winter or in the early spring, an evening's entertainment which would consist of numbers by the many ethnic groups of our community. Mr. Heidebrecht felt that many of the old national songs and folk-dances are slipping into the limbo of forgotten things and this unfortunate state of affairs should not be allowed to continue unchecked. The other members of the executive heartily endorsed Mr. Heidebrecht's idea.

If members of any of Tofield's many ethnic groups — Scotch, Dutch, Norwegian, Swedish, German, Ukrainian, Russian, Irish, English, French, etc.—are at all interested in participating in such an evening's entertainment with vocal or instrumental musical numbers or with national dances, any member of the executive of the Historical Society would be pleased to hear from them.

Through the good offices of Mr. H. A. Pike, Superintendent of Schools for Beaver County, J. R. Francis has secured the original minute book of the Ingram School District, as well as the assessment roll of 1900 and the school registers from 1893-34. Among these school registers is one for 1911 marked "Tofield Rural" with the original number of the Tofield School District, No. 378. This number signified that Tofield was the 378th school district formed in the North West Territories. Ingram S.D. later held that number and Tofield's was changed to 1930.

Entered on the "Tofield Rural" register for January, 1911, are the pupils' names: John Thomson, Mary Thomson (now Mrs. Earl Moore), Dolina Thomson (Mrs. Carl Blake), Georgina Shaw, Winnifred Shaw, Leonard Shaw, Axel Nordhus, Minnie Johnson.

The teacher was Miss Blanche Beaton and the average attendance for the month was 6.61, though the percentage of attendance was 82.62. By the end of June, Minnie Johnson, Hilda and Victor Armstrong, Raymond Hamilton, Edwin Berg and Angus Mitchell had been added to the roll call in "Tofield Rural School District No. 378", and the school had been inspected by E. S. Strathcona, who duly signed the register.

It is hoped to have a complete history of the Ingram School District for publication in the near future.

Rurka-Olson wedding solemnized October 23

Holden Lutheran Church was the scene of a lovely wedding on October 23rd when Carol Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Olson, became the bride of Leo Marvin Rurka, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rurka. Rev. Stanley Rude performed the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin sheath gown featuring a full overskirt at the back, the neckline being trimmed with seed pearls and the long sleeves ending in lily-points.

Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a crystal headpiece. Her bouquet was crescent shaped of deep red roses and her jewellery was pearl earrings, a gift of the groom.

The maid of honor, Miss Marlene Olson, sister of the bride, wore a turquoise blue peau de sole gown with white lace jacket. The bridesmaids, Elaine Olson, cousin of the bride, and Vivian Ogrodnick, wore matching dresses of teal blue, styled identically to that of the maid of honor. They wore lace covered headpieces and carried purses centred with a corsage of white 'mums.

Myrna Rurka and Dula Pooke, nieces of the groom, were the flower girls and wore similar dresses of teal blue and turquoise and carried baskets of white 'mums.

The groom was attended by Gary Scabar, Damon Kondro and Ace Norton. Ring-bearer was Ronald Berreth. The ushers were Dennis and Maynard Olson, brother and cousin, respectively, of the bride.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Carol Maxwell of Viking and the soloist, Mrs. Doreen Burnstad sang "I'll Walk Beside You", during the signing of the register.

A reception for 400 guests was held in the Community Hall, catered to by the Greek Ladies' Aid. The three-tiered wedding cake centering the head table, was made by the bride's mother and beautifully decorated by Mrs. Mary Zwierschke. Master of ceremonies was Oleh Shykora; and Garnet Burnstad, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom ably responded.

The happy couple is residing in Ryley where both are on the teaching staff of Ryley school.

World-famous puppet show coming to Tofield

The Tofield Community League, and through it the community in general, has had an incredible piece of good luck. The Hogarth puppets will be coming to Tofield on January 6, 1966. Only because of the cancellation of a previous engagement can the Hogarths bring their 700 puppets to Tofield.

This fantastic aggregation of puppets travels in a 10-ton truck. With their owners, they have toured many parts of the world. Australia, New Zealand, Africa and many countries in Europe have all had opportunities to see the biggest puppet show of all time, but the Hogarths have not as yet toured North America.

The Hogarth puppets are sponsored and publicized by the Alberta Department of Recreation and Cultural Development. Only through the good offices of Jack McCreath is the Community League able to secure this excellent show. Mr. McCreath knew of the open night in the tight schedule of the Hogarths and kindly phoned C. P. Annis, vice-president of the Community League, who at once conveyed the news to President John Baergen and other members of the executive. They quickly seized the opportunity to bring such stellar entertainment to Tofield.

In England, puppet shows are part of the Christmas tradition—the Punch and Judy show is famous all over the world. The Hogarth puppet show will be at the end of the traditional "twelve days of Christmas", Jan. 6, and will be a real holiday treat for the young in heart, from two to 92!

CHILDREN'S DELIGHT

The Hogarth's aim is to delight the children especially; and to ensure that they miss none of the antics of the puppets, the front seats in the theatre are reserved for the children, by special request of the Hogarths [illegible] they can see every act of the puppets. The gorgeous, international costumes may not be fully appreciated by the children, but the adults will certainly be delighted by them.

Tickets will be on sale in early December, at $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for children. Since this internationally famous show is a certain sell-out, the advance ticket sale is necessary to ensure entry to this unique entertainment.

West of where?

Most people in this area are familiar with land descriptions that tell you a farmer lives in one or another quarter of a certain section, in some township and range, all West of the Fourth Meridian (A few miles west of Wetaskiwin it's west of the Fifth Meridian.)

But the question of the moment is: Fourth Meridian from where? and why?

This all started when a school pupil asked his teacher, who thought he was reasonably well informed. But he couldn't come up with the answer, so he came to The Canadian. We've got part of the answer, but we're far from complete, and probably some of our readers really do know.

Most readers know the prime meridian, or zero meridian, if you wish, runs through Greenwich, England. And there are 360 of them around the earth. Well, the Alberta-Saskatchewan boundary is the Fourth Meridian we refer to, and it's certainly a lot more than fourth from Greenwich. It's not the 104 abbreviated, either. Tracing back on a series of maps, we find this part of the geodetic survey of Canada, and the zero meridian for purposes of this survey runs just east of the Manitoba-Ontario boundary.

But why it runs there we don't know. Was it part of Captain Palliser's survey of the prairies? Is there some other basis in Canadian survey? And why is the provincial boundary not used? Maybe it has to do with the older style survey used in Ontario many years ago, where areas 100 chains square were named concessions, such as our square mile is named a section. Incidentally, the 100 chains measured a mile and a quarter, or 6600 feet. It might be interesting to know how and why we switched from surveying in concessions, with its decimal advantage, to sections.

By George!

Provincial and municipal governments usually spend more on goods and services than the federal government and the patterns of expenditure of all sorts are changing in such a way that the provinces and municipalities are taking a larger and larger share of the increasing total, according to the Bank of Montreal's November Business Review just issued. This will come as no shock to most people, but how it has developed over the years makes for interesting reading.

The B of M notes that total government outlays on goods and services have almost doubled in relative importance since the 1929's, from about nine per cent of gross national product in 1926 to about 18 per cent in 1964.

It also notes that, while federal government spending of this sort has been less than that of provincial and municipal governments in most of the post war period, this situation prevailed in an even greater degree before the war.

The bank observes that, on the other hand, federal spending on subsidies, debt charges and transfer payments to persons has always been larger than such spending by the other levels of government. However, the provinces and municipalities have been catching up fast, largely as a result of greatly increased grants to private non-commercial institutions, notably universities and hospitals.

"Looking to the future, continued strong growth in the costs of protection of persons and property may be expected to parallel increased urbanization", the B of M states.

"In addition, the development of rapid transit systems and highway networks to accommodate growing demands for mobility should give rise to an increasing burden of expenditures for transportation and communications.

"Health, which is one of the fastest growing categories, will no doubt continue to be an increasing object of government expenditure, particularly if current proposals for universal medicare schemes are presented.

"Similarly, the new universal pension plans could well lead to an even higher percentage of government outlays being devoted to social welfare".

Santa Claus and suicides

At first it seems an anomaly that while most sections of the community are rolling out the brightly colored paper and the sparkling tinsel decorations for Christmas, brightened with Christmas lights, some of our mental hospitals, police forces and groups assisting the less fortunate are gearing for the year's heaviest onslaught of suicides.

But it's at Christmas that many people reach the lowest depths of their lives, as they face a season of festivities they cannot join in, of family gatherings they do not share, and of new life and hope when their lives hold no promise of hope.

One organization which has traditionally recognized the importance of preventing this dangerous depression is the Salvation Army. During its century of service to mankind, the Army has made it an important part of its ministry to bring some of the joy of this holy season to those who are out of the mainstream of life. Another group in this city is the Merry Christmas Fund.

But groups such as these can't do it all alone. There's room for us all to get into this act, and the more taking part, the better the show will be. There's still lots of time to make your own plans for helping, either personally, or through a donation to one or more of the many funds which are doing such a fine job.

And just on the side, there are also the funds offering relief to the distressed of nations in other lands

Perspective

So many things are a matter of perspective, and frequently the viewpoint changes in the light of the perspective from which it is looked at. In this vein, it's maybe a little easier to justify the current tremendously disturbing situation in Rhodesia if we relate the population to something we know close to home.

So, very roughly the white population compares to all the residents of Edmonton living north of the Saskatchewan river, while the blacks compare roughly with all the people, of whatever color, living west of Kenora, Ontario. Or, in other words, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

Fancy, for a moment, all of these people being governed completely and absolutely and without any voice of their own, by those Edmontonians living on the northside.

Does the perspective hinder or improve your viewpoint?

Business Arising from Minutes

In regards to the sewerage system in the Hamlet of Kinsella, the secretary-treasurer advised the Council that the 30 days required for posting of the summary of the by-law expired on November 11th and that it then would be necessary for the Council to finally pass the by-law if they intended to go ahead with the proposed construction. He further advised that, if the Council wished to expedite the application to borrow the necessary funds, it could call a special meeting for the purpose of passing the by-law. The Council was of the opinion, however, that the work could not be completed by March 31st and a higher cost than originally contemplated would be involved.

It was therefore moved and carried that the report be accepted and that the matter be given further consideration at the regular meeting in December.

In regards to the Special Contingency Road, the secretary-treasurer referred to the Council a letter from J. P. Church, Acting Chief Maintenance Engineer, in this matter. It was indicated that the work had been completed to the N.E. corner of Sec. 16-48-16-W4th. A letter from Nick Laskoski, one of the delegation that interviewed the Council in this matter, thanking the Council for their support in the request that this road be completed and with a request of the ratepayers using the road be conveyed to the Department of Public Works.

Moved and carried that the information be accepted and the correspondence received and filed.

In regards to the drainage problem, the secretary-treasurer reported that he had referred the matter to the Dept. of Water Resources and had been advised that the problem was listed for a survey later this winter.

Moved and carried that the report be accepted.

The secretary-treasurer reported that two tenders had been received for the chain-fold frames. The large frame had been sold for $28 to John Kondrowski and the small one for $10 to John Slezenchuk.

Moved and carried that the report be accepted and action concurred in.

In regards to the Ross Creek and Elk Horn Creek drainage problem, the secretary-treasurer stated that he had been advised by the Dept. of Water Resources that a survey crew was working on this problem at the present time and that a report should be received in the not too distant future.

Moved and carried that the report be accepted

Correspondence

Correspondence from the Dept. of Public Welfare concerning Preventive Welfare Services was referred to the Council.

Moved and carried that the correspondence be received and filed and that the Dept. of Public Welfare be advised that the Council approves in principle to the proposals outlined in the correspondence.

A letter from the Town of Viking, requesting that the Council considers a blanket waiver to the Town of Viking for any unclaimed amounts of the centennial grants, was referred to the Council.

Moved and carried that this matter be deferred to the December meeting

Letter from the Bruce Stampede Association requesting a grant for the Centennial Grandstand at the premises of the Bruce Stampede Association. The Association proposed to add an extension to the Community Hall for the purpose of building washrooms and installing running water. The project would cost approximately $7,500 and the Stampede Association was willing to match or better the amount of the Centennial Grant. The secretary-treasurer advised the Council that the Centennial Grant available would be $694, to which the County would add $347, making a total of $1,041.

Moved and carried that the request be approved and the necessary action taken in this regard.

Modern Etiquette

Q. What should an usher at a wedding do when several woman guests arrive simultaneously, and the other ushers are already occupied?

A. He offers his arm to the oldest woman guest, and the others follow them to the appropriate seats.

Q. When is the proper moment for a dinner guest to open his napkin and place it on his lap?

A. Only when the hostess takes up her napkin.

Modern etiquette

Q. Is it still considered necessary or proper for a woman to speak first when meeting a man on the street?

A. This hasn't been true for many years. In fact, it is more usual for the man to smile and give the woman an indication that he has recognized her so that she may then bow to him. This is particularly true in business contacts where it may be hard for a woman to remember all the men she meets during a busy week.

Q. Is it proper to ask a guest of honor at our dinner table to say grace before the meal?

A. Only if your guest is a clergyman. Otherwise, grace should be spoken by the host, or in his absence, by the hostess.

Q. Are the male attendants at a wedding supposed to pay for their own boutonnieres?

A. No, the bridegroom furnishes these.

Q. What is the proper manner of holding the coffee or tea cup?

A. The handle of the cup should be held firmly between thumb and fingers and hooked through with the index finger. And, when holding the cup, watch your little finger that it doesn't get crooked out in an affected pose. Keep it in close with your other fingers.

Q. Should a letter of application for a position be written by hand or typewritten?

A. Usually a typewritten letter is preferred. However, there are some firms which stipulate handwritten letters of application, especially where the applicant's handwriting is a factor.

Q. On which arm of her father does the bride proceed down the aisle of the church?

A. On his right arm.

Q. How can a woman know whether or not to offer her hand to a man when being introduced to him?

A. There is no rule governing this. It is optional with the woman and how she feels about the meeting. However, I like the offered hand, which seems to express more sincere and genuine pleasure over the meeting.

IN MEMORIAM

MALKEWICH. — Treasured memories of Kathleen, our only daughter and sister, who left us November 29, 1960, at the age of 18 years:

Five sad and lonely years have passed
Since our great sorrow fell;
The shock that we received that day,
No one can ever tell.
It's a lonely life without you, Kathy,
And sad has been the way;
For life at home is not the same
Since you were called away.
It was a sudden ending,
Too sudden to forget—
For those who loved you dearly,
Are the ones who won't forget

—Ever remembered by your devoted family, Dad, Mom, Donald, Kenneth and Wayne. 14p-3123

Modern Etiquette

Q What should an usher at a wedding do when several woman guests arrive simultaneously, and the other ushers are already occupied?

A. He offers his arm to the oldest woman guest, and the others follow them to the appropriate seats.

Q When is the proper moment for a dinner guest to open his napkin and place it on his lap?

A. Only when the hostess takes up her napkin.

Modern etiquette

Q. Is it still considered necessary or proper for a woman to speak first when meeting a man on the street?

A. This hasn't been true for many years. In fact, it is more usual for the man to smile and give the woman an indication that he has recognized her so that she may then bow to him. This is particularly true in business contacts where it may be hard for a woman to remember all the men she meets during a busy week.

Q. Is it proper to ask a guest of honor at our dinner table to say grace before the meal?

A Only if your guest is a clergyman Otherwise, grace should be spoken by the host, or in his absence, by the hostess.

Q. Are the male attendants at a wedding supposed to pay for their own boutonnieres?

A No, the bridegroom furnishes these

Q What is the proper manner of holding the coffee or tea cup?

A. The handle of the cup should be held firmly between thumb and finger—not hooked through with the index finger. And, when holding the cup, watch your little finger that it doesn't get crooked out in an affected pose. Keep it in close with your other fingers.

Q. Should a letter of application for a position be written by hand or typewritten?

A. Usually a typewritten letter is preferred However, there are some firms which stipulate handwritten letters of application, especially where the applicant's handwriting is a factor.

Q. On which arm of her father does the bride proceed down the aisle of the church?

A. On his right arm.

Q. How can a woman know whether or not to offer her hand to a man when being introduced to him?

A. There is no rule governing this. It is optional with the woman and how she feels about the meeting. However, I like the offered hand, which seems to express a more sincere and genuine pleasure over the meeting.

ALBERTA JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE YEAR
BULLETIN:
WAINWRIGHT GIRL HONORED FOR DEVOTION TO FAMILY

At fifteen years of age, Judith Rutledge has proved herself a worthy Junior Citizen by her unselfish care of and devotion to her family. Judith's mother, a courageous victim of ill health, is now confined to a wheel chair.

For over four years Judith, the only girl in a family of six children, has cheerfully taken over the cooking, baking, canning, freezing and laundry in the ranch home. Her older brothers are busy with outside work. Judith is also responsible for the care of her younger brothers.

This heavy load of responsibility has not prevented Judith from doing well in school. She also finds time to be an active member of the 4-H Greenshields Beef Club.

We congratulate Judith. Our thanks to Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors for their active co-operation in the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year program, sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies.

This is one of a series of Junior Citizen Award announcements. Our special thanks to L. D'Albertanson, Editor of the Wainwright Star-Chronicle and to Judith's nominator, Mrs. D. K. Reach of Wainwright.

What "My Bank" did with your dollars in 1965

Horace Seller, Manager
Tofield Branch
Bank of Montreal

They were active dollars, those savings dollars you placed in the keeping of the Bank of Montreal in 1965. As manager of the local branch of "My Bank", I would like to take a few moments to fill you in briefly on the use that the Bank made of them.

Every dollar you saved during the past year was put right to work helping people directly or indirectly. Many of those dollars were used to aid people in financing things that meant an improved way of life for them . . . such things as cars, home improvements, household appliances of all kinds. Another substantial number was lent to small, medium and large business enterprises, encouraging them to expand and employ more people.

The personal savings of people like yourself amounted to very nearly one-half of the total deposits of $4,086,387,144 at the Bank's year-end on October 31st. This figure represents a record high for deposits in our 148 years of operations and in turn permitted us to record a new all-time high in total loans of $3,167,990,306.

Another $811,767,061 was invested in high-grade government bonds which have a ready market, plus $163,541,999 in other securities—mainly short-term credits to industry.

What else did your hard working dollars do in 1965? Well, they breathed new vitality into virtually every community across our nation. They financed new industry and created new jobs . . . helped farmers improve both their farms and their way of living . . . constructed new schools and helped students get a better education . . . aided fishermen to increase their catches and their incomes . . . built new roads and highways . . . supported community projects, large and small, of many kinds.

Yes, your savings dollars worked hard in 1965 — and hardest of all for you. For, steadily accumulating at interest, they are a sound investment in a better future for yourself and your family.

On behalf of the Bank of Montreal, may I say "thank you" for your confidence in "My Bank" and for the opportunity you are giving us to work with you in building a more prosperous Canada.

Tofield FUA protests 'Daylight Saving'

At the November 15th FUA meeting held in the Legion Hall Herb McAdoo was appointed delegate to the annual convention at Edmonton December 6th to 11th. If possible he was to go before the convention to protest "Daylight Saving Time" proposed by the government. It was agreed that this would be a detriment to the farmer.

If information is correct and local option votes can be taken on this idea it would create utter confusion, with the possibility of standard time and daylight saving in an adjoining town.

If the towns want more daylight, the simplest plan would be to open stores at 8 a.m. instead of 9 a.m. rather than changing the clock.

Canvassing is about half done with some 80 units signed up. It is hoped to double this before the end of the campaign. One of the "kicks" presented to the canvassers was that there should be at least one or two joint meetings (FWUA, FUA) during the season. To meet this complaint, the next meeting of the FUA on Tuesday, Dec. 14th at 8.30 p.m. Legion Hall, the FWUA is being invited. The delegate's report will be given at that time.

You are reminded that monthly meetings are held the second Tuesday of each month at 8.30 p.m. It would help if more members turned out so that more discussion could be had. Anyone not contacted by canvassers see the secretary, Earl Rose.

This man is fighting fire.

Although rarely seen in helmet, coat and rubber boots, as a member of the Alberta Fire Commissioner's staff, this man is a fire fighter who plays an important role in helping to reduce fire losses.

It is the function of the Fire Commissioner's office to prevent fires. Prevention is carried out in a number of ways—through rigid enforcement of all fire laws and regulations, including investigations into the causes of fires and, where warranted, prosecution of arsonists. To assist in the reduction of fire losses, the Fire Commissioner and his staff conduct an extensive Fire Training program, including Fire Officers' training courses at the Alberta Fire Training School, which is open to all Alberta fire Departments. This office also conducts a comprehensive Fire Prevention program for schools, institutions and industries, and promotes the Fire Prevention Week—the highly effective annual campaign designed to make the public more aware of the ever present threat of fire.

Alberta's fire losses in lives and property, while still too high, would be much higher without the trained firemen at the scene and the behind-the-scenes work of the Alberta Fire Commissioner's Office.

Borrow Pit Problem

A borrow pit problem on S E of 10-53-16-W5 had been investigated by a committee consisting of Crs Magnuson, Gibson and Krupalnicki on Nov 3rd. 1965 The report indicated that this area, covering between three and four acres, had been used in the construction of the road adjoining the east boundary of the land in question. The area used originally had very shallow topsoil and it had therefore been impossible to replace it to anywhere near the original condition The area had been reasonably well levelled and had been reseeded to a forage mixture by the County The report indicated that since a borrow pit had been necessary, payment for compensation was justifiable and the committee recommended that a sum of $200 be paid to the owner of the land as full compensation of damage.

Moved and carried that the report be accepted, the recommendations concurred in and the committee, Crs Gibson, Krupalnicki and Magnuson, be confirmed as the committee having attended to this business.

Bellman - Chupka rites solemnized Oct. 30th

(Mrs. G. H. Taylor)

HOLDEN — On October 30th St Josaphat's Cathedral in Edmonton was the scene of a lovely late afternoon wedding when Miss Betty Chupka, youngest daughter of Mr and Mrs Mike Chupka of Holden and Edmonton, became the bride of Steven Bellman of Edmonton in a double-ring ceremony Father Basil performed the ceremony before an altar banked with huge bouquets of 'mums

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a floor-length gown of white silk crepe with a matching train She wore white gloves and a scalloped veil which was centered by a pearl trimmed bow and carried a bouquet of white orchids and ivy which had been flown here from Hawaii.

Miss Patricia Chupka, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Marilyn Mancktur, cousin of the bride, and Miss Valerie Harrison, all wearing matching jade green floor-length gowns with cupid tiaras. Each wore white gloves and carried a tapered bouquet of bronze 'mums.

The groom was attended by Paul Bellman, Gunner Anderson and Brian Bellman, all of Edmonton, and ushers were Gordon Lucas, Michael Lawson and Tom Cawsey.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs Chupka chose a two-piece dress of beige silk crepe complimented by brown accessories and wore a corsage of talisman roses. Mrs. Bellman, mother of the groom, chose a smart two-piece jade green dress with matching accessories, and wore a corsage of yellow roses.

A reception and dance were held later in the evening at the Highway Motor Hotel.

The bride's table was centred with a beautifully decorated three-tiered wedding cake topped with miniature wedding bells and flanked by six large candles set in tall silver holders.

Joe Chamaillie was master of ceremonies and Harry Michlick, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to the bride, which was ably replied to by the groom.

Out-of-town guests were from Vancouver, Calgary, Coleman, Two Hills and Holden and district.

For a six-week honeymoon trip to the Hawaiian Islands, the bride chose for travelling, a blue tweed suit with matching accessories and wore a corsage of talisman roses.

The happy couple will reside in Edmonton on their return.

Reprehensible

Word of the poisoning of a group of pigs on Socred leader Robert Thompson's farm must have brought a sickening feeling to thousands of people, both supporters and opponents of Mr. Thompson's candidacy. It might make you wonder what kind of warped mind would perpetrate a wanton sort of deal like that.

No good could possibly come of it, and all that results is the loss of a considerable value of livestock, and the building of a great deal of sympathy for the afflicted politician. Certainly the pigs couldn't have voted for Mr. Thompson, but probably a number of people who otherwise wouldn't have done so might react this way.

It smacks so much of the old world tactics we thought had been left behind that it comes as a blow to realize how thin is our veneer of democracy.

Bank rates jump again

Action by the United States government this week in curtailing as far as practicable heavy borrowings by Canada, coupled with advice to American subsidiaries in this country to slow down their Canadian expenditures, provided the spur needed for the Bank of Canada to announce a sharp increase in the bank rate, by a full half of one per cent.

Coupled with an already high expansionist economy, the pressure on interest, and the shortened supply of money can lead to only two things: increased interest rates, and tight money. Indeed, the effect is already being felt across the country and investment money is becoming harder and harder to find.

It's an ill wind, they say, that blows no good, and this wind may just possibly have the effect of increasing the pressure on Canadian commercial firms to reveal more of their operations to their shareholders. Canadians have often been called cautious and conservative, but wisdom born of more experience has taught them this lesson. We don't say that episodes like Windfall, British Mortgage and Atlantic Acceptance couldn't have happened in the United States . . far from it. But rules of the stock exchange there do give the investor more protection.

Indeed, the recent amazing revelation that Canadian shareholders in the CPR couldn't find answers to their questions until the American SEC demanded the information before permitting share trading in that country was enough to scandalize responsible businessmen in this country.

There's lots of money in Canada, but it wants to be assured a reasonable chance for success. Witness recent bond issues floated in Alberta by the government or telephone company. Witness dominion government sales of savings bonds. Witness the recent tar sands issue here in Alberta. And many more like it. Each one of them proves there's money begging for a place to help.

But it wants a sporting chance.

What a contribution would be made to this country's development if someone could open up the avenues providing this sporting chance. Strides which today look gigantic would be dwarfed by the development we'd see if this resource could be harnessed

Concern for future

Keen concern was voiced last month at the semi-annual board meeting of the American Lutheran Church over a drop in enrollment in the church's four schools of theology. From 1960 to 1965, the schools, including that in Saskatoon, reported a decline of twenty per cent in enrollment. Similar drop-offs have been reported by other denominations, leading to a grave concern for the future supply of ministers.

In a country which calls itself Christian, this will be a matter for concern among thousands of thinking people, whether church-goers or not. There is probably no single reason behind the decline, but today's growing secularism is probably partly responsible, as may also be the emphasis on material well being.

In this area, it is worthy of note that things material have been looking up in recent years for ministers generally, across the country

How far color TV?

Alberta Government Telephones, in company with seven other companies seeking up the Trans-Canada Telephone System are busy these days making technical changes to their microwave network, making possible the carrying of color television.

Both Canadian networks have announced they will be telecasting in color by early in 1967, so accommodation has to be ready in time

How soon local programs will be changed, of course, is anybody's guess, and how soon any substantial number of owners will provide color receivers is another big question. One thing is sure the already tremendous costs of advertising on television will become almost astronomical by comparison

STORM WARNINGS

OTTAWA — Storm warnings that Canada may be rocked by a major medicare controversy even more violent than the turbulence that developed over the medical service scheme in Saskatchewan in 1962, were sounded recently. The warnings were heard during the working conference on the implications of a health charter for Canadians.

Sponsored by 11 national organizations to educate church, labour, private welfare, farm, student and women's organizations, about health issues and proposals for medical care insurance, the conference attracted nearly 200 delegates. The conference is timely in light of the Hall Royal Commission that recommended a national health services plan for Canada. Prime Minister L. B. Pearson has set Jan 1, 1967, as the target for implementing medicare across Canada.

The Canadian Government at a federal-provincial conference later this year, subject to parliamentary approval, has said it will support provincial medicare plans by means of a fiscal contribution of pre-determined size. This proposal does not require detailed agreements governing the medicare plan it only calls for a general federal provincial understanding as to the nature of the health programs which will make a federal fiscal contribution appropriate

BASIC CONCEPTS

The Federal Government has laid down four criteria on which such an understanding should be based. They are

1 The scope of the benefits should be all the services by physicians, both general practitioners and specialists

2 The plan should be universal. It should cover all residents of the province on uniform terms and conditions

3 The plan must be publicly administered either directly by the provincial government or by a provincial government agency

4 Each provincial plan should provide full transferability of benefits when people are absent from the province or when they move their homes to another province

The report of the royal commission headed by Hon Emmett M Hall, Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, has already generated considerable discussion. It was with a view to providing a forum for public debate and contributing to a greater public knowledge of medicare that the conference on health services was convened.

SOFT, BUT CLEAR

The great medicare debate was thereby transferred to the main ballroom of Ottawa's plush Chateau Laurier hotel. There an officer of the Canadian Medical Association and a Commissioner of the Saskatchewan medical care plan, put forward their opposing views. They did not engage in any heavy verbal fireworks, nor any heated debate. Both directors were soft-spoken men who set out their arguments—but loud and clear the obvious warnings that flowed to the delegates.

Mr Justice Hall opened the conference with an address in which he contended that the economy can afford increased health and education costs at the same time. He said there cannot and should not be any question of a clash or of priority between the needs of better education and those of good health. He argued that the Canadian economy is strong enough to carry concurrently these two essential services.

He was followed the next day by Dr John E F Hastings, at the University of Toronto. Prof. Hastings said that the issue of "medicare" has "in effect been settled" as a result of the federal provincial meetings earlier this year.

STILL FAR TO GO

But it was far from settled in the views of Dr Victor Goldbloom of Montreal who represented the Canadian Medical Association, and Dr Samuel Wolfe, medical director of the Saskatoon community clinic in Saskatchewan, where government medicare is now functioning.

Dr. Goldbloom insisted that doctors must have the right to opt out of any national or provincial medicare program. He pointed out that the Saskatchewan plan gave them that right, but the doctors had to fight for it.

As long as that door is left open—as long as doctors are free

Provincial scene

By JOHN WARREN

The Alberta School Trustees met in Edmonton last week and came up with enough suggestions to change the whole course of education in the province. Whether any action will be taken on the various resolutions, reports and public pronouncements is of course, another matter. Many of the ideas advanced appear far too radical for immediate government action.

A report that could alter the whole pattern of rural education was presented to the house board of the department of secondary education at the University of Alberta, Dr. L. W. Downey. It says only the larger urban high school 500 students or more offer completely adequate programs.

Dr Downey suggests that as many as 30 rural high schools might be brought under a central "supervising principal. He says each "campus" on the high school complex would offer only some courses or "one grades. The school year would be divided into terms to concentrate on certain subjects Residences would have to be provided to house students for periods from a day to a semester

The report was thorough, frank, refreshing in its novelty and probably valid.

It will undoubtedly be filed

o o o

Rural and urban delegates came up with another difference of opinion that is now perked in the lap of the provincial government.

The rural spokesmen pointed out that teachers in fine arts and recreation subjects are pretty scarce for small schools And they asked that they be unallowed in certain fields be allowed to teach with or without the credentials called for by the department. The city delegates who have fully qualified people in all fields, said no

o o o

Any fears the government or the liquor control board may have had about a big increase in liquor consumption in the Christmas season future The fact is that most of the hotel rooms are not interested in much entertainment than their patrons already provide

Liquor board chairman Peter Elliott runs applecarts for slinging and swinging he's been so slow to come on this he hasn't been able to lay down ground rules on what's proper and what isn't.

MacDuff . . .

to walk out—they'll walk in. If you bar that door, they'll break it down to walk out", he told the conference

"This", he said, "is the major lesson of Saskatchewan If it is not learned we will be in danger of going through the same thing again and that would be very unfortunate for Canada"

Dr Wolfe let fire with this verbal blast: "There has been a lot of nonsense spoken in recent years about government spending, about medical care plans and their supposed evils".

BEST OF BOTH WORLDS

He defended the scheme now operating in Saskatchewan. He said, "There is no reason why we in Canada cannot have the best of all medical worlds—a national plan run by the provinces, an intelligent and informed public and satisfied, self-governing health professions".

Dr Wolfe added however, "Men having said all this, I am not naive enough, having lived through the medical care crisis in Saskatchewan, to believe that these matters can be carried out without major conflict both between doctors and governments between the profession and the public".

Dr. Hastings agreed that there would be considerable controversy in the future before the medicare plan finally became operative. He said, "The shrinkwing is by no means over and the sound and fury may well rise to new crescendos in the months ahead, but of this and result there can no longer be any doubt.

EVENTUALLY, ANYWAY

Before it ended, the conference set out the economic reasons why Canadians would in the end turn to a government-sponsored medicare program. Prof. J. J. Maddan of the Economics Department at Guelph University also argued that Canada has sufficient doctors to supply the needs that would result from the nation-wide program. He admitted that the plan at first would lead to longer queues for physicians' services But after a decade the country would have been able to step up its training of qualified young men and women to meet the mounting demands. he believed

As to cost, the economist believed that by 1991 all Canadians on the average, would be getting three time as much health service as they did in 1961. But first Canada must go through the period of stormy controversy The word coming out of the conference seemed to suggest that after the sound and fury had abated—as abate it must—all will be well, both physically and economically

HENDERSON —In loving memory of Jason Henderson, who passed away December 11, 1964, and Allan Henderson, who passed away December 22, 1964.

Not dead—oh no, but home beyond the shadows.
Into the full clear light,
Far over time with mist and cloud and tempest.
Where all is calm and bright.
Not even sighing called to dead by mortal.
In Heaven's wondrous day.
Not still and senseless — stopped from earth's rough places.
To walk the King's highway.
Not silent, nor passed out of earth's hearing.
Not dumb, with lips that never sang.
Not lonely, dearly loved and dearly loving.
Amid the white-robed throng.
But not forgetful—keeping fondest remembrance.
Of dear ones left awhile.
And thinking gladly to the bright shore.
With hand-clasp and with smile.
—Ever remembered and waiting for that glad re-union Father, Marvin, Melvin and Lorna, Wilard and Ruth. 15p-3127

Modern etiquette

(By Roberta Lee)

Q What should the bridegroom and his best man at a formal wedding do with their gloves during the ceremony?

A. The bridegroom removes his right glove and holds it in his left hand. The best man does not remove his gloves. If it is a double-ring ceremony, the groom removes both gloves, holding them in his left hand, and then switching to the right hand at the time his bride places his ring on his finger.

Q. Is it really considered in good taste to extend any and all kinds of invitations over the telephone?

A. One may use the telephone for almost any kind of invitation, with the exception of formal ones.

Q. When serving a fruit juice as the first course at the dinner table, where is the glass placed?

A. On the place plate — not with the water glass.

Q Is it necessary to acknowledge the receipt of birthday or anniversary cards?

A. If by this you mean notes of acknowledgement, no. But, when next you happen to meet the senders of such greetings, it is always good manners to mention that their cards were received and appreciated.

Q. Is it really the accepted form for a woman to use her maiden name as her middle name after she has married?

A. This is the established custom. In other words, after Ruth Anne Madison marries Robert Williams, she then becomes Ruth Madison Williams.

Q. When sitting at the bar in a cocktail lounge, is one supposed to tip the bar man?

A. While not necessary, it still seems to be expected in some places — especially when one's change is returned in a small tray.

Where is there a tomorrow for the hundreds of thousands of children around the world who only know each today as a further span of misery, distress, disease, hunger and illiteracy! Tomorrow is in the hands of every humanitarian Canadian who knows that a gift today, might mean that an underprivileged child will survive tomorrow. Please give generously to the Canadian Save the Children Fund, 70 Hayter Street, Toronto.

Modern etiquette

(By Roberta Lee)

Q. What should the bridegroom and his best man at a formal wedding do with their gloves during the ceremony?

A. The bridegroom removes his right glove and holds it in his left hand The best man does not remove his gloves. If it is a double-ring ceremony, the groom removes both gloves, holding them in his left hand, and then switching to the right hand at the time his bride places his ring on his finger

Q. Is it really considered in good taste to extend any and all kinds of invitations over the telephone?

A. One may use the telephone for almost any kind of invitation, with the exception of formal ones.

Q. When serving a fruit juice as the first course at the dinner table, where is the glass placed?

A. On the place plate — not with the water glass.

Q. Is it necessary to acknowledge the receipt of birthday or anniversary cards?

A. If by this you mean notes of acknowledgement, no. But, when next you happen to meet the senders of such greetings, it is always good manners to mention that their cards were received and appreciated.

Q. Is it really the accepted form for a woman to use her maiden name as her middle name after she has married?

A. This is the established custom. In other words, after Ruth Anne Madison marries Robert Williams, she then becomes Ruth Madison Williams.

Q. When sitting at the bar in a cocktail lounge, is one supposed to tip the bar man?

Q. I have noticed some persons using their fingers as "pushers" to help them get food onto their forks. How about this?

Q. Are the folded thank-you cards proper for acknowledging wedding gifts?

A. A folded card with "thank you" imprinted on the face is all right — but a handwritten personal message MUST be added.

BOWLING WITH THE STARS

by Ron Winger AMF Staff of Champions

Courtesy On The Lanes

Every sport has some rules of etiquette or fair play, and bowling is no exception. You and your friends will enjoy the game more if you eliminate situations which subtract from the fun in bowling.

Generally speaking, the bowler on the right has the right-of-way, but the bowler on the left has preference if shooting a spare. When another person is on the approach ready to bowl, don't cross in front of him, call to another bowler or in any way distract the bowler who is concentrating in the stance position.

To league bowlers I say, "make sure you are on time". You should develop a habit of arriving at your bowling center about 15 or 20 minutes before you are scheduled to bowl. This will give you ample time for changing shoes, conversation and other necessary details and still enable you to be on your lanes ready to bowl at the prescribed time. Remember that punctuality is admired on the lanes as well as off.

To all bowlers, I say confine your gyrations to your own lanes. It is true we all like to use "Body English" during our game but don't do so by infringing on the rights of someone else who is bowling on another lane.

Solve a crime . . .

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

As you approach the front door of the house, you can see the bullet hole in the panel of the door is in a direct line with your chest, a grim reminder of what happened to the victim whose shooting you are now investigating. You step to one side as you press the bell.

A high-pitched feminine voice calls out nervously, "Who is it?"

After identifying yourself in low calm tones, the door swings open revealing a tall, thin, grey-haired woman of about 55 who looks you over very carefully before finally inviting you inside. You follow her into a sitting room before you tell her, "I have good news for you. Your brother will probably come through all right. The bullet has been extracted, and he's responding very well to treatment."

"That's just fine" she responds unemotionally, and then settles her thin shoulders farther back into her chair. "I suppose you've come for the full story of what happened?"

You nod. "All I know is that your brother is 50 years old, that he was to have been married next week and that he is now lying in the hospital with a bullet wound in his chest . . . accidentally shot by you".

"Yes", Mary Mansfield shakes her head vigorously. "George and I have lived here all our lives . . . very happily, too, until he took up with that red-haired widow. No fool like an old fool . . . and him too infatuated to see that all she wants is his money!"

"Well, George was out late again last night . . . out with HER. It was about midnight when I heard someone fumbling at the front door. I went to the door and called out, 'Who's there?' several times, but there was no answer. So I hurried back to my room and got my loaded gun from my night table. We've had trouble from time to time with prowlers in this neighborhood. I ran back to the door again, called out once more, and when there still was no answer at all, I fired through the door . . . just to frighten the intruder away. You can imagine my horror when I heard a groan, the sound of a falling body, and upon opening the door saw George himself lying there!" She dabs at her eyes with a lace-edged handkerchief.

"It's odd that he didn't answer when you called out", you remark.

"Well, he may have said something I didn't hear him. My hearing isn't very good. All I could see was the door knob turning back and forth, and I was frightened.

You gaze hard at Mary Mansfield, and say, "I think you'd better pray hard for your brother's recovery, or you'll be facing a charge of murder!"

Why?

SOLUTION

Mary Mansfield stated that her hearing may have prevented her from detecting her brother's reply to her cries of "Who's there?" But she had no trouble hearing your low-pitched introduction of yourself when you rang the bell, and she heard her brother's groan when she shot him and the sound of his falling body. Her motive seems clear-cut, too—fear of losing a share of her brother's money if he married.

THE WHITE MALLARDS

Some twelve years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Art Moorby of the Round Hill district had one lone little white duck. When spring came, she spent her days on a roadside pond, swimming and feeding on the insects and roots in the water. In the evenings she would return home to feed with Mrs. Moorby's hens on the grain provided for them.

One day a wild mallard drake settled on the pond, liked the surroundings and the company, so decided to stay. In due time the hen made her nest, laid her eggs and hatched nine ducklings, every one of them wearing the garb of the mallard.

In the fall, the white duck led her flock back to the farmyard to feed on the grain with the hens. On one of these occasions they were rounded up and captured. They were wing clipped and six of them were sent to the Bowthorpe Sanctuary east of Round Hill to join with the ducks on that Sanctuary.

There in spring the wild mallards alight and mingle with the grounded ducks. And there in the nesting season mallard hens, both wing-clipped and full-winged birds, make their nests in any available cover—in the goose pens, the deer pens, under the evergreens, in the raspberry patch, or any other likely place. When the ducklings hatch, the mallard hens take them to one of the five waterholes close to the buildings where feed is available. They appear with from two to fourteen ducklings.

It was not until two years after the introduction of the Moorby birds that white ducklings appeared in some mallard flocks. These grew up to become the white ducks with the black eyes, similar in size, weight and habits to the wild birds.

In recent years, more and more white birds appear in the mallard flocks, and each year some are left to fly high and wide with the wild flocks. It is one of these birds that is occasionally brought down by a hunter's gun.

Stan Bosmans dies of sudden seizure

Sudden collapse Sunday evening took the life of Stanley Emil Bosmans, well known in Camrose and Round Hill, where he had lived all his life. He had just returned from a trip fishing through the ice of Pigeon Lake, and had gone home with Mr. M. Sich to prepare the fish caught when he was stricken. He was 58.

Born July 14, 1907, Mr. Bosmans was the son of the founder of Round Hill, the late Emil Bosmans and Mrs. Bosmans, who immigrated from Belgium. Growing up in Round Hill, he received his education there, then went to the University of Alberta where he obtained a degree in commerce.

Mr. Bosmans took over control of the family store in Round Hill, which had for years been a centre for a vast trading area to the East. Established in 1902, it was the jumping off point between Saskatoon and Wetaskiwin, and served countless settlers as they moved into the area. When Mr. Bosmans moved to Camrose, he turned the store over to his nephew, Alvin LaBelle, and it continued in business until this spring, when it finally closed down after 63 years.

Mr. Bosmans moved to Camrose in 1951 and assumed control of Camrose Drugs on the death of his father-in-law, the late Irving Hills, charting its course through the complete switch-over from the old store through the building program to the modern premises on the corner of Main Street.

In addition, he operated a farm south of town on which he established one of the most modern pig breeding businesses in the area.

Devoted to his family and a small circle of friends, Mr. Bosmans lived quietly and unostentatiously, but many times proved benefactor to those in need. He was a member of the Elks Lodge in Round Hill and of the Masonic Lodge in Camrose.

Over many years he was an ardent fisherman, and in his earlier years was known as a keen hunter, and an exceptionally able shot.

He is survived by his wife, Myrtle, a daughter, Joan, two sisters, Mrs. A. (Eva) LaBelle, Edson, and Mrs. L. Telford of Edmonton. Besides his parents, he was predeceased by a brother George at Paschendaele, and a sister, Stella, 35 years years ago.

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at 1:00 o'clock from Camrose United Church, with the Rev. Frank McPhee officiating. Burial followed in Camrose Cemetery, with Burgar's Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

'Housewarming' fete: Mr. & Mrs. O. Hurum

(Mrs. G. H. Taylor)

HOLDEN — A surprise housewarming party was held Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hurum, who have recently moved into Holden from their farm.

After attending Bible study at the Lutheran Church, members of the congregation visited with Mr. and Mrs Hurum to wish them success in their new home. Other invited guests were Mrs. Bob Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Laden.

The evening was spent pleasantly by singing Christmas carols, and later Pastor S. Rude made the presentation of a purse of money to Mr. and Mrs. Hurum to purchase something for the home, and also offered the best wishes for happiness from all present. The evening was brought to a pleasant conclusion with the ladies of the church serving a delicious lunch.

WESTERN FLOWERS. Two new Canada stamps to be released in January will feature floral emblems and armorial bearings of the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta. Top shows wild rose adopted as official emblem of Alberta in 1930, and bottom pictures the prairie lily, Saskatchewan's floral emblem since 1941.

Stan Bosmans dies of sudden seizure

Sudden collapse Sunday evening took the life of Stanley Emil Bosmans, well known in Camrose and Round Hill, where he had lived all his life. He had just returned from a trip fishing through the ice of Pigeon Lake, and had gone home with Mr. M. Sick to prepare the fish caught when he was stricken. He was 58.

Born July 14, 1907, Mr. Bosmans was the son of the founder of Round Hill, the late Emil Bosmans and Mrs. Bosmans, who immigrated from Belgium. Growing up in Round Hill, he received his education there, then went to the University of Alberta where he obtained a degree in commerce.

Mr. Bosmans took over control of the family store in Round Hill, which has, for years been a centre for a vast trading area to the East. Established in 1902, it was the jumping off point between Saskatoon and Wetaskiwin, and served countless settlers as they moved into the area. When Mr. Bosmans moved to Camrose, he turned the store over to his nephew, Alvin LaBelle, and it continued in business until this spring, when it finally closed down after 63 years.

Mr. Bosmans moved to Camrose in 1951 and assumed control of Camrose Drugs on the death of his father-in-law, the late Irving Hills, charting its course through the complete switch-over from the old store through the building program to the modern premises on the corner of Main Street.

In addition, he operated a farm south of town on which he established one of the most modern pig breeding businesses in the area.

Devoted to his family and a small circle of friends, Mr. Bosmans lived quietly and unostentatiously, but many times proved benefactor to those in need. He was a member of the Elks Lodge in Round Hill and of the Masonic Lodge in Camrose.

Over many years he was an ardent fisherman, and in his earlier years was known as a keen hunter, and an exceptionally able shot.

He is survived by his wife, Myrtle, a daughter, Joan, two sisters, Mrs. A. (Eva) LaBelle, Edson, and Mrs. L. Tolford of Edmonton. Besides his parents, he was predeceased by a brother George at Panchendale, and a sister, Stella, 35 years years ago.

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at 1:00 o'clock from Camrose United Church, with the Rev. Frank McPhee officiating. Burial followed in Camrose Cemetery, with Burgar's Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Poverty in Canada

Seemed rather startling indications of poverty here in Canada were turned up recently in a study conducted by the Canadian Welfare Council for ARDA, or the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Agency of the Canada Department of Forestry.

In some areas the study finds Canada a rural poor outcast on as little as $11.71 per person per month, the entire amount in these cases being made up if welfare and family allowances.

Depending on the broad-load figure income this amounts to only $2.70 per week, or $140 per year. Even compared with some of the world's lowest income groups, this is away down the scale with some of the native peoples.

The study shows families spread across the country in several areas such as Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario and the prairies and comes up with some surprising facts. Whether the underprivileged conditions, according to the survey director, these conditions are rarely from the cause of moral or social degradation, as is commonly supposed. Instead, a single conclusion to be drawn from the present study reports the director is that the poor are not degraded and there is a great loss that can be done to restore to them a just share in the life of the country.

One of the contributing problems is families larger than the average for the country as a whole, with 4.6 or for the region in particular. While the standard family increases income does not, and it must be spread over more persons.

Unemployed 1. have to the often to venture for jobs they are keen to do. Afraid to take a chance, they are resigned to remaining poor at home rather than risk starving in the big cities. Any improvement, they feel, must come as a result of something done by government rather than themselves.

Significantly, almost all families believe education is highly important and want their children to have the best. They accept the fact their children must leave home, and want them well equipped with education to compete elsewhere.

The study was conducted to provide an image of poverty in Canada, so that having first found the problem, some of the answers may be checked out. A 200-page report was tabled only last week at Ottawa, so it is much too early to gauge what actions may be taken. Nonetheless, the image of poverty drawn is one many of us would find hard to comprehend as we hear of ever-increasing costs of living, and ever-escalating wage demands.

The survey director concludes his report with the following statement:

"These people have little feeling of being involved in the major decisions of the country, or even of the locality. They do not belong to many organizations or exercise power. On the other hand they are hardworking and infinitely patient. They have a strong sense of personal and community morality and many have strong emotional ties to the locality. Their behaviour is directed by a sense of obligation to their family and region. They are open to the possibility of change but they are defeated by the sense of inadequacy of their own resources to meet the demands of a changing world."

RE'S TRANSFORMED

OTTAWA.—Canada's Civil Service Commission has just completed the largest examination in its history. Three thousand of those who wrote are already on the staff of the National Employment Service. Another 1,000 hope to be in positions that will pay $4,000 and up to start and 10 courses in $6,000 and $7,200.

For those already with the N.E.S. the examinations will decide their future. They may be promoted right on the same level or to vacancies. Some people may be shifted to transfer to lower jobs. There are several hundred new posts around the country and those who fail either will remain occupying presently classified duties (note obscure) the N.E.S. now after man-made of "temporary phoney appointments fill out forms and sending them for interviews with prospective employers.

This is the first step in a major transformation of the National Employment Service which was transferred from the Unemployment Insurance Commission to the Labour Department last spring. The next step may be a change to a more appropriate name perhaps the National Manpower Commission. The N.E.S. is destined to play a major role in a new organized and upgraded manpower program.

CHANGING PROGRAMS

With unemployment down to about 3 per cent of the Canadian labour force Canada is obviously no longer facing an unemployment problem as it has been known. It is facing an employment problem which is a very different thing and subject to quite different treatment. The objective here is to use limited manpower resources in the most positive manner. The make work programs have gone out the window except for those like winter house building that are designed to move employment from the summer peak to the winter trough.

Manpower programs are not new to the federal department of labour. In these present form they can be said to go back to 1961. In general their objectives were and still are:

1. To determine the future needs of industry in the labour market and see that future entrants into the labour force will meet the shortages.
2. To retrain displaced workers to fill new needs of industry.
3. To plan in advance with industry for adjustments due to new technologies.
4. To provide opportunity for those in employment to upgrade their skills and knowledge to get further basic education.

EMPHASIZES RE-TRAINING

Three of the four objectives dealing with education and training are those of federal provincial efforts. The federal government has assumed a share of the capital cost of new technical and vocational schools on the secondary post secondary school level, a building program which is now nearing its completion. The administrative responsibility for the equipment and maintenance of these schools is left with the provinces. About 30 provinces are using the facilities for training in their own institutions. Some provinces have also established programs to meet the expected labour force needs.

Apprentice training one of the most important in filling new labour market needs. Under the Adult Occupational Training Act of September 1, 1967, the federal government will pay 75 per cent of the cost of training courses given to about 1,000. The provincial governments pay the remaining 25 per cent. The program is being given to about 1,000. The provincial governments pay the remaining 25 per cent. The program is being given to about 1,000.

TRAINING PROGRAM JUMPS

The major adult training program in the treatment of unemployed whose number have jumped almost 50 per cent in the year in spite of the continued unemployment. These courses are all prescribed by the National Employment Service and registrations with the National Employment Service as required. Out of a total 220,000 unemployed Nov. 13 those in training courses numbered only about 60,000. These courses last six months to a year.

In spite of the healthy increase in numbers in this field of unemployed training, that needs and will get a very hard look.

The Manpower Consultative Service was organized in May 1964. It now has 10 projects for 7 of 11 classes in 4 industry and 4 workers under consideration. Over 25,000 workers are involved. The M.C.S. serves industry, workers or both to iron its help on planning changes for adjustments which are going to bring layoffs. It has not yet used many of its services to enforce agreements when the unions feel it is making progress.

In spite of the generally

Through your paper I'd like to be remembered to the people of the Iowa Creek area since I used to be correspondent at that district for many years. Editor, The Mercury

My aunt, Mrs. Lottie Stackhouse has been moved from the Bethel Nursing Home in Brantford to Rosedale Manor in Port Credit, Ont. Will you be kind enough to have the paper sent to this new address.

On behalf of her many friends in the Holden area, will you put a notice in your paper of this change of her address. Before long she will get better attention in the Rosedale Manor Nursing Home and she is very close to the immediate relatives and friends. Her health remains about the same although she is a bed patient. She often speaks of her friends in Holden area and would appreciate a card from them although she could not reply to them.

Now I enjoy reading your paper and looks forward to its coming each week.

Yours sincerely
A. B. Ireland,
Ponoka, Alberta.

And we quote

"But manual labour, though it has certainly been forced on man by necessity, is not in its own nature an evil. Far from it. It is the blessedness of man, his battle and victory; all the healthiness and greatness he has, comes to him by work. Idleness is the general curse, the curse of curses; the opposite of God, who is perpetual worker, and sees that all is very good."

SKIING with DAVE JACOBS

COACH, ALPINE BC TEAM / CANADIAN AMATEUR SKI ASSOCIATION

Now that we are into December and, in most cases, actual skiing is not too far away, the perennial question arises, "What equipment shall I buy?"

Instead of suggesting how equipment should be purchased, in general, I shall present what is new this year and try to help you determine the wide range of items for sale.

In the ski boot market, there is an increasing popularity of buckle boots. These boots providing they do not sell for much less than $50 are an excellent buy from the standpoint of ease of fastening and durability.

The single buckle boot, because of its stiffness and difficulty to break in, is slowly falling into the realm of the skier who skis at least 40 to 50 days per year. The double buckle boot with its wide spaced lacing section to be the answer for the average skier, and increasing in popularity.

The plastic boot, such as the Lange or Rosemont, is probably the piece-setter of the inevitable trend to synthetics in boot manufacture. The only criticism I have heard about the Lange is that it is very stiff, making it difficult to lean forward.

A new innovation is the canted or tilted sole. This is not new to racers as some have been tilting their boots for years to help distribute the weight more evenly onto both the inside and outside edge of the ski.

Most top brand boots will probably eventually incorporate this feature as, generally, it makes it easier to hold the inside edge of the snow in many skiing manoeuvers such as traversing, or snowploughing.

NEXT WEEK: "What's New In Skis"

This Week's Question:

Should exercises be continued after the skiing season begins?

Answer:

It would be wise to continue the exercise program throughout the winter. If you have an office job and don't get much exercise normally, then the weekday exercise sessions will certainly keep you toned up for your weekend skiing and make it all more enjoyable.

Each week Dave Jacobs answers someone's skiing problem.

Send yours to Dave Jacobs, Notre Dame University, B.C., or care of The Canadian Camrose.

Ministik ladies have Christmas party

(Mrs. J. Reddick)

MINISTIK — A most enjoyable afternoon was spent Wednesday when 15 members of the Ministik Ladies' Club gathered at the home of Miss Teresa Regier and Madame Martha Rouyer for their annual Christmas party.

After a brief business session, the afternoon was spent in contests which proved very interesting. These were supplied by Mrs. Pat Peterson, with Madame Kenyer winning the hostess gift. Mrs. Andrew Fergusson presented a "name the horse in Alberta" contest with Mrs. Baden Bowerman and Mrs. Jim Reddick being winners. Mrs. Claude Leach had a most interesting contest of "trees" with Madame Regier also winning this contest. Mrs. S. George had a "pass the parcel" contest with Mrs. Frank Swabey and Miss Teresa Regier as winners.

The gifts which were distributed by Mrs. S. George, as Santa's helper, were under a gaily decorated and lighted tree.

Lunch was served by hostesses Mrs. Pat Peterson, Miss Teresa Regier and Mrs. Jim Reddick, complete with several salads, pickles, sandwiches, cake and cookies and a traditional Christmas cake made by Mrs. Helen Hennessy.

As each lady left for her home, she graciously thanked her hostesses for once again offering their home for this gala affair.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Albert Herricks with roll call being "If I had my life to live over, what would I do?"

DIDSBURY GIRL HONORED FOR ENTERPRISE AND COURAGE

Fifteen-year old Fay Johnston has had complete charge of her home since her mother died four years ago. Ever since she was eleven, she has made a home for her father and brother — and intends to keep on doing so. She has cheerfully taken over the shopping, cooking, baking and a multitude of other household chores.

Undaunted by this great responsibility, Fay has kept her five horses. She exercises, grooms and trains them for entry in various horse shows.

In addition to all this, Fay is active in community affairs. She is a member of the Didsbury Light Horse Association and Westcott Hi-C Group, and in 1964 was chosen Rodeo Queen of the Didsbury Little Britches Rodeo.

We congratulate Fay. Our thanks to Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors for their active co-operation in the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year program, sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies.

WHAT THE FUSS WAS ABOUT While Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger Cats fought it out in Toronto on the Grey Cup game, the old mug they were battling for was seated comfortably behind the wheel of a car belonging to Reg Brown, Toronto Junior Board of Trade executive vice-chairman in charge of public relations. He held custody of the trophy until the East and West had finished the game. This was the sixth time that Hamilton and Winnipeg clashed in a Grey Cup game since 1957.

INDUSTRIAL EMPIRE BUILT ON BRICKS

The story of L. E. Shaw Limited reads like a romance Having celebrated its century mark manufacturing clay products in the maritime provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick during good t. on and bad it is now rated foremost in its industrial field

The re is a mistaken belief that the twentieth century marks the spectacular progress of youth in big business. It was in 1861 that Robert Shaw started manufacturing bricks when he was just 21 years old. Four generations of the Shaw family have expanded the business in a hundred and four years to a nine plant organization with a multi-million dollar annual sales record.

It wasn't always as flourishing as it is now. The century of the company's development was also a century of chaos and disaster. Two world wars and a depression contributed to its struggle for survival while disaster contributed to its success. Need for construction material after the Saint John fire and the Halifax explosion, plus the construction of the Angus L. MacDonald bridge connecting Halifax with the burgeoning city of Dartmouth were responsible for the company's periods of progress.

Robert Shaw's first plant was at Hantsport, Nova Scotia. He built three plants in this area but when the clay became depleted he moved his operation to Avonport. It was there that his son, Lloyd E. Shaw first helped his father and, incidentally, laid the corner stone of his own career in an industry which became his life's work.

Young Lloyd soon established his own business manufacturing bricks in the town of Middleton. Between this venture and the incorporation of L. E. Shaw Limited in 1911, he acted as manager of the Middleton and Avonport plants of the Nova Scotia Clay Works, a business he later took over during the depression.

One might wonder why I became so interested in clay products. For several years during my travels I have visited an attractive pottery shop in a small community called Lantz. Here Alma and Ernst Leversen work and sell their distinctive creations. I want to write about them too, but first I thought I should use this space to tell about their benefactor, the same Lloyd E. Shaw, whose plant is adjacent to their store.

Construction Boom

Camp Gagetown and the nearby new town of Oromocto and the exploding construction now taking place in the maritimes has necessitated expansion of plant facilities. An old plant was converted to manufacture concrete products. A plant at Sydney produces precast concrete units and pipe. At Halifax there is a masonry centre and a major advance in the manufacture of concrete pipe with a rubber gasket is the responsibility of the Lantz plant.

L. E. Shaw passed away in 1959 at the age of 83, leaving behind him a legend of industrial success and public service. The community of Lantz, where well-planned houses for workmen were erected near the plant, plus a school, church and community centre testify to his consideration for employees. These are only part of the memorial to L. E. Shaw. A perpetual one is the contribution his company has made to modern construction.

With increased manufacturing, better processes, skills and equipment, the company's sales position is rapidly expanding. L. E. Shaw Limited products are being shipped by CN to dealers and construction sites far afield from The Maritimes where much of the basic ingredients of its many products are mined.

On the provincial scene

The perennial and tragic problem of level - crossing accidents has come up again

Alberta has led the list of provinces seeking a solution ever since the disaster at Lamont five years ago. More than a dozen devices aimed at preventing train-car crashes have been proposed in that period.

Highways Minister Gordon Taylor again pushed the case for safety last week. He said high-speed diesel passenger units should carry flashing amber lights that can be seen for two or three miles. An application for such an order has been before the Board of Transport Commissioners for two years. And the only word from the board is that the matter is under consideration.

Mr Taylor notes that several persons have died at level crossings during this period of consideration. Two fatal accidents occurred in recent weeks near Hobbema.

Spokesmen for the railways are cool to the idea. One pointed out that CPR's Canadian has carried a white flashing light for some time—and that it apparently has done little good.

Family allowance payments will cost $690 million in the current fiscal year, compared to $382 million 10 years ago and $173 million 20 years ago.

healthy look the manpower programs have been under heavy fire, some of it justified. It has been charged:

That the Labour Department failed to recognize the urgency and had become complacent.

That there was lack of co-ordination between programs.

That the National Employment Service was badly staffed and at doing the job. That programs were misdirected.

If recognition of the faults and gaps is a step forward, the Department has taken that step. It is recognized, for example, that its previous efforts to get men back to work crash programs have been set on foot that were really inadequate. Today, with less unemployment a longer term view is being taken.

Curricula and teaching talent is being reviewed in the technical and vocational schools and training programs are being revised. There has been no revision for five years.

The Department is now doing considerable research to assess what it needs as well as present effectiveness.

The chief complacency, if once justified, now appears to be outdated.

Cut hazards at Xmas

You can keep fire hazards to a minimum in your home for Christmas by following these suggestions from the Alberta Safety Council and your local fire department.

1. When picking a tree, choose a fresh one. Saw off the butt at an angle and inch or more above the original cut. Stand the tree in water from the time you buy it until you dispose of it. Don't rely on chemical preparations to "flame-proof" your tree—none is truly effective. Set the tree away from radiators or fireplace and never where it might block your escape in case of fire.

2. If you choose a plastic tree, be sure it is marked as made of slow-burning materials. If it has a built-in lighting system, it should carry the CSA (Canadian Standards Association) label. Metal trees will conduct electricity, so use only indirect lighting. Lighting strings on the trees may create a dangerous shock hazard.

3. Decorative lighting should be used with care. Check lighting strings for frayed wires, loose connections and broken sockets. Never use wax candles on or near the tree, or with polystyrene foam candle holders or decorations. Turn off tree and other decorative lighting before retiring, or leaving the house.

4. Use non-combustible decorating material (metal, glass, asbestos, etc.) wherever possible. If combustible—like cotton batting, flocking, and paper—be sure they are "flame-proofed".

5. Dispose of gift wrappings promptly

Most important of all, plan in advance the escape measures and still routes needed for the life safety of your family in case of fire.

Beaver council meets re: new road network

A special meeting of Beaver County council was held Friday, Dec. 3rd with Crs. W A Dorin, A L. Gibson, W Kropielnicki, E M Magneson, J H Rothlick and H Weatherill present. The meeting was called to order at 9:45 a.m. by the Reeve, Cr Magneson.

Purpose of the meeting was to deal with the "Scope and Procedure for Rural Road Inventory for Future Road Needs" as outlined in the manual provided by the Dept. of Highways. The manual was read by the secretary-treasurer and some discussion ensued.

A number of engineering firms who had expressed their desire to undertake this work for the County had been contacted and asked to attend the meeting to place before Council their qualifications and proposals.

Associated Engineering Services Ltd represented by R. H. Nicolson, Alberta branch manager and A B Samuel, liaison officer for the company, attended the meeting at 11:00 a.m. They presented a brief, outlining the qualifications of their personnel and also what services they were prepared to provide for the program in question. The estimated cost was quoted as approximately $4,000, of which the provincial government would pay 50%.

K. R. Ford, Professional Engineer, representing Whittaker Carswell & Co. Ltd., attended the meeting at 11:30 a.m. and presented a proposal for engineering services for Rural Road Inventory study for the County with an estimated cost not to exceed $9,300.

At 12 noon W E Stollery representing Canadian Engineering Surveys Ltd. attended the meeting and placed before the Council a Brief outlining its qualifications and how they proposed to carry out the work. The cost was estimated at $6,700 on individual basis, that is, if only the County of Beaver was involved. If another Municipality was connected in the same work there would be a reduction of 10% and from then on a reduction of 5% on the balance as more municipalities entered the unit.

At 2:00 p.m. J. Moor and Mr Reddie representing Underwood McMellan and Associates Ltd placed before the Council its proposal. They intended to depend on a lot of aerial photography and estimated the cost at $3,000 to $4,000 per municipality.

Garry J Takacs, representing W J Francl and Associates interviewed the Council at 2:30 p.m. with its proposals. He stated they were presently conducting a survey in the M.D. of Bonnyville and explained the work in detail. The cost would be based on the number of miles of road in the County and he gave a price not to exceed $5,200.

K M McMillan representing Stanley Associates Engineering Ltd interviewed the Council at 3:00 p.m. putting that firm's proposal before the Council. The size of the proposed study area was discussed and Mr. McMillan felt that three or four municipalities would be satisfactory but that the study area should not be larger. The price quoted by Mr McMillan for the study of the County only was $9,000; on a unit basis the cost would be reduced.

Charles Weir of the firm of Stewart Weir Stewart & Watson interviewed the Council at 4:00 p.m. and discussed the matter of survey in quite some detail.

The interviews being completed, some considerable discussion ensued and it was finally moved by Cr. Weatherill that the County of Beaver #9 does undertake the study regarding the "Rural Road Inventory and Future Road Needs" as outlined by the Dept of Highways. Carried.

It was also moved that Crs. Kropielnicki and Rothlick be appointed the members from the County to the Rural Road Committee. Carried.

The matter of the size of the unit area was discussed and it was finally moved that Municipal Districts of Flagstaff, Provost, Wainwright, Lamont and the Counties of Minburn, Vermilion River and Two Hills be approached in regards to the feasibility of forming one unit. Carried.

The Secretary-Treasurer was requested to contact the various units by telephone, to endeavour to arrange for a meeting of the eight areas involved.

Meeting adjourned at 5:10 p.m.

FROM THE SCRAP BOOK

The following was written Christmas 1926. The words are still applicable today as they were then:

Some Christmas Thoughts

There was no room, the inn was full—
A manger was all they could find;
So He came, a stranger, to teach love to mankind.
The angels knew, the cattle knew,
But the world of man is still blind;
To the Redeemer of mankind
Their vision is blurred,
His voice they have ignored—
They cannot see the guiding star
For oppression, hatred and war;
And not till then, and when
They came to know the babe of Bethlehem
Can we say: "Peace on earth, Goodwill towards men".

Wishing The Mercury staff and all our friends A Merry Christmas and the best for the coming year.—J.W.H

ALBERTA JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE YEAR BULLETIN:

HIGH RIVER GIRL HONORED FOR QUIET BRAVERY

Can a young person lead a normal life in spite of being crippled? Just ask thirteen-year old Joanne Tupkal! She has set an inspiring example to other handicapped youngsters.

Joanne was a polio victim when she was eleven months old. She has spent much of her life in the Alberta Children's Hospital in Calgary, and has undergone nine operations. In spite of wearing a brace and walking with crutches, Joanne recently volunteered for the track team and for the soft ball throw in her school. To earn her Second Class Girl Guide awards, she passed the same tests as children without physical handicaps. She takes part in marching and color parties and even plays dodge ball.

Happy, cheerful and uncomplaining, this enterprising girl has overcome her severe handicap in an exceptional manner.

We congratulate Joanne. Our thanks to Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors for their active co-operation in the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year program, sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies.

This is one of a series of Junior Citizen Award announcements. Our special thanks to C. A. Clark, Editor of the High River Times, and to Joanne's nominators, Mrs. George Fisher and Mrs. H. J. Kinzell of High River.

Goodies for Christmas

COCOA HINTS

Make wonderful Yuletide treats with these Cocoa quickies. Packed in festive boxes, these are welcome Christmas gifts. Perhaps you would prefer to delight your own family with holiday eating!

Chocolate Nougat—a recipe for the children to make—no hard beating needed and no cooking!

Mix together in large bowl: 1 cup peanut butter, ⅜ cup corn syrup and ½ tsp. vanilla. Add 1 cup sifted icing sugar and ⅓ cup sifted Cocoa; blend into peanut butter mixture. Add 1 cup skim milk powder; knead with hands to mix well. Place on board and knead until smooth. Pat out to ½-inch thickness; allow to set 10 minutes. Cut into squares with sharp knife Yield: 2 pounds.

Choco Macaroons—a quick way to make a deliciously different macaroon—no baking required.

Combine in large 2-quart saucepan 2 cups brown sugar, ½ cup Cocoa, ½ cup shortening, ½ cup milk and ½ tsp salt. Bring to a boil over medium heat; boil 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool slightly and add 1 tsp. vanilla. Add 2 cups rolled oats and 1 cup chopped coconut. Stir until well mixed. Drop by teaspoonfuls on waxed paper. Allow to stand until firm about 35 minutes. Yield: 2½ dozen.

VERY SECRET WEAPON

When Scots are available, why use codes? That seems to be the moral of recent excitement off the Highland coasts. Scottish fishermen found foreign poachers in their very best fishing grounds. Scots wanted to warn other ships in their fleet without tipping off the Russians. Scots radioed in Gaelic. Scots won the day. This seems almost too simple a solution in an age of computers and such. But then it's thriftier.

Modern etiquette . .

Q. How does a guest know when to begin eating at a dinner?

A. It is generally considered the courteous thing to wait until all the others have been served, either at the beginning of a meal or at the beginning of a new course, before starting to eat. Usually the hostess is the first to begin, which gives the others the signal to "dig in".

Q. When a man is standing in an elevator in an office building, and a woman friend enters, should he remove his hat?

A. He should, of course, lift his hat in greeting her. But custom and etiquette do not require that he remove his hat in a business elevator.

Q. My father is going to serve as best man at my wedding. Do you think I should give him a gift of some kind for this occasion, just as I shall for my ushers?

A. I recommend you do this. Your Dad will surely be pleased to receive something he can use or wear as a reminder of the important part he played at his son's wedding.

Q. When women, already seated at luncheon table, are introduced to one another, do they shake hands seated, when it is convenient to do so?

A. No, they should merely bow. It is much too awkward to reach across a table or across someone else to shake hands.

The southern prairies hold the record for the highest temperature ever recorded in Canada, 115 degrees.

BRUCELLOSIS CONTROL AREA

County of Beaver No. 9

TO CATTLE OWNERS—

In October, 1960, a General test of all herds was commenced for the eradication of Brucellosis. The Area was Certified for a period of three years on this test.

Since that time, two programs were instituted to maintain the health status of your cattle:

Herds which show reactions on either of these tests are shipped for slaughter are marked and recorded in the owner's name, a blood sample is collected on slaughter and the results are recorded on the owner's herd file.

2. On the Brucellosis Ring Test for Cream and Milk (H.R.T.) samples are collected at Creameries and Dairy plants periodically and recorded for each shipper in the same manner.

Herds not qualifying under these two programs will require then blood tested, by the use of these programs and the blood tiring of previous infected herds, the Area was Re-Certified until August, 1967.

An Area, such as County of Beaver #9, which has had one re-certification, can become a Brucellosis Free Area for a period of five years if certain requirements are met.

If our records show that you have had 3 Negative Cream or Milk Ring tests in the 18 months prior to August, 1967, or if we have reports of at least 5% per annum of older breeding stock from your herd under the M.C.T. program, then no test will be required on your herd.

Herds not qualifying under these two programs will require a Blood Test before August, 1967.

We will greatly appreciate your co-operation if an additional re-test of your herd is required.

It would be to your benefit that all slaughter cows are back-tagged at marketing outlets. (13-tc) schools in the County close for Christmas vacation at 3:30 p.m. on Dec. 23, and reopen at 9:00 a.m. Jan. 3.

In regards to the bus service from Bruce school to Holden, the Superintendent reported that this service seemed to work out very well, the only complaint being that the buses were arriving at Bruce somewhat early in the morning, this posing a problem in keeping the students occupied until they were ready to go to Holden.

A letter from the Tofield Historical Society petitioning the County of Beaver No. 9 to do all in its power to have the original Tofield School District No 276 restored to the present Tofield School District No. 1890. The letter stated that the original Tofield School District was formed in 1890 under the government of the Northwest Territory and became known as the Tofield School District No. 276. The school was situated on the west side of the N.W quarter of Sec 8-51-18-W4th. this school served the district north and south of it. In the spring of 1903 it became necessary to make more room for pupils, so the Lake Shore School District was formed, thus dividing the present school district. The Tofield School District then decided to build a school on the S.E. corner of Sec 36-50-19-W4th. This school opened in the fall of 1905, known as Tofield School District No 276. By the fall of 1907 the Village had grown so that two new rooms were needed, and arrangements were made for the junior pupils to attend school in the Village and the senior pupils to attend the country school In 1909 a four-room school was built in the Village and the then present school was moved to the newly-formed Ingram School District situated on the S.W corner of S.W 30-50-18-W4th and the School District No 276 went with the school, being applied to the Ingram School District. The Tofield Village School got the number 1929. The fact is that the number of the school district indicated the order in which the schools were built so that the original Tofield school would be the 276th school in the Northwest Territories This, of course, is a historical fact that should be cherished, and endeavors should be made to have the original number allocated to the Tofield School District

Mr. Pike stated that he had discussed the matter with the Deputy Minister of Education, who had stated that, if the School Committee had no objection, the request would be acceded to and the Tofield School District would again be known as No. 276.

Moved and carried that application be made to the Dept. of Education to have the original School District No. 276 restored to the Tofield School District

In regards to the alterations at the Viking School for the Administration Centre, Mr. Pike stated that Nick Shihinski was of the opinion that he and his crew could very well take care of this alteration work durnig the winter. He also stated that Stan Kubik had inquired if he could get a van for his men to travel from Ryley to Viking during the construction work at Viking, and arrangements were made with the bus supervisor to provide a 36-passenger bus for this purpose.

Moved and carried that the alterations for the Administration Centre for Viking school be done by the County Maintenance crew and that a crew vehicle be furnished to Stan Kubuk while the construction to the Viking school addition is in progress.

Milk Dispenser

Henry Page, manager of Palm Dairies Limited Plant at Tofield, and W. W. Gordon, representing Palm Dairies Limited at Edmonton, attended the meeting at this time at the request of the Superintendent, concerning the milk dispensers at Tofield, Ryley and Holden Cal Annis, Principal of the Tofield School, and Lars Olson, Principal at the Holden School, were also in attendance Mr Annis complained of the quality of milk and the fact that at times the bottles were very dirty with milk having been spilt over them and then the dust accumulating in the moisture He also complained about the accounting Lars Olson had somewhat similar complaints Mr Gordon stated that the had been no written contract when in 1961 the Palm Dairies started to supply milk to the schools The commission was to be one cent per bottle the first year and 1½ cents the year after with no charge for broken bottles. Some considerable discussion ensued and it appeared that the main complaint was in the accounting and that the commission was not being returned as calculated by the schools At this time Mr Gordon offered to sell the refrigeration units at $200 apiece The cost price had been $675 apiece in 1961. He offered to sell these units for a payment of $10 per month for the 18 months in the school year, and a commission, at 3 cents per bottle. After Mr. Page and Mr Gordon retired the question of purchasing the refrigerator units were discussed and it was suggested that if the County would purchase the units and allow the schools to retain the full commission, this would be placed in a separate bank account to be used for library purposes

Moved and carried that an offer be made to Palm Dairy Limited to purchase the three refrigerator units for $500 cash, payable Jan 1st, 1966.

Moved and carried that each school be allowed to retain the commission. 3 cents per bottle, such commission to be deducted at source and to be used for library purposes

Mr Olson brought up the ruling that a teacher was required to follow the school bus, when it was transporting pupils on extra curricular activities, and that a certain amount of complaints were made and that, if a mileage payment was considered, it might be easier to get teachers to do this duty. However, he stated that this was not too crucial but that he had been requested by the Principals' Association to bring this up with the School Committee Mr Olson was reminded that this provision had been made more or less at the request of the teachers so that the school bus could be used for extra curricular activities even if the weather conditions were not entirely satisfactory

Mr Simson volunteered to attend the Principals' meeting on January 3rd

Cr Gibson and Mr Stinson reported on the A.T.A. Convention which they had attended

Moved and carried that the report be accepted, and that a letter of appreciation be forwarded to the A.T.A. for having acted as host for the School Committee

The matter of the storage at the Imschenger occupied by Mrs. Carpenter was brought up, a larger entrance door being needed so as to make it easier to drive the car into the garage Also the fact that H Quinton had been renting part of this garage and that he still wanted to rent the west end of the building which was partitioned off from the rest of the garage

Moved and carried that the part of the garage in question be rented to Mr. Quinton for $5 per month subject to 30 days notice

This being Cr Magnuson's last School Committee meeting, the Chairman Cr Roddick, expressed the thanks of the School Committee members for the work that Cr Magnuson had done on the School Committee since the County's inception in January of 1950, and wished him the best in his retirement Cr Magnuson replied, thanking the Chairman for his kind remarks, and stating that he hoped that he had in some small way been able to contribute something to the County's School System.

Go easy on those iceballs

Hon Dr J Donovan Ross Alberta Minister of Health, recently warned Albertans against the use of plastic ice balls or similar articles that have recently come onto the market for use in drinks. Dr Ross stated the water used in the plastic of these balls particularly those from Asiatic sources, has in some cases proved to be a source of infection and the general public is advised to refrain from buying or using them. He also suggested that retailers and wholesalers might co-operate in preventing the spread of infection from this source by withdrawing existing stocks presently offered for sale.

'First' for Ryley as new elevator opened

The Village of Ryley was the scene of a "first" Friday afternoon when the Alberta Pacific Grain Co. officially opened its new grain elevator. This marked the first time, according to AP officials, that any of the company's elevators has had an official opening.

CUTS RIBBON

Handling the scissors for the ribbon-cutting ceremony, with a good number of Ryley and district residents in attendance, was the deputy reeve of the County of Beaver, W. Kropielnicki.

On hand, representing the company, were Cliff McArthur, general manager, Al Meston, manager; Vern Graff, divisional superintendent; Hugh Johnston, manager of retail department; Mike Bowie, inspection department, and Olaf Bruce, travelling superintendent. All officials with the exception of Mr. Bruce are from Calgary. Mr. Bruce works out of Edmonton.

The new elevator is situated adjacent to and immediately west of the first AP elevator in Ryley. Started last September and completed about the middle of last month, the new elevator has a capacity of about 58,000 bushels of grain. Total capacity of the new and old units, along with two annexes, will be in the neighborhood of 148,000 bushels. One man, Pete Wiens, will operate both elevators. Mr. Wiens has been agent at Ryley for about 10 years.

Following the ribbon-cutting ceremony, the first load of grain to be dumped was hauled in by Victor Romaniuk, a Ryley district farmer.

On Friday, Dec. 10th, the Salisbury and Tofield basketball teams met in Tofield for two well-played exhibition games. The Salisbury girls' team went home the victors with a score of 22 to 10, while the Tofield boys won another hard-earned game, 42 to 38 from Salisbury.

The next evening, Saturday, the Tofield gym was the scene of the high school Christmas party. The dance was well-attended and the music supplied by CJCA disc jockies, Brian and Bob Gibbons. A good time was had by all and it is hoped that there will soon be another such party.

John Thomsons celebrate 32nd wedding anniversary

On Saturday evening, Dec. 11, relatives, friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs John Thomson to help them celebrate their 32nd wedding anniversary, the actual date of the anniversary being December 5th

There was, apparently, quite a difference in the weather now and on their wedding day as the winter of 1933 was very cold. Even their flowers which were transported from the station by team and sleigh caused a great deal of concern in the freezing weather, but they somehow weathered the elements. The bridal attendants also had a long cold drive in order to be present.

Dorothy and John received a lovely bouquet of red carnations from their son Donald, which very proudly graced the kitchen table.

To start the evening's festivities, a red corsage tied with a white ribbon bow was pinned on the bride of 1933, and a shimmering white chrysanthemum on the groom. A quiz contest was enjoyed by all, wherein contestants teamed the answer with articles laid on the table. Russell Ferguson and Mrs. Reg. Crispin were the winners.

An interesting story was read on the happy couple's courtship and wedding, which caused much hilarity and a little reminiscing. John replied very capably to this.

Dorothy and John were married in Dorothy's parental home, the Crawford Baptists. The Rev Albert Wallis performed the ceremony and Russell and Mabel Ferguson were their attendants. They were both present at this party.

The usual poetry was read and nearly everyone present had a humorous anecdote to relate. A very lovely lunch was served and pictures were taken of John and Dorothy cutting their cake, which was prettily decorated in Christmas pastels, with a miniature bride and groom holding a big heart with the figures "32" inscribed on it.

Everyone voted an enjoyable evening, and departed for home wishing John and Dorothy many more happy years together

Harboway - Lawson wedding solemnized at Tofield

The Tofield United Church was the scene of a double-ring ceremony on November 6th, uniting in marriage Verna Edith, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M Lawson, and William Harboway, son of Mr and Mrs. S Harboway of Edmonton. Rev Wm McDonald officiated. Mrs. Hinson was the organist, and during the signing of the register Vernon Walker sang "The Wedding Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a floor-length gown of white peau de soie trimmed with seed pearls and styled with a scooped neckline and lily-point sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a crown headpiece. Her jewellery consisted of a pearl necklace, a gift from the groom, and she carried a bouquet of Colonial roses with white streamers covered with rosebuds

The bride's attendants were Miss Judy Mitchell, a friend, as maid of honor, Miss Irene Lawson, a sister of the bride, and Miss Louise Moore, a friend, as bridesmaids. They wore identical floor-length gowns of red silk velvet with matching headpieces and carried bouquets of white carnations. The flower girl was little Shannon Nickols, cousin of the bride, who wore a white velvet dress and carried white carnations

The groom's attendants were a friend Zane Pajak, Dennis Lawson, a brother of the bride, and Alex Harboway, the groom's brother. Ushers were Wesley Lawson and Andy Harboway

The bride's mother chose a rosewood ensemble of lace over crepe styled with a bolero jacket. She wore black accessories and a corsage of white orchids. The groom's mother wore a double-knit suit of red with matching accessories, and white orchids on corsage.

Following the wedding a reception for 90 guests was held in the church parlors, catered by the Ketchamont U.C.W. The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake surrounded by candles. The cake was made by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Annie McGinitie, and beautifully decorated by Mrs. Henry McGinitie. Master of ceremonies was Zane Pajak, and toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. McDonald, to which the groom ably responded. A telegram of congratulations was read from the bride's Aunt Edna at the West Coast. During the reception Mr Walker sang "I'll Walk Beside You". Mrs. Peter Brown, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

Out of the district guests were from Calgary, Olds, Camrose, Edmonton, Evansburg, Whitecourt and Holden.

The happy couple will make their home in Edmonton.

Emergency measures unit to complete police plan

The meeting of the County of Beaver No. 9 Emergency Measures Unit meeting held in Ryley on December 8th agreed that a police plan be completed, and that assistance from Northern Zone Headquarters be requested in this regard.

George Taylor advised that a welfare plan had been completed.

The secretary said he had received no information in reply to a request regarding the casualty collecting units.

Fred Thompson said these units had now been split [illegible] and assigned to various areas. There are about 25 units assigned to various districts in Northern Zone. He said that he would take the unit's request if it still wanted these collecting units. It was agreed to ask for two units.

Father Scriven advised he had a rescue course set to start Jan. 10th.

The secretary read a letter from the Town of Viking advising that David Dorward would replace Selmer Hafso as the town representative on the unit committee. It was agreed Mr Dorward be accepted on the unit committee.

Fred Thompson then presented the annual progress report for 1965 for completion. This report was gone over quite thoroughly and brought up to date as regards to personnel.

The 1966-67 Financial Assistance Program was then completed. It showed proposed expenditures as follows: personal service, $1,400; travel, $250; rent and utilities, $20, candidate's travel, $50, training supplies, $5. Total $1,785.

GENE THIRSK

Gene Thirsk this week became the sales representative in Tofield, Ryley and Holden for The Tofield Mercury.

Province orders shorter work-week

Effective January 1, 1966, a maximum 44-hour work week in industry becomes uniform throughout Alberta. Effective July 1, 1966, a $1 an hour minimum wage in industry becomes standard throughout the province by order of the Board of Industrial Relations.

Maximum hours of work in areas of 5,000 population and less, are reduced from a 9-hour day and a 48-hour week to a maximum 9-hour day and 44-hour week, effective January 1, 1966. In 1952 the 44-hour week first became effective in Alberta when the Board ordered a 44-hour week in the cities of Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat. In 1961 a 44-hour week was extended to all cities, towns and villages having a population over 5,000. The new order makes a maximum 44-hour work week mandatory in Alberta.

Maximum hours of work for those employed in the following industries are reduced from 208 to 191 hours in a month effective January 1, 1966: geophysical exploration, land surveying, oil well servicing, highway construction (maximum 10-hour day), saw mills from November 1 to March 31 (maximum 9-hour day) and day-labor camps (maximum 10-hour day).

The minimum hourly wage for workers in industry in areas of population of 5,000 and under is increased from 85c to 90c effective January 1, 1966, and $1 an hour in July. Farm labourers, domestic servants, municipal police and those who come within the application of the federal labor code are excluded from provisions of the new order.

Hi school hi-lites

(Elaine Walker)

This Friday the Viking and Tofield basketball teams will meet in Tofield. Everyone is invited to attend.

On Saturday the T.P.C. Zone Curling Playoffs will be held in Ryley beginning at 9:00 a.m. Tofield will be represented by the team of Greg Whyte, Brian McFadzean, Alan Everitt and Dale Christensen. This same team represented Tofield in the A.C.A. Christmas bonspiel held in Edmonton. Although they did not finish in the prizes, they made a very creditable showing.

The new trophy donated by Harold Weatherill of Deborah Hereford Farms has arrived and will be presented each year to the league champions of the high school boys' basketball games.

At the high school mixed bonspiel to be held on March 5th a new trophy will be presented. The trophy was donated by the Gallinger Farms and is on display in the Tofield High School. The replacement was necessary due to the fact that the Tofield High School has won the original Killearn Trophy for three years in succession and therefore eligible to keep it.

The Tofield Students' Union wishes to thank these generous, public-minded citizens for their continued support of the activities of our school.

School district numbers change

H. Alf Pike, superintendent of schools for the County of Beaver, advised The Mercury there has been a switch in the numbering of two school districts, one of which is Tofield.

Tofield, formerly number 1909, will now be No. 376. Ingram school district, formerly No. 376, will now be No. 1909.

The change became effective Dec. 20th, according to Mr. Pike.

Rural fire Ass'n to meet soon

The annual meeting of the Tofield Rural Fire Association will be held next Wednesday in the Tofield Legion Hall at 1.30 p.m. sharp. There may have to be some changes made in the by-laws to meet changing conditions.

Members should be present to assure that business is being looked after efficiently. "If anyone has any beefs, the annual meeting is the place to air them", says President Elmer Googlein.

There were fires at the farms of three members, and one church fire, all of which were attended during the year.

All members of the present Times staff will continue with the firm. In addition, John Mohler of Camrose has taken charge of the mechanical production of The Times, and will be moving his family to that city in the near future. Angus Barlow, advertising director of The Canadian, will be in charge of advertising sales in Wetaskiwin on a part-time basis, working with the present sales representatives in Wetaskiwin.

FUA, FWUA meet jointly

At the December 14th joint meeting of Tofield FUA and FWUA the two delegates to the annual convention, G. Abernethy and Herb McAdoo, gave their reports of the highlights and main resolutions that came before the convention. The men served a delicious turkey lunch.

For the meeting next Tuesday, it was agreed that Bill Harper be asked to show slides of his recent trip across China. From reports of those who have seen these slides, they are very interesting and well worth seeing.

This meeting is to start sharp at 8:00 p.m., with the pictures being shown first and a short annual meeting to follow. Mr. Harper is coming quite a distance, so members are asked to be courteous and give him a good turn-out. Come and bring a neighbor suggests the president, or better still, bring two.

It is hoped the ladies will again be present. Meeting place is Tofield Legion Hall.

Community league has progressive year in '65

Tofield Community League's annual meeting on January 4, was preceded by a delicious and much-enjoyed pot-luck supper arranged by D. W. Jacobs and Reid Burchard. In spite of the bitterly cold weather 50 people were in attendance at this annual function of the League.

At the business meeting which followed the supper, the financial report given by the League's treasurer, H. E. Christensen, showed that $1,700 in capital loans had been paid off during the year.

Some of the activities of the League during the past year were reviewed. Two scholarships of $50 each had been provided—one was to Donna Jacobsen to attend a course in drama at Drumheller, the other was to Milo Stauffer for obtaining the highest marks in Tofield in the June exams in Grade IX.

The League has supported the Boy Scouts financially during the year, as it has done for Pony League Baseball. The swimming lessons at Cooking Lake were again a League project. The successful July 1 celebration and the PPCLI Band Concert, the Christmas Carol Festival were all League-sponsored.

On completion of his two successive, and highly successful, years as president of the League, John Baergen was given a hearty vote of thanks by the crowd.

Mrs. Neil Phillips was thanked for her work in providing publicity for the League's work.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Election of officers followed, under chairmanship of Bill Christensen. # Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell mark 50th anniversary

On Sunday December 26, Mr and Mrs. Will Mitchell of Tofield celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary in the social room of the Tofield United Church Nearly 150 people were present to help this beloved couple celebrate this milestone and to participate in or observe the program presented under the capable chairmanship of Mr. Harold Schultz.

With Mrs. Dorothy Whillans in charge, the ladies of the Ketchamoot district, in which the Mitchells resided for many years had arranged for this happy occasion. The tea table was decorated with bouquets of golden 'mums, presented by the Ketchamoot ladies White and gold candles flanked the golden wedding cake, made by Mrs. Andy Jalbert, daughter of the Mitchells, and beautifully decorated by Mrs. Agnes McGinitie. Mrs. Willard Ferguson, niece of the Mitchells, had made the bride's cake which was displayed on the table, as was a gift of golden china from the Mitchells' son Bill who, due to the distance involved, was not able to be present.

Seated at the head table were M., and Mrs Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Jalbert and their three children, Mrs. Jean Daw, sister of Mr. Mitchell, Mrs. Esther Henderson, sister-in-law of Mrs. Mitchell, and Mr. and Mrs. Angus Mitchell. After a few introductory remarks by Mr. Schultz, the program was begun by a solo "Smilin' Through" by Mr. E. Stinson, accompanied by Mrs Stinson Mrs. Ruby Sears spoke on behalf of the Ketchamoot UCW, of which Mrs. Mitchell is a life member and Pat Sears recalled the arrival of Mr. Mitchell from "over the hill to Wetaskiwin" and of Mrs. Mitchell, from Tennessee The parts played by the Mitchells in pioneer days were recalled by both Pat Sears and Harold Schultz who mentioned how Mr. Mitchell had run the "dinky" at the Tofield coal mine and that Mrs. Mitchell was the second telephone operator in Tofield. High praise was given by both speakers for the Mitchells as neighbors.

Mrs. Signe Broen and Marilyn, accompanied by Mrs. Stinson, sang a duet, "O, How Precious", after which Mr. Douglas Murray spoke on behalf of the Murray family who were relatives and close friends of the Mitchells. He stressed the part a shared interest in church affairs had played in the relationship between the two families

Mrs. Nettie Ardley, a former teacher of Ketchamoot School, had driven from Calgary to be present on this occasion, and in her interesting speech recalled some of her experiences while boarding with the Mitchells She spoke of Mrs. Mitchell's wonderful cooking and her many kindnesses to her boarder. Mrs Ardley also recalled how Mr Mitchell, concerned for the safety of a young woman driving home alone on weekends, had supplied her with a pistol "probably of Civil War vintage" for protection. Since Mrs. Ardley was more terrified of the firearm than of possible hitch-hikers, she cached it but kept that knowledge from Mr. Mitchell lest he worry about her

Jim Francis, for the Tofield Historical Society, presented the Mitchells with a Golden Wedding plate. He said that wherever the Mitchells had done their courting, whether "walking in lovers' lane or driving with a horse and buggy, the right words had been said at the right time by the right person" and that the succeeding fifity years of happy wedded life had proved it

Mrs. Lilly Schultz and her daughters Betsy-Ann and Frances sang a beautiful trio "God Hath Not Promised", accompanied by Mrs Stinson. Following this musical number, Mr. I. E. Stinson recalled the great contribution made by the Mitchells as pioneers of this area and as members of the United Church congregation

After a solo, "How Great Thou Art" by Mrs. Melita Wall, accompanied by Mrs. Stinson, the Rev. W. McDannold, minister of Tofield United Church, spoke on the enduring qualities of a good marriage as exemplified in that of the Mitchells. He also praised their faithful attendance at church.

Mrs. Henry Penner, a former resident of the Ketchamoot district, said she had come all the way from Clearbrook, B.C., to be present at this celebration. She recalled with gratitude Mrs. Mitchells skill both as a cook and as a teacher of cooking and reminded everyone of Mrs. Mitchell's terrific sense of humor, even though she never minced words.

Mrs. Mitchell, on behalf of her husband herself, thanked the guests for their attendance and kind remarks. She said she could not recognize herself and her husband as the wonderful people described by the speakers. However, it was plain from the faces of the guests that the Mitchells were easily recognizable, as described

Rev. W. McDannold led the assembly in prayer, after which a social hour was much enjoyed by the many guests as they exchanged reminiscences of past days

The guest book, in charge of Mrs. Annie McGinitie, recorded out-of-town guests from Edmonton, Wetaskiwin, Banff, Calgary, Camrose, Clearbrook, B.C., and a host of friends of the Tofield district

LONG-TIME RESIDENTS

The Mitchells are long-time residents of the Tofield area Mr. Mitchell came here as an 11-year-old boy with his parents, the Hugh Mitchells Later, he ran the "dinky" at the Tofield mine, operated steam engines, and farmed in the Ketchamoot area. Mrs. Mitchell (nee Amanda Henderson) came to Tofield with her parents in 1905 from Tennessee. The Mitchells have two children, Mrs. Andy Jalbert of Edmonton, and Bill Mitchell of Kamloops, B.C. There are seven grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell now reside in Tofield.

The Mercury

Tofield · Hgwy 14 · Ryley · Holden

VOL. 14 NO. 20 PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT TOFIELD, ALBERTA Thursday, January 13th., 1966

PROVINCIAL LIBRARY EDMONTON, ALTA.

UP TO THE MOUNTAINS. How much water will be available on our continent in the coming spring for farming, industrial and domestic use? To find out, teams of snow surveyors are tramping up into the mountains of North America, measuring snow depth. Through these surveys, water supply forecasts can be made well in advance, predicting the depth of rivers and lakes. Surveyors on skis, such as the two above, will be able to warn of coming floods or water shortages. Drought was especially severe in Ontario and Quebec last year, and some farmers received emergency funds from the federal and provincial governments.

Tribute to the work of Mrs. J. W. Robinson

A tribute paid to Mrs. J. W. Robinson of Tofield in a 1955 issue of The Mercury, was brought to the attention of the editor the other day. Mrs. Robinson recently retired from the work of canvassing for the Canadian Bible Society, after serving for a great many years. Now a committee of from six to eight canvassers in the town is doing the work she used to do alone.

The 1955 tribute, in a letter to the editor signed "One of the multitude standing idly by", follows.

"In a recent copy of The Mercury" I noticed Mrs. J. W. Robinson's annual report of her canvass for the British and Foreign Bible Society, and as usual it shows a very creditable total. I think it would be unfair to let this occasion go by without paying a slight tribute to Mrs. Robinson for her work. For as long as most of us can remember, come rain or shine, ice or blizzard, she has done this canvassing year after year. A very few calls may be made by phone, but the vast majority are personal contacts, and since she does not drive a car, these visits are all made by walking.

"In this modern world, where personal comfort has become so important to the average person, it is indeed rare to find someone with Mrs. Robinson's cheerful, unwavering devotion to the Master's work. She gives no thought to the effort or sacrifice it calls for, except to be thankful she has the strength to carry on. Truly, her life is a shining example to the rest of us."

Tofield hosts world-famous puppet show

(Donna Jacobsen)

In spite of the severely cold weather, a large crowd turned out to view the world-famous Hogarth Puppets at the Tofield Community Centre on January 8th. The audience enjoyed watching an assortment of hand puppets, shadow puppets and full-scale marionettes performing on a full-scale stage under the skillful manoeuvering of Ann Hogarth and her husband Jan Bussell.

The children, in particular, marvelled at the singing, dancing marionettes They thrilled to the recognition of television's famous Muffin the Mule, and Rufus the Clown earned hearty applause from the younger set.

The Green Man, the Strong Man, and the well loved play about the fox and the hen were some of the other highlights of the puppets' hour and a half performance.

The only fault the children found in the show was that it was much, much too short. Judging by some of the later comments from the parents, it was evident that they enjoyed it just as much as the children.

Tofield is very fortunate to have been host to the Hogarth Puppets in their first North American tour, and the audience was very grateful to those responsible for arranging for this outstanding performance.

Long distance rates chopped

For the third time since 1960, long distance telephone rates for certain types of calls will be reduced.

On March 6th Alberta Government Telephones will reduce rates for night-time and Sunday, station-to-station calls over distances of more than 600 miles. Rates for week-day, person-to-person and "short haul" calls will be unchanged.

Reductions will range from five to 55 cents for the first three minutes. The new maximum rate for a three-minute call between any two places in Canada will be $1.95. At present the maximum is $2.50. This means that a night-time or Sunday station-to-station call between St. John's, Newfoundland, and Victoria, B.C., or between Halifax and Vancouver will cost $1.95.

This reduction will be the fifth in Trans-Canada telephone rates in 30 years. For example, an Ottawa-Edmonton call that cost $5.25 in 1935, cost 2.50 in 1945; $2.40 in 1960; 2.30 in 1963; costs $2.25 now, and will cost $1.95 under the new plan. Savings to telephone users under the plan are estimated at $750,000 annually.

Reduced "long haul" rates have been made possible by the increasing volume of long distance calling, the use of Direct Distance Dialing facilities and more efficient transmission methods.

Coaches lose!

(Elaine Walker)

The Friday evening basketball game between the Viking and Tofield girls ended in a win for Tofield by a score of 16 to 12.

Since the Viking boys' team was absent, a rather unusual game followed between five of the coaches and part of the Tofield boys' team against the rest of the Tofield team. The boys won the game 67 to 51, much to the coaches' dismay.

Viking wins zone playoffs

(Elaine Walker)

The Zone playoffs for the TPC Provincial High School Curling were held on January 8th and 9th at Ryley.

The Doug Dobry rink from Viking, last year's provincial champions, were again victorious, and Tofield High School wishes them every success, along the trail to another Canada-wide play-off.

Hark what strains of solemn gladness are heard filling the air, to follow a night of despair Men that toil in the battle of life, listen to strains that will sweeten the strife. ## Increase in entries in home lighting contest

(Mrs. G. H. Taylor)

HOLDEN — The Holden and District Chamber of Commerce was gratified this past Christmas season to receive a good increase of entries in the Christmas Home Lighting Contest, which the Chamber has sponsored the past several years.

Owing to the increased numbers of good displays the judges found it a difficult job in making their decisions. The judging was for scenes, lights, originality and neatness.

The awards were as follows:

For the Village of Holden—1st, Peter Josey; 2nd, Joe Chamulka; and the 3rd being a three-way tie among John Semotuik, Don Coutu and Milton Malick.

Holden District—1st, Paul Pidoborozny; 2nd, Chester Wright; 3rd, Joe Naherniak.

The members are hoping that the increased interest will continue, and that there will be a larger participation and competition in future years.

"Prairie Players" coming to Tofield

This will be announced later when an accurate count of student participation is known.

MacDuff Ottawa report

OTTAWA — If the creation of a Department of Manpower was not a direct result of the Economic Council's annual review it was the result of Council thinking. Its chairman Dr. J. J. Deutsch said there had been discussion with the government about the manpower problem in suggesting establishment of a ministry of manpower services the Council review says

"Such a ministry could be the sole co-ordinator of all manpower policies and programs including not only those in the Department of Labour but also those in the Department of Citizenship and Immigration.

This obviously places the government's action outside the realm of conventional and the fact is significant. It means that, in dealing with economic problems, the government is turning more and more to the Council and its chairman. The new manpower minister, the Hon. Jean Marchand can be expected to stick closely to the pattern outlined by the Council. It will not involve any major changes in policy. Most of the suggestions made by the Council are already in the planning stage in the Department of Labour. The real trouble is that they have been too long in that stage. If Marchand's real problem will be to get the whole manpower program off the ground.

STILL NEED INFORMATION

Vocational education and training programs, the key to full and efficient use of manpower resources, have been expanded rapidly but they are not being used by adults except those unemployed workers taking courses under the direction of the National Employment Service. The Department in collaboration with the provinces is taking a look at the curricula to see whether it is really meeting the requirements of industry. The Council finds that provincial and local educational authorities do not have adequate information regarding manpower needs. New vocational training agreements with the provinces provide for a federal contribution of half the cost of research projects for this purpose.

These moves indicate a radical change in direction which, if it has come late, as the Economic Council seems to think, has at least come. The need for accelerating management and labour to adjust to the technological change essential to improving productivity has been recognized from the start. But programs have deviated from this objective to meet the immediate and temporary need.. Emphasis has been laid until now on a quick cutback of unemployment. As a result training courses have been aimed at getting workers into jobs as soon as possible. Workers themselves, because training allowances have been and still are inadequate, have been only too anxious to take whatever job offered rather than acquire the skill to fit them for the jobs of the future.

Today unemployment on a national scale does not exist. Seasonally adjusted the rate of unemployment in terms of the labour force dropped during 1965 to a low of 3.2 percent in October and was only 3.6 per cent in November. This compares with the target of 3 per cent (full employment) which the Eco-

Down the welfare road

Announcement that the Manning government plans to rebate eighty percent of losses suffered by farmers in the recent Vermilion bankruptcy does not sit well with many breeders in this district, nor with many non-farmers. Nor does the suggestion that farmers in future will be forced to contribute a percentage of livestock sales to a guarantee fund.

Nearly all applaud the requirement that bonding levels be increased.

The argument is that marginal or speculative operators will be encouraged if farmers operate on the premise they might as well take a chance on higher prices "after all, we're guaranteed eighty percent" And the farmers who have worked for years to establish sound selling operations, often at a considerable expense to themselves, don't relish the thought of having to contribute to speculative new enterprises. Maybe, too, they've already tried to pry some money out of the motorist's unsatisfied judgment fund.

We agree with the farmers protesting. In deals of this nature, the old Latin proverb should probably be reversed: "Let the seller beware"

If the government feels so much under obligation to come to the rescue of farmers victimized in this recent case, might it not be setting a precedent which would require it to come to the aid of other sections of the economy afflicted through the failure of some agency? It is commonly understood that the building trade, for instance, is going through difficult days Should victims of bankrupt firms be "looked after" by the government? Should customers of automobile firms be reimbursed for monies lost when an agency goes broke? And so on and on.

We submit the program, however well intentioned, is basically in error.

By George!

During the past week Bill Bloom, a printer for The Tofield Mercury, told me he had had his share of long distance calls that turned out to be wrong numbers. Bill had seven of them—all one evening—in the space of about 45 minutes.

The first caller Bill heard from that night had somewhat [illegible] asked "Is [illegible] there?"

Simon - Hendel wedding solemnized Nov. 10th

On November 10, St Gregory's Church at Holden was the scene of an early winter wedding, at which Sylvia Diane Hendel, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hendel of Holden pledged vows with David Earl Simon of Hyle, Alberta. Rev. Fr. Przysiezniak performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length empire line gown of peau de soie with a lily-point sleeved lace jacket. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a crown of pearls and crystal, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

The bridesmaids, attired in identical coral peau de soie dresses with white accessories, were Miss Maureen Peruzzini, friend of the bride; Miss Jean Stefanishen cousin of the bride and Mrs. Lorraine McKay, friend of the bride.

The best men were John Simon, brother of the groom, Arch Hendel, brother of the bride, and Geo. McKay friend of the groom. Ushers were Eugene Danilak, friend of the groom, and Andrew Stasiewich, cousin of the groom.

The mother of the bride wore a teal blue wool suit with white accessories, and a pink corsage. Due to serious illness, the parents of the groom were unable to attend the wedding.

The reception took place in Holden Community Hall when approximately 300 guests enjoyed supper and refreshments. Master of ceremonies was Ed Hendel of Calgary, uncle of the bride, and the toastmaster was Phil Hendel of Edmonton, uncle of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon will make their home in Edmonton.

Beaver county council meets Dec. 9

Following are the minutes, in part, of the Council of the County of Beaver No. 9 meeting, held Thursday, Dec. 9th:

Business Arising from Minutes

In regards to the Sewerage System at Kinsella, the secretary-treasurer reported that he had discussed it is matter with R. H Nicolson, Alberta Branch Manager of Associated Engineering Services Limited, and A. B Samuel when they interviewed the Council on December 3rd in regards to the Road Survey. They suggested that the two by-laws in connection with this work could be finally passed and then the matter left in abeyance until spring when tenders could be called. They were quite certain that the work could not be done in time to obtain the 25% reduction from the Dominion Government, and it was quite evident that the cost of the project would be much higher than originally anticipated. The secretary-treasurer referred to his previous suggestion that some arrangements might be made with Canexeco Limited to pump out the private disposal systems in the Hamlet, thus taking care of the health problem without saddling the County with a debenture.

This was considered feasible by the Council, and it was moved and carried that the report be accepted and that the matter of Canexeco Limited serving the Hamlet of Kinsella be further investigated.

In regards to the Preventive Welfare Services as suggested by the Department of Public Health, the secretary-treasurer informed the Council that a meeting might be called in the week of December 12th at Vegreville, at which time an official from the Department of Public Welfare would further explain the proposals. He also reported that he had on Tuesday, Nov. 30th, attended a Seminar in Vegreville in connection with a family court procedure.

Moved and carried that the report be accepted.

In regards to C. Poettker impounding cattle belonging to Frank Mosbey, the secretary-treasurer stated that he had advised Mr. Mosbey of the recommendation of the Pound Committee, and that he had 21 days in which to appeal the recommendation.

No appeal had been received, and it was moved and carried that the recommendation of the Pound Committee be approved, and that the damage claim of C. Poettker in the amount of $28 be paid and the inspection fee be charged to Mr. Mosbey.

The secretary - treasurer had also stated that Mr. Mosbey had finally settled his previous account in connection with the impounding of his animals.

In connection with the burrow pit problem on S.E. 10-49-16-W4th, the secretary-treasurer reported that Adam Schmiedt had signed the necessary preliminary agreement, and that this would be dealt with later in the meeting.

Moved and carried that the report be accepted.

The secretary - treasurer informed the Council that on Nov. 30th, at the request of the Hamlet, he had notified the Dept. of Water Resources that a number of farmers in the County of Camrose No. 22 were draining water into the ditches that had been constructed under the Round Hill Flood Control Project in 1964. A reply from A. Strome, engineer for the department of water resources, indicated that the Department was not too concerned with this ditching activity as the outlet was adequate to handle additional flow. Also it was considered difficult to stop this practice with any method short of court action. The secretary-treasurer in his letter had also mentioned that, possibly, a further cash contribution should be requested from the County of Camrose. Mr Strome stated that his understanding had been that the County of Camrose would contribute up to $1,800 in the flood control scheme and that this, in his opinion, was adequate.

However, as the County of Camrose had only contributed $400 to date, it was moved and carried that a request for further contribution be made to the County of Camrose No. 22.

A letter from the Director of Public Relations, in reply to the application for a recreational grant for the Kinsella Elks Lodge to be used at the sports grounds at Kinsella, advised that this application could not be accepted.

Moved and carried that the correspondence be received and filed.

A letter from Radio Station CFCW requesting that they be furnished with a copy of the Council agenda a few days prior to every meeting of the Council

Moved and carried that this matter be deferred to a later meeting of the council.

The secretary-treasurer informed the council that Mrs. Annie Cheremahynsky had complained of certain drainage problems on S.E. of 3 and S.E. of 3-51-16-W 4th. # the Provincial Scene

By JOHN WARREN

Well, winter finally got around to the capital. And the week of 30-below weather seemed to have the same effect on political activity as it did on vehicles—both were nearly impossible to start

Only one opposition spokesman made himself heard at all and he really need not have bothered. It seems that talk about a formal residence for the Lieutenant-Governor got Bill Dickie thinking, a little. The Calgary liberal suggested it be built in Calgary. After all, he said, the southern city is the centre of business and finance for the province. Since the government hasn't done anything about it, Mr. Dickie was sure people in Calgary would be willing to do it for them.

He pointed out, incidentally, that the Lieutenant-Governor is only really needed in the capital during the six or eight weeks of the session. The vice-regal representative has, in fact, dozens of formal tasks in the capital year-round—including the weekly signing of orders-in-council passed by the cabinet

Incidentally Grant MacEwan moved into his new office on January 6. We may hear more about his domestic accommodation later.

If Albertans aren't going to get a chance to build the Lieutenant-Governor a house, at least they'll be able to invest in the province's industry

Last week the cabinet announced that Alberta Investment certificates would go on sale February 15th They will be sold in denominations of 100 dollars and multiples of 100 and will be redeemable any time at face value

The government has limited the initial issue to $10,000,000 and will use the money to assist new or faltering industry in the province A minimum dividend of three-and-a-half per cent annually will be paid in mid-February and mid-August.

Provincial scene...

Education Association in Edmonton.

Most delegates, with first-hand knowledge of the situation, say the Indians lot is improving, but not very fast. Public assistance with self-help programs planned and co-ordinated by the Indians themselves seems the best method of improving their lot

Apparently one of the big problems facing Indian agriculture is that of getting farmers to use modern technology. Mr. Babey says there is a serious gap between the research centres and the Indian farmers Alberta farmers can help bridge it by meeting with the Indian people and discussing the value of improved methods. And they can return to Canada with first-hand knowledge of problems and suggestions on how Canadians can help overcome them.

In the final analysis, says Mr Babey, a wealthier India will provide a better market for Canadian product.

The provincial government has announced it will give a helping hand to Indians closer to home.

Pointing out that lack of work is one of the most severe problems facing the natives of northern Alberta the government says it will make every effort to employ them in construction of the new resources railway

Up to 1,000 workers will be needed almost immediately to start clearing and bedding grade for the road running north from Hinton. Two tree-speaking officials will help recruit labor in the area

The announcement was timely in that it corresponds with a meeting of northern teachers and members of the Alberta Indian

Modern etiquette

Q. When a girl is being married in a simple, informal wedding, and she is wearing her going-away dress, does she have a number of bridesmaids?

A. In this type of ceremony, the bride usually limits her attendants to one — her maid or matron of honor.

Q. When hors d'oeuvres are served on picks, should they be eaten from the picks, or removed and eaten with the fingers?

A. From the picks.

Q. Is the bride supposed to do all the cutting of the wedding cake?

A. Not usually. It is customary and traditional for her to cut the first piece, along with her bridegroom, and share it with him. Then a friend or one of the caterers takes care of the cutting of the rest of the cake.

Q. If a knife has not been used during a meal, should it be picked up at the end of the meal and placed with the fork across the plate so that it will be taken out when the plate is removed?

A. No; it should remain where it is on the table.

Q. Is it really necessary for a man who habitually carries a pipe in his mouth to remove it when speaking to a woman?

A. Yes, just as a man with a cigar or cigarette in his mouth.

Q. Recently I escorted my wife and woman friend of hers to a social function, and upon arriving I assisted the woman friend first with her wraps. My wife now claims I was out of order, that I should have helped her first. How about this?

A. Your wife is the one who is "out of order". You did the proper thing.

Q. Different members of our family received a number of notes and cards of condolence following the passing of a loved one. Should these be acknowledged by us?

A. Personal notes of acknowledgement are in order, although it is quite understandable that they be brief, even to close friends.

Q. When serving a fruit juice as a first course at the table, where should this glass be placed?

A. On the place plate—not with the water glass.

RFA directors returned for '66

The annual meeting of Tofield Rural Fire Association was held on January 12th with a rather poor turnout; some 25 to 30 members being present. There were three members' fires during the year and one church fire.

The three retiring directors were returned without opposition for a further three years. As there was some opposition to the term "dues" it was agreed to change this to "operating charges". This was set at $3.00 and is now payable either at Bank of Montreal or to the secretary. Failure to pay this by March 1st leaves one liable for the full $200 per hour fee in case of a fire, so members are urged to keep in good standing. There have been three changes in telephone numbers on the yellow card, that should be kept near your phone, please change these:

662-3378 becomes 662-4078
662-3387 becomes 662-4095

Syd Wrights mark 25th anniversary

On Sunday, Jan. 2nd, open house was held at the Wright home in Edmonton in honor of Mary and Syd's 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright were married on New Year's Day, 1941, at Holy Trinity Anglican Church, South Edmonton.

The weather this day was cold and blizzardy, similar to the weather on that very special day 25 years ago.

Some of the guests present on their wedding day were at the open house. Syd's mother, Mrs. Charles Wright, was present for the occasion. The wedding write-up, which had been printed in the Tofield Mercury 25 years ago, was read, and pictures were taken.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wright, son and daughter-in-law of the happy couple, were present, as was Victor, their youngest son. Leslie had left for Vancouver the day previous and was not able to be present.

A lovely Christmassy lunch was served. One of the highlights of the occasion was that their wedding cake was iced by their son Victor, and was very beautifully done.

The anniversary couple received several beautiful bouquets of flowers and some very lovely gifts to mark the occasion.

Where is the snow plow?

A popular question around the town these days (other than the run-of-the-mill type such as "Is it cold enough for you?") is "What has happened to our snow plow?"

The taxpayers are wondering—quite naturally—why snow has been left lying as it falls on the Main Street, as well as the side streets of the town.

Not only the merchants, but all town residents as well as those coming to Tofield to shop would like to see the plow put to better use.

Is the plow broken down? Is it too cold to take it out of the storage shed? What are we paying taxes for? These are some of the questions being asked. Surely they are worthy of an answer.

Ask for choice

Meeting with the Alberta cabinet recently, the Union of Alberta Municipalities asked that consideration be given to proportional representation in elections.

We haven't seen the details of their request, so we're not certain of the type of representation they hoped to switch to, or the way in which they felt it could best be gained. Over the years, of course, there have been many variations of voting suggested, and many have been tried. Usually, the idea is to try to gain a house of representatives whose political affiliations more closely reflect the strength of the voting as it applied to various parties.

It's a well known fact that many governments, in fact probably most, are elected with less than a majority of the popular vote. Even Mr. Manning's overwhelming 63 member government was elected with something less than half the votes.

Alberta used to use the transferrable vote system, giving voters choices in order of preference, so that voters whose first choice candidates couldn't hope to win at least had a second chance, and sometimes a third. The system can't be too bad, really. Even when parties are electing their leader, as the Liberals did last week in Calgary, they decline to accept a leader who can't get an overall majority, requiring two or three or more ballots.

Much the same principle was employed in the old preferential ballot in Alberta, but it was discarded because, according to the government, it confused many voters.

We never did accept that argument at face value, and we don't now. Voting only for one candidate didn't disqualify the ballot, it only robbed the voter of his second or third choice, if second or third counts were needed. And if voters can't figure that system out, maybe it's time we had a literacy test. We're not particularly in favor of reducing the voting age, but we're mighty sure the kids could figure out that simple little question without the aid of calculus

What's wrong with Canada

Ta excerpts from a recent issue of The Printed Word combine to form one of the most pithy but penetrating comments on Canada we've seen for some time. Run together, the two follow

It is more important to Canada that the political parties be worthy of office than that they hold office.

There is much that is wrong with Canada and yet nothing is wrong with Canada. The country has beauty, resources, size, water. What is wrong with Canada is the people. They have deteriorated politically. They would not have deteriorated politically if they had continued to discuss public affairs over the cracker-barrel, in town implement sheds and elsewhere where the issues of the day. Sir John A. Macdonald or Sir Wilfrid Laurier were debated scientifically and in a highly partisan manner.

Mr. Pearson is a leader who has failed to lead. Mr. Diefenbaker was a leader who missed the greatest opportunity for greatness given to anybody in this generation.

Frenglish spoken here

Maybe there is some sense in the efforts of the French to rid their language of Anglo-Saxon impurities, such as the Financial Post in an editorial. Le briefing of le coming-man may inspire a thirst all around for un scotch soda, but, obviously, has little to do with French, how could anyone appeal for the language purists of Ile-de-France to abandon a faux pas by forgetting to abandon a faux pas by forgetting to abandon a faux pas by forgetting

Alberta Liberals have new leader

Winning on the third ballot, Adrian Berry of Calgary defeated three other men vieing for the leadership of the Alberta Liberal Party. Voting took place on the final day of the convention held in Calgary Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Berry's opponents were Robert Russell of St. Albert, who polled a close second; Richard Broughton of Ponoka, and Wilbur Freeland of Peace River.

The Liberals have been without a leader since last fall when the former leader, Dave Hunter, resigned to contest the Athabasca riding in the Federal election in November, where he lost to the Conservatives.

Cameron Milliken of Calgary was named president of the Alberta Young Liberals in a close two-way fight against Aaron Shtabsky of Edmonton.

Held at the Calgary Inn, the convention was attended by over 600 voting delegates, ten being allowed for each provincial constituency, plus ex-officio delegates. Other non-voting delegates and visitors swelled the total attending the lively sessions.

The Hon. David Steuart, Minister of Health in the Saskatchewan Government, was guest speaker at the banquet Saturday evening.

By George!

If your nose is stuffy and you have difficulty breathing chances are you're suffering from one of the most widespread and prevalent of all diseases—coryza.

Chronic and overbearing make a person particularly susceptible to coryza which is why it is so prevalent at this time of the year.

There is no known cure.

Although it is relatively minor coryza causes an annual loss of more than $5 billion each year in the United States alone in terms of time lost from work, wages lost and the cost of treating the disease and its complications.

Persons of all ages are susceptible to coryza according to World Book Encyclopedia, but pre-school youngsters seem to be the most susceptible. More than 30 million illnesses each year in American pre-school youngsters are caused by coryza.

William Henry Harrison, ninth president of the United States, delivered his inaugural address on a cold, windy day and caught coryza. This developed into pneumonia and he died a month later.

Coryza is what keeps handkerchief makers and tissue manufacturers in business. It means more wastage for the pill manufacturers, too as well as retailers.

Coryza is popularly known as the common head cold.

Around the town

On Sunday afternoon, Jan. 9th, a small reception was held at the home of Mr and Mrs Gab Patret in honor of their eldest daughter Susan, and Larry Bacon of Fort Saskatchewan who were married December, 18th.

Paddy Roberge of Edmonton spent the weekend with her parents Mr and Mrs C Roberge.

Mildred and Findley Dunlop and Kay Kashmery of Cadomin were Sunday visitors in town.

Noticing references to ethnic groups caused me to wonder whether there is a place in the records being prepared by the Historical Society, for these natives of Tofield district.

They were the original inhabitants of the district being so-called Metis, or people of mixed blood, Cree and English, Scottish or French We found them very worthwhile friends, law-abiding and honest, sometimes one of our friends might be guilty of taking a bit too much "mutton wages", (firewater), but on the whole they were well behaved and trustworthy

New cause to quit

If there is anyone more mural than the reformed town-pot, it must be the man who quit smoking.

After inhaling two packs a day for years, the man who puts this organization known as the "Never Touch Ems" can relate the most monstrous tales of failing health and mental deterioration ever heard on this planet.

Another nonsmoker serving on a new civic structure as a Lenten excuse, have jacked up the price of cigarettes.

While we might be capable of ignoring the lethal potential of cigarettes in the face of former Health Minister Judy LaMarsh's elderly heralded dictum, we can not ignore being hit where it really hurts—in the pocketbook.

Farmer's open 'spiel planned for Feb. 7 - 11

One of the bi-lites in the Farmer's Curling Season will be held from Feb. 7 to 11th when the local farmers club will be hosts to the annual Farmer's Open Bonspiel.

As in past years there will again be four events with only day-time curling. Up for grabs again this year will be the Bank of Montreal trophy awarded annually to the Grand Challenge winner.

The Bill Holowatuik rink from Round Hill, last year's winner have already filed their entry and have indicated they are not giving the trophy up without a good fight.

A good array of prizes are being lined up by the prize committee and also, as has been the practice in the past years a curling sweater will be raffled the last day of the spiel.

The entry fees have been set at $12.00 per rink and entries must be filed by 10 p.m. Friday, Feb. 3rd. Entries are to be phoned to Vernon Walker at 662-2235 or Andy Haberg at 662-2222

Killed in crash

A man believed to be a resident of the Ryley district, Bill Stefiuk, died just short of head injuries after the truck he was driving left a municipal road and struck an approach.

Mr. Stefiuk was found in the truck between 7:00 and 7:30. RCMP at Edmonton told The Mercury this afternoon there was nothing to indicate anyone else was in the truck. The accident occurred about 2 1/2 miles southwest of Holden.

Further details of the accident were not available at press time.

Baby! It's cold outside

A look at the weather report released by the Calgary Power Co this week, shows that there has not been a single above zero reading all week. Temperatures have ranged from a frigid 38 below last Thursday to a high of 4 below on Monday.

Not that we need thermometers to tell us it's cold! A walk of a block or two is enough to convince us that Tofield is indeed in a deep freeze, with no immediate relief in sight.

Although there is much less snowfall this year than last winter weather reports indicate that the average temperature since Christmas has been about ten degrees colder than last January. Looking back quickly to a comparable cold snap, many recall February, 1936, when the overnight low never got above 25 below for 30 consecutive days

Tofield UCW names officers

The ladies had a most successful year in 1965 as shown in reports

The officers for this year were installed by Rev. W. H. McDonald as follows: president, Bessie Hunter; vice president Hazel Patterson; secretary, Winnie Christenson; treasurer Irma Francis, nominating committee chairman, Dorothy Williams.

Co-op talent night to aid Tofield 4-H club

The Tofield Co-ops, who during the past years have been putting on a Good Neighbor Night in conjunction with their Talent Show have gone a step further by sponsoring the Tofield 4-H Beef Club in a Talent Show this year.

The 4-H Club had originally planned for an amateur program near the end of February however, in order to avoid any conflict with their Talent Night, the Home Tofield Co-ops intend to sponsor the 4-H Beef Club in a Talent Show with all proceeds to go to the 4-H Club.

On Saturday Pin Time of the Co-op Extension Service of Edmonton was in town and together with representatives from the local Co-ops and 4-H Club laid the ground work for the Talent Show

The original date of Tuesday, Feb. 22 has been set back to Friday, Feb. 25th, as it was felt that a Friday night was a better night for the show.

It is also hoped to have the Tofield School Band who has been practicing under the direction of Sgt. Coates to perform at the program.

More details are being worked out concerning the program so watch your Mercury for further news concerning the Talent Show.

EVEN THE BEARS PLAY HOCKEY. It's no wonder Canada's Allan Cup winners, the Sherbrooke Beavers, fared so badly playing hockey against Russian teams in the Soviet Union. In Russia, it seems, even the bears have taken to hockey. Above shows three black bears passing the puck in one of the segments of the Russian "Circus On Ice" show.

Plush living standard

Alan Y. Eaton, a member of the famous merchandising firm in Canada, recently commented on changes in the consumer market which have taken place in only the past ten years. There is today nothing like the so-called mass market for retail goods, in Mr. Eaton's view, and he backs this up with a consperion of women's sports clothes, now and then. Ten years ago, this was considered a basic item, and the firm did a substantial business, for instance, in sweaters with 30 different styles. Each style would be stocked in six colors and four sizes, making a total of 720 different stock-keeping units. Today's requirements call for 175 styles, in six colors and four sizes, for a total of 4,200 stock-keeping items.

In 1935, 85% of the firm's business in women's shorts was in one basic style. Being only male, we didn't realize how far we had fallen behind the times, but today's shorts requirements include "short" shorts, regular shorts, Jamaica shorts, cabin boys, clam diggers and even more, in a tremendous variety of fabrics, prints, colors and sizes.

Some years ago we were highly interested when one of the local men's wear experts explained part of his problem in the field of men's shirts. With collar sizes ranging from 13 to 17½, he said, there are about ten sizes, each coming in three different sleeve lengths, making 30 varieties. There are about four popular collar styles, he suggested, making 120, and there are both french and button style cuffs, making 240 different units. Then he pointed out this is only in white, and many customers, naturally want colors or stripes, according to the fashion of the day. "And then," he said, "you'd be surprised how many customers aren't understand it when you sometimes can't provide three shirts in their particular size and style."

Each business has its problems, of course, and probably it's only on paper that the other fellow's business looks so much better.

But it's highly interesting to note the changes being brought into merchandising by the so-called "good life" and our ability to look for and pay for variety undreamed of by one of the world's largest merchandisers only a decade ago. Among other things, it helps to show why an up-to-the-minute inventory and knowledge of sales is so important in so many fields. And why the computer has so many areas in which its capabilities, properly used, can be a major asset in business planning.

Questions needing answers

What questions are going to receive the major considerations at the 27th Parliament which opened a few days ago in Ottawa, ask a number of writers whose material we see. What new institutions are needed to encourage healthy economic growth? What system will give Canadian savers and borrowers the best service at the least cost? What is the most effective way to encourage Canadian ownership and control of Canadian industry and resources?

That Canadians are hungry to invest in their own country and to learn more about the principles of investing was shown a few weeks ago in Toronto when thousands turned out to listen to lectures, view exhibits and ask hundreds of questions at a week-long How to Invest Show. This is why the money, and they're not looking for quick gains on fliers, according to a responsible financial paper, only a good return for a reasonable risk.

This point was underscored this week in Vancouver when Edmonton's Dr. Hu Harries said at a conference that American money is flowing only into relatively good investments, with the result that the poor investments are left to Canadians. While this is doubtless an over-simplification, there is enough truth in it to explain in part why Canadians are often soured at their experiences in the market.

Tax laws devised to encourage the use of Canadian capital for Canadian development would help. Improved regulations on the stock exchanges would help. Closer control of the various provincial securities commissions would help. And of course, closer investigation and scrutiny on the part of the individual investor would also help.

And Neil J. MacKinnon, president of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, suggests revision of some of the tax laws, such as the succession duties, and income tax above the 50% level. Why not devise plans to attract people with capital, inventiveness, skills and energy by providing greater incentives for these qualities than in the land of our neighbors and in many other lands" asks Mr. MacKinnon.

These are only a few of the questions crying for answers, but it would be interesting to know what the government will have to say about them. What, for that matter, will our own member, Cliff Smallwood say if they do come up?

Not democratic

Editor, The Mercury.

Dear Sir:

Hooray for your editorial in last week's Mercury, "Ask for Choice".

You state the Union of Alberta Municipalities, ask that consideration be given to proportional representation in elections.

Any electoral system that produces a situation like we have in the Alberta Legislature where a party like Social Credit secures not quite 55 per cent of the vote getting 60 seats bearing the 45 per cent of the people who voted against the Manning Government only represented by three members, there is something radically wrong.

The result is we have a government back when on session is arrogant and indifferent to any constructive criticism.

The UFA Government instituted a system of transferable votes for the rural ridings and proportional representation for the cities, which to a large extent truly represented the opinions of the voter.

If that system had been continued in the last election, Social Credit would have probably only secured around forty seats maybe less.

But Mr Manning, as a matter of political expediency, feel that system discarded. It would take a little longer to count the votes on election night, but we agree with you that the voters of Alberta are certainly intelligent enough to use this proportional system without too much confusion.

We can rest assured however that in spite of all his high sounding talk about democracy, and the rights of the individual, Mr Manning will not consent to a change.

How inconsistant he governs with less than fifty five per cent of the votes, yet the Ottawa meet in a floor/alone vote demands a two thirds majority for implementation.

— Old Timer.

MacDuff Ottawa report

OTTAWA — It's almost as though the sound and fury of last year's Federal election was only a dream or an optical illusion.

The pre-election parliament is meeting again with a few shifts in seating and a few new faces. But it's still the same fractured minority House and John Diefenbaker still faces Lester Pearson across those few yards of green carpet.

And the program for this Parliament—at least what was contained in the Throne Speech—is the mixture as before.

This session will have to wrestle with the old problems. In the 11-page Throne Speech of the opening of the session there were 61 specific government programs of legislative measures. But there was scarcely one that hadn't been announced, discussed or even debated in Parliament before.

The big bills will be familiar ones: policy legislation changes in the bank act, fiscal arrangements with the provinces.

UNDERTONES

But as the session goes on it may develop that the real tension of substance is the odds of at least one subtle but definite change: have come over the House. The only safe prediction about a session of Parliament is that there's no safe prediction. But there may be hints of things to come even in the Throne Speech which must contemplate it with a weary yawn.

The provinces may discover a new firmness at Ottawa. This is the big year for federal provincial relations, when the fiscal pattern for the next five years will be set and when the nation will have to decide on Quebec's drive for special status within a federation.

Prime Minister Pearson recently blasted back at the ill-conceived intervention of Quebec's Eric Kierans into foreign affairs. And this was followed up in the Throne Speech by a declaration that Mr. Pearson's government is resolved to maintain the constitutional responsibilities of the federal government.

DIFFERENT VIEW ON MONEY

There may be a new turn in economic policy, too. Walter Gordon is gone from the Cabinet although he still sits on the front bench. And the bank act revision he drafted, for one, has gone back to the drawing boards for review by the new Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp. It is thought that Mr. Sharp will be more likely to lift the six per cent ceiling on bank loan rates, a step Mr. Gordon refused to take last year.

The railway act which found the last parliament will be modified well, perhaps meeting the near-unanimous objections of Western Canada.

EARS ATTENTIVE

But already J. J. Greene, the new agriculture minister, has been hearing from the back farm, and is stuffing the emphasis of some of the proposed policies. The fact that more than 30% of the 265 faces in Parliament were in the last House may give the Parliament a deceptive impression of sameness. The new faces are important ones as they belong to men like Robert Winters and John Marchand on the government front benches and to Grenville Hees and Dave Fulton on the Tory side.

Each of the three biggest parties in the Commons has an interesting new mix of personalities.

On the government side three former ministers—Messrs. Gordon, Lamontagne and Trembly—are notable members. But their real influence in the Commons will be something to watch especially that of Mr. Gordon whose prompt resignation following the election made him some thing of a hero to his fellow Liberals.

TESTING GROUP

Matched against these three are the trio of new cabinet Quebec Liberals Jean T. chand has the potentially im- most powerful portfolio Finance Edgar Trudeau is parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson and Gerard Pelletier is on the farthest back bench. But all three front back to front are the hottest pigs on the new Quebec throne and the solid test of Quebec's [illegible] other Quebeckers.

The Trudeau [illegible] Messrs. Hees, Fulton, Diefenbaker and the four rising Erik Nielsen, Dr. John Diefenbaker is now the chief unchallenged than he has been since the Tories [illegible] of big majority in 1962. Once a [illegible] in the NDP front bench Gabriel Lewis, a philosopher [illegible] and Canadian [illegible] more than 20 years, [illegible] taken the deputy [illegible] given up by Douglas F[illegible]

Plush living standard

Allan Y. Eaton, a member of the famous merchandising firm in Canada, recently commented on changes in the consumer market which have taken place in only the past ten years. There is today nothing like the so-called mass market for retail goods, in Mr Eaton's view, and he backs this up with a comparison of women's sports clothes, now and then. Ten years ago, this was considered a basic item, and the firm did a substantial business, for instance, in sweaters with 30 different styles. Each style would be stocked in six colors and four sizes, making a total of 720 different stock-keeping units. Today's requirements call for 175 styles, in six colors and four sizes, for a total of 4,200 stock-keeping items.

In 1955, 85% of the firm's business in women's shorts was in one basic style. Being only male, we didn't realize how far we had fallen behind the times, but today's shorts requirements include "short" shorts, regular shorts, Jamaica shorts, cabin boys, dirm diggers and even mens, in a tremendous variety of fabrics, prints, colors and sizes.

Some years ago we were highly interested when one of the local men's wear experts explained part of his problem in the field of men's shirts. With collar sizes ranging from 13 to 17½, he said, there are about ten sizes, each coming in three different sleeve lengths, making 30 varieties. There are about four popular collar styles, he suggested, making 120, and there are both french and button style cuffs, making 240 different units. Then he pointed out this is only in white, and many customers, naturally want colors or stripes, according to the fashion of the day. And then," he said, "you'd be surprised how many customers can't understand it when you sometimes can't provide three shirts in their particular size and style."

Each business has its problems, of course, and probably it's only on paper that the other fellow's business looks so much better.

But it's highly interesting to note the changes being brought into merchandising by the so-called "good life" and our ability to look for and pay for variety undreamed of by one of the world's largest merchandisers only a decade ago. Among other things, it helps to show why an up-to-the-minute inventory and knowledge of sales is so important in so many fields. And why the computer has so many areas in which its capabilities, properly used, can be a major asset in business planning.

Questions needing answers

What questions are going to receive the major considerations at the 27th Parliament, which opened a few days ago in Ottawa, ask a number of writers whose material we see. What new institutions are needed to encourage healthy economic growth? What system will give Canadian savers and borrowers the best service at the least cost? What is the most effective way to encourage Canadian ownership and control of Canadian industry and resources?

That Canadians are hungry to invest in their own country and to learn more about the principles of investing was shown a few weeks ago in Toronto when thousands turned out to listen to lectures, view exhibits and ask hundreds of questions at a week-long How to Invest Show. They have the money, and they're not looking for quick gains on fliers, according to a responsible financial paper, only a good return for a reasonable risk.

This point was underscored this week in Vancouver when Edmonton's Dr Hu Harries said at a conference that American money is flowing only into relatively good investments, with the result that the poor investments are left to Canadians. While this is doubtless an over-simplification, there is enough truth in it to explain in part why Canadians are often soured at their experiences in the market.

Tax laws, devised to encourage the use of Canadian capital for Canadian development would help. Improved regulations on the stock exchanges would help. Closer control of the various provincial securities commissions would help. And of course, closer investigation and scrutiny on the part of the individual investor would also help.

And Neil J. MacKinnon, president of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, suggests revision of some of the tax laws, such as the succession duties, and income tax above the 50% level. "Why not devise plans to attract people with capital, inventiveness, skills and energy by providing greater incentives for these qualities than in the land of our neighbors and in many other lands" asks Mr MacKinnon.

These are only a few of the questions crying for answers, but it would be interesting to know what the government will have to say about them. What, for that matter, will our own member, Cliff Smallwood say if they do come up?

Not Democratic

Editor, The Mercury.
Dear Sir,

Hooray for your editorial in last week's Mercury, "Ask for Choice".

You state the Union of Alberta Municipalities, ask that consideration be given to proportional representation in elections.

Any electoral system that produces a situation like we have in the Alberta Legislature, where a party like Social Credit, secures not quite 35 per cent of the vote getting 60 seats leaving the 65 per cent of the people who voted against the Manning Government only represented by three members, there is something drastically wrong.

The result is we have a government which when on session is arrogant and indifferent to any constructive criticism.

The UFA Government instituted a system of transferable votes for the rural ridings and proportional representation for the cities, which to a large extent truly represented the opinions of the voters.

If that system had been continued in the last election, Social Credit would have probably only secured around forty seats maybe less.

But Mr Manning, as a matter of political expediency, feel that system discarded it would take a little longer to count the votes on election night, but we agree with you that the voters of Alberta are certainly intelligent enough to use this proportional system without too much confusion.

We can rest assured however that in spite of all his high sounding talk about democracy and the rights of the individual, Mr Manning will not consent to a change.

Being inconsistant, he governs with less than fifty five per cent of the votes, yet the Government on a floorulation vote demands a two thirds majority for implementation.

MacDuff Ottawa report

OTTAWA — It's almost as though the sound and fury of last year's Federal elections was only a dream or an optical illusion.

The pre-election parliament in meeting again with a few shifts in seating and a few new faces. But it's still the same fractured minority House and John Diefenbaker still faces Lester Pearson across those few yards of green carpet.

And the program for this Parliament—at least what was contained in the Throne Speech—is the mixture as before.

This session will have to wrestle with the old problems, in the Throne Speech which at the opening of the session there were 65 specific government programs of legislative measures. But there was scarcely one that hadn't been announced, discussed or even debated in Parliament before.

The big bills will be familiar ones, railway legislation changes in the bank act, fiscal arrangements with the provinces.

DEBATE TIMES

But as the session goes on it may develop that the impression of sameness is the optical illusion that visible but definite changes have come over the House. The only safe prediction about a session of Parliament is that there's no safe prediction. But there may be hints of things to come even in the Throne Speech which need commentators dismissed with a weary yawn.

The province may discover a new firmness at Ottawa. This is the big year for federal provincial relations when the fiscal pattern for the next five years will be set and when the nation will have to decide on Quebec's drive for "special status" within Confederation.

Prime Minister Pearson recently blasted back at the 35-conceived intervention of Quebec's Eric Kierans into foreign affairs. And this was followed in the Throne Speech by a declaration that Mr Pearson's government is resolved to maintain the constitutional responsibilities of the federal government.

DIFFERENT VIEW ON MONEY

There may be a new turn in economic policy, too. Walter Gordon is gone from the Cabinet although he still sits on the front bench. But the bank act revision he drafted, for one, has gone back to the drawing boards for review by the new Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp. It is thought that Mr Sharp will be more likely to let the six per cent ceiling on bank loan rates stay.

Mr Gordon refused to take last year.

The railway act which found the last parliament will be modified as well, perhaps meeting the near-unanimous objections of Western Canada.

BARS ATTENTIVE

But already J. J. Greene, the new agriculture minister, has been hearing from the back farmers and is shifting the emphasis of some of the proposed policies.

The fact that more than 200 of the 265 faces in Parliament were on the last House may give the Parliament a deceptive impression of sameness. The new faces are important now since they belong to men like Robert Winters and Jean Marchand on the government front benches and to George Hees and Dave Fulton of the Tory side.

Each of the three biggest parties in the commons has an interesting new mix of personalities.

On the government side, three former ministers—Mervin Gordon, Lamontagne and Trembly—sit as private members. But the real influence at the Commons will be something to watch especially that of Mr Gordon whose prompt resignation follow ing the election made him something of a hero to his fellow Liberals.

TESTING GROUP

Watched closely these three are the trio of "new guys" that Mr Liberals Jean Chrétien has the potentially important portfolios Trudeau is parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson And Gerard Pelletier is on the farthest back bench. But all three front-rank Liberals to front are the litmus paper the new Quebec throws into the solid test of Ottawa which features other Quebecers.

The Tories have the Minority Hees, Fulton Davis Rich and the four-term Erik Nielsen. Dr John Diefenbaker is in the chair unchallenged than he has been since the Tories held office for five years. The majority in 1962 was gone at the NDP front bench with Darcy Lewis a photographer strategist of Canadian once to be more than 30 years in the taken the deputy standing given up by Douglas F

Strebergs buy auction mart, buying station

R F "Bob" Somahor, who acquired ownership of Camrose Auction Co. Ltd. from Veld Brothers about six years ago, announced Monday this week there has been a change of management of both Camrose Auction and the Camrose Livestock Buying Station.

Otto Streberg is now president and general manager of Camrose Auction, while his brother, Dennis Streberg is president and general manager of the livestock buying station. Mr Somahor said he will be staying on the staff of Camrose Auction as auctioneer and assistant manager. It is interesting to note Mr. Somahor learned auctioneering after he had taken over as manager of Camrose Auction.

Both Otto and Dennis Streberg and their families will be moving to Camrose from the Meeting Creek district as soon as they can obtain suitable accommodation. Both boys were born and reared at Meeting Creek. The Streberg name has become known throughout the province in cutting circles, and they are equally as well known as Hereford cattle breeders.

Otto Streberg worked as an auctioneer with Camrose Auction for a short time a few years ago before going to the West Coast where he was employed by an industrial auction firm.

"We'll carry on the business in exactly the same way", Otto told The Canadian Monday. "We're keeping the same staff in both places".

The official opening at the auction mart will be held this Saturday, and open house at the buying station is scheduled for Feb. 1st and 3rd. Coffee and doughnuts will be served on all three occasions.

Curling carnival a huge success!

(M. K. Westmancoat)

Despite the very cold weather, the Ryley Curling Club held their first annual Winter Carnival, which everyone agreed was comparatively successful.

Both evenings were filled with keen ice competitions, bingo, other games of chance, and on Friday a Carnival dance and the crowning of the Carnival Queen. Lucy Diserelais was crowned Queen by the curling club secretary and M.C. for the evening, Darryl Albrecht. First runner-up was Evelyn Kosack, also of Ryley; second runner-up, Shirley Dirkes of Edmonton, followed by Linda McKinnon of Viking and Darlene Sand of Camrose.

The girls were then called upon to make the draws for the prizes raffled in conjunction with their Queen tickets. Winners were as follows: Frank Rawlack, Prince Rupert, B. C. (record player); M. G. Ward, Edmonton (transistor radio); Mrs. E. H. Brown, Ryley (transistor radio); Brian Brown, Viking (electric knife); John J. Stelly, Vegreville (electric knife); Vaughn Runyon, Viking (electric clock), Miss Missy Macleod, Edmonton (heating pad); John Kosalnik, Viking (blanket); Howard Dean, Galahad (blanket).

Ryley's own "Sophie Tucker" plunked out several numbers on the honky-tonk piano

All in all it was a successful endeavour, and now the club invites all men to the Open Bonspiel, February 14th to 18th meant that the rink would go to Edmonton on Jan. 20, 21 and 22 for the Regional playoffs and if they should be successful in Edmonton they would go to the Provincial Playoffs in Calgary on Jan. 28 and 29; and, if they should win in Calgary, they would go to St. John's, Newfoundland, Feb. 21 to 25. Mr. Hemphill recommended that a non-teacher accompany the rink, preferably one of the parents of the boys on the rink. Mr. Hemphill had discussed this matter with the boys as well as with a parent, and he was sure that this could be arranged for. He pointed out that he was almost certain that it was not necessary that a teacher accompany the team as a coach and that any adult could do so. It was mentioned that Pepsi Cola was sponsoring the Curling Playoffs this year and that no responsibility rests with the County. The parents of the students making up the rink have to sign a form accepting full responsibility in all matters.

Moved and carried that this meeting now adjourns to Wednesday, Jan. 12, at 10:00 a.m.

RECONVENED MEETING

The reconvened meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 12, was called to order at 10:30 a.m. by the chairman.

An application for a bursary from Richard Thiessen was referred to the Committee by the Superintendent. Mr. Thiessen has his B.A. from Waterloo University and is now taking Education at the U. of A. and has agreed to teach in the County upon completion of his education and would be teaching English and Social Studies in one of the schools in the County.

Moved and carried that the bursary application be approved.

A report from the Fire Commissioner's Office concerning an inspection of the Viking School was referred to the Committee. Particular notice was taken of recommendation No. 6, which stated that the corridor lengths are in contravention of Alberta Regulation, 108/59. This had been noted on the inspection on Nov. 7, 1964, and no steps had been taken to correct the situation.

Mr. Pike referred to the Committee a letter that he had written to the Deputy Fire Commissioner concerning the recommendation No. 6 explaining why no action had been taken on the recommendation made on Nov. 17, 1964.

Moved and carried that the report be accepted and the Superintendent's action concurred in.

The Superintendent referred to motion 99-65, which stated that commercial photographers be allowed to take pictures in the schools in the County for the purpose of having them placed in the yearbook, such pictures to be group pictures only.

Mr. Pike pointed out that in a yearbook it was desirable to have individual pictures, and he suggested that this motion be amended.

Moved and carried that motion 99-65 be amended by stating that individual pictures of the high school students may be taken for use in the year book.

Mr. Pike stated that the old library shelves at the Viking school could not be used in the new library.

Moved and carried that Nick Skibinski be authorized to sell this shelving as he saw fit.

Mr. Pike mentioned that tape recorders and tape in French and German would be used in the final exams for Grade 12 this year, and that arrangements were being made to have tape recorders in all the schools. The only school that did not have one was Tofield and the tape recorder from the office can be used at this place.

Mr. Pike mentioned that the County of Minburn school bus is picking up a Grade 1 pupil on S.W. 23-49-13-W4th in the County of Beaver. To accommodate this pupil the County of Minburn has extended their bus route one mile but that the child still has over one mile to walk, and it was felt some arrangements should be made to bring a bus closer to the home of the pupil if at all possible.

Moved and carried that Cr. Johnson investigate this situation and make the best arrangements possible.

Reference was made to payment of accounts under the Pupil Accident Policy, some difficulty having arisen from the fact that payments were being made to the parents of the injured child and that in some instances payment was not made to the doctor concerned.

Moved and carried that arrangements be made, if possible, for the payments under the Pupil Accident Policy to be made directly to the physician concerned.

The Superintendent informed the Committee that the Caretaker in Viking, being a very old machine, was almost impossible to repair and that a new machine would cost $282.50 including a $40 trade-in on the old machine.

Moved and carried that a Caretaker be purchased for the Viking school.

Mr. Pike referred to the report on teacher recruitment that had been given at the Trustees' Zone

School committee meets January 11th

meeting on January 7th Some 194 teachers had been interviewed by Mr Gandi and 31 teachers had been hired in Zones 2 and 3 at an approximate cost of $170 per teacher. At the meeting it had been suggested that the two Zones should not combine this year but still, when voted upon, it was decided that the recruitment program be combined for Zones 2 and 3. Mr. Pike stated that the County of Beaver had obtained 8 teachers under the recruitment program, the County of Minburn 6 and the Forestburg Consolidated School District three teachers. The 17 other areas had only obtained 17 teachers between them. He felt that the program had not been too successful However, the Executive of Zone 2 had decided to combine with Zone 3 again. An executive meeting should be called with the Superintendents present to further discuss the situation.

Mr. Pike stated that he would be happy to have certain other Superintendents hire his teachers directly at the time of interview. It was mentioned that any Superintendent that undertook this work would have to be granted leave of absence by the Dept of Education

Moved and carried that Mr Pike be authorized to hire teachers on behalf of the County and other areas if requested to do so by Zone 3

In regards to the Viking Building Program, Mr Pike reported that a request had been made for the $3 per square foot additional grant which was applicable as of Jan. 1, 1966. He also reported on the work that Nick Shkhaski and his crew are doing in prefabbing certain furniture for the laboratory in Viking, and he felt that Stan Kubin could start some of this work for the library if arrangements could be made for him to use part of the grader shed in Viking

Moved and carried that the report be accepted.

The Committee was advised that the Town of Viking had requested that the Grade 1 rooms be left where they are when they are abandoned as classrooms, to be used for meeting places for the various youth organizations in the Town. Mr. Pike was of the opinion that they were in a bad location, and also stated that the Department had suggested that they should be moved. Mr. Pike also recommended that the one room school to the north, that is the old Home Ec. room, be disposed of when no longer required.

Probably the most important thing about this Parliament is that it has come out from the the "post - Diefenbaker" period as evident in the last House where everybody was so busy proving something to somebody that they hadn't much time to run the country.

Having done much better than anybody thought he would, Mr Diefenbaker now takes a more relaxed view of his place in Canadian history. And having done more than they hoped, the Liberals know that they'll have to convince Canadians, by deeds not words, that they're worthy of the majority for which they have vainly sought in five elections in the past nine years.

Modern etiquette

Q. When are "informals" used in correspondence?

A. The "informal" is a foldover card, and may be used for any short, informal note—for sending and replying to invitations, for enclosing with a gift, friendly notes to acquaintances, and the like. This type of card is not proper, however, for writing messages of condolence.

Q. I saw a woman recently use her napkin at the dinner table for wiping perspiration from her brow. Wasn't this in rather poor form?

A. It was much more than RATHER poor form! The napkin is used only for wiping the lips and the fingers.

Q. Is it necessary to send a wedding gift when one is invited only to the wedding, but not to the reception?

A. In this case, no. Only an invitation to the reception imposes a gift.

Q. Is it proper for the bridegroom to hand the clergyman his fee for the wedding?

A While not exactly improper, the usual procedure is for the bridegroom to place his best man to take care of this.

Co-op Talent Night is scheduled for 25th

The Co-op and Tofield 4-H Talent Night, scheduled for Friday, Feb. 25th, is beginning to shape up as an evening of real enjoyment for the entire family.

The Co-op of Tofield announced during the past week that two winners between the ages of 16-21 will compete in Edmonton in a district final competition. Then the top five winners from this show will be awarded a one week all-expense paid educational trip through Alberta and Saskatchewan This should add an extra incentive and improve the calibre of all those who enter in this age group.

The district finals in Edmonton are usually put on in a disabled Veterans' hospital, so the contestants, besides competing for top honors, will at the same time be entertaining those less fortunate who are unable to get around

The two winners can either be a duet or two single performers.

There will also be a free lunch served after the evening's entertainment, with the Co-ops furnishing the refreshments and the 4-H members serving.

Admission has been set at 75c for adults; students over 12, 50c, and under 12, free.

Entries should be sent to Grant Cossey, phone 662-2238, or Lyle Heiberg, 662-2222, or they can be left with Johnny Baergen at the Co-op store. Entries should be in the hands of the committee by Thursday evening, Feb. 24th, so a program can be arranged.

Tofield Library has good year in '65

The treasurer's report, read by Dorothy Freebury at the annual meeting of the Tofield Municipal Library on January 24th, showed a very successful year. The cash balance at the end of 1965 was $80.70. Receipts totalled $1,064.08, being made up of fees, fines and book sales, $137.63; grants for $859.65, and donations for $68.80. Disbursements totalled $989.62, being made up of book purchases, $742.72; extension book rentals, $50; fees for librarian's course, $20; book repairs, $42, and postage, supplies and miscellaneous, $134.90.

In the librarian's report, it was revealed that books borrowed in 1965 averaged 91 per week. "Young Canada Book Week" program of Hobbies and Collections was well received, and tag day netted $52.

Mrs. Freebury recommended that the Board appoint Joan Dunham as treasurer for the Library, and Mayor Dr. Freebury moved the appointment of Mrs. Dunham as treasurer, which was approved.

Mayor Dr. Freebury, on behalf of the Town Council, appointed Bert Everitt and re-appointed Hazel Patterson, each for a three-year term, as members of the Municipal Library Board. The Executive for 1966 will be Ed Warson as chairman, Joan Dunham, treasurer, and Rita Halverson, secretary.

Could expand here

Meeting in Edmonton recently for their annual meeting, the Victorian Order of Nurses heard the call from their president for the need to expand by extending their services into new communities

We have little idea of the size of community needed to support the wonderful work of the VON, but Tofield would seem to offer an ideal opportunity While fees are never sufficient, and have to be supplemented by groups such as the United Appeal, still the great majority of costs are met by the small charges made for the services rendered by the nurses as they make their rounds, helping young mothers, bedridden patients and so on, in their own homes. In any case, it might be worth an exploratory look here.

This might be an area where the local chapter of AARN would have some knowledge and some interest, as a sister organization, it might be a field for the Chamber of Commerce as an added service in the community, it might be a field for the BPWC, for the town or provincial welfare departments. Or some other group, or maybe committees of all of them.

But let's hope the VON gets a chance to take a look at Tofield, and see if part of their destiny may lie here.

Test needed

Canada's Supreme Court is being asked to decide when a man is, in fact, in control of a car or truck, and when he could be said not to be in control The question was brought up when a Saskatchewan man was acquitted of being in charge, while impaired, of a vehicle which had left the road and landed in the ditch, so that it had to be hauled out.

The case was appealed, and judgment reversed by a judge, whose judgment was sustained by the provincial appeal court Taken to the supreme court in the country, there seems some chance the justices may declare that since the vehicle could not move from its position, the driver was not actually in control. What seems more important, they are discussing the point that the law was never intended to cover certain situations such as this.

Clearing up anomalies in the law which lead to ridiculous charges can do nothing but improve public respect for the law, while trying to convict on such unintended errors in wording the law only heightens the disrepute into which law enforcement forces, unfortunately, have fallen in the eyes of many citizens.

This loss of stature is most unfortunate and should be avoided so far as possible at all costs, since in large part the very warp and woof of our society depends on our acceptance of the rule of law. Without this acceptance, we revert to a state of savagery and nihilism.

For safety's sake

Alberta drivers next year will not take long to recognize the major boost in the cause of safety that will be made by the 1967 license plates scheduled to go into production next week at Fort Saskatchewan for distribution a year later.

For the first time, the numbers and printing will be reflectorized, using an improved method of coating with glass beads.

While the plates can only help in the safety program when they're relatively free of mud, of course, it doesn't take long to figure out what a help they'll be when meeting a one-eyed driver, and trying to figure out which headlight is the one that's on. Glowing in the middle of the car, the plate will readily identify the proportions of the vehicle.

And, too, on those odd occasions following a vehicle without taillights, or older vehicles with very small and dim rear lights, the reflection will prove a warning again.

The '67 plates, by the way, will be white with green letters, and will display a maple leaf and state "1867-1967". Cost of the reflectorizing is about a nickle a plate

Bon mot

Several months ago when Canada's weekly newspapers met in convention in Edmonton, one of French Canada's publishers from the north shore of the St. Lawrence was selected to thank a speaker on Expo 67.

We cannot quote directly Monsieur Allen's speech at this time, but we have not failed to remember the ringing message he delivered in his thank you, and his complete awareness of the feelings of both sides in Canada's controversy of cultures and tongues

A really good play on words is interesting at any time, but a bon mot in a second language must be doubly difficult. His closing statement was to the effect: "On all sides we hear suggestions that Canada will split wide open during 1967, but the great body of French Canadians do not believe this, or want this, any more than you do. And I have no hesitation in stating my firm conviction that its Centennial year will prove to be the rupture of Canada, not its rupture."

The Alberta Association of Consumers advises there is little uniformity in sizing of dresses made by different manufacturers. Now, men, when the little woman brags about how much her diet is doing for her, since she was able to take a size 14 instead of her usual 20, better investigate before you praise her to the skies.

The Consumers' Association says: "One size 16 may fit perfectly Others may be too large or too small for the same person Many women say that they find that, because more expensive dresses are better cut, they are comfortable in a size smaller than they would be in cheaper dresses In fact, cheaper dresses in small sizes appear to be designed for the mass market, because bust darts are usually too high for the more mature figure.

"Nor can you be sure that the right size for one kind of garment will be right also for another One woman in 36-37 tells CAC that she buys size 10 in a shirtwaist dress, size 7 in a party dress and size 14 in shorts"

There are other problems, too "Small women dislike having to wear the same styles as their teen-age daughters Size 8, for example, seems to be regarded by manufacturers as only a teenage size

"Tall women feel neglected by dress designers Older women complain that there are few attractive ready-made clothes for the more mature figure

"Several women asked why blouses were so short that they rode up and exposed a strip of bare back whenever they bent over"

No questionnaire fails to produce some amusing replies. It was surprising how many women could not bring themselves to reveal their hip measurements, even anonymously One lady modestly gave her vital statistics fully clothed and we like another's observation that "narrow skirts are not graceful for mature women when sitting".

The Consumers' Association of Canada hopes that its findings will help the clothing industry to work towards better sizing of women's clothes, to the benefit alike of manufacturers and consumers.

Considering the variations and shortcomings listed above, I don't envy the Association one bit.

MacDuff Ottawa report

SOCIETY BUILT ON SAND

OTTAWA —Federal and provincial governments, in new sessions of their legislatures, are finally giving priority to education and the war on poverty

In Canada, as elsewhere, poverty and ignorance go hand in hand. Find the untrained, the uneducated, and generally speaking, there you find the poor.

The logic of this seems simple, but it has eluded federal and provincial governments, for many years They have failed to ensure an educated population, a trained labour force, and deeply rooted poverty has been the result in many parts of Canada.

Only recently have governments, and Canadians generally, begun to peer uncomfortably at the ugly blemishes marring the fair complexion of their society

TOUGH JOB THERE

This year, the year before the Centennial, will mark truly massive spending by federal and provincial governments in an effort to raise educational standards and wipe out poverty

Some of these efforts will be undertaken jointly by the two levels of government Some will be undertaken separately But the total spending on welfare, education, and manpower training will be reckoned in the billions.

The federal government will put upwards of $270 million into the Canada Assistance Plan, to be matched by the provinces, to help the needy, the aged, the infirm, widows and orphans

There will be a vast improvement in technical training, with millions going into a new program under which unemployed persons will be paid while undergoing retraining in technical schools.

There will be a special $50 million fund for rural development, and increased help for marginal farm areas

The provinces will spend hundreds of millions on new schools, special allowances, teacher training, and equipment.

The federal government will put $500 million into university grants, an increase of $60 million over last year. Another $40 million in Federal money will provide 40,000 university scholarships and bursaries over the next four years

NEVER TOO EXPENSIVE

This spending of course is in addition to current spending on pensions, family allowances, education, technical training, and health. It is also in addition to the ambitious scheme of universal medical insurance the federal government hopes to set in motion next year.

It is a huge, expensive program. But we cannot say it is too much. We can only hope it is not being undertaken too late

The face of Canada today is basically one of prosperity. For a long time governments acted as though that were the only

Enclosed please find $2.50 for our subscription to your paper for the coming year It has been very good to receive your paper each week with the news of old friends and neighbours, and we have been able to keep in touch with them and know what is going on this year. My husband was born in Cecil Ann district and lived there all his life until we moved to this city in 1964.

We were also interested in the boys who won awards for the highest marks in the Grade IX exams last June I know your paper does not cover the ordinary Viking news but we saw their names in the Edmonton Journal and also in a reference to special awards from the County of Beaver to the School Board members, so there has been no other mention about them Do you know if these were terms?

Would be pleased if you could find out and perhaps put a little news item in the paper about them as it must be very unusual to have two winners in Grade IX honors in one school division face. But now surveys and special studies have delineated the profile of poverty.

It is an unflattering profile, to say the least Here are some of the salient features, taken from a federal working paper presented to the federal-provincial conference on poverty last December.

SIGNIFICANT PROPORTION

The Canadian poor are numbered in the millions. Close to a million Canadian families have incomes of less than $3,000 a year

In 1961, one in 20 of all Canadian dwellings was dilapidated.

In the same year, of all Canadians over 15, more than five million, or 47 per cent, had no more than elementary schooling. During that time of heavy unemployment, half the unemployed people in Canada had not finished primary school.

This points up the essential link between poverty and ignorance, and conversely, between prosperity and education.

It will probably come as a severe shock to many Canadians to learn that this is an ill-educated country, by comparison with, say, the United States.

MYTH SHATTERED

There has been a smug assumption here that while the U.S. might surpass Canada in material things, our educational system is superior to that of the vulgar, acquisitive American.

Facts are now beginning to shatter this myth.

The Economic Council of Canada, in its second annual report, said that the lower level of education in Canada was a major reason for lower levels of income here. Years of effort would be required to close the educational gap between Canada and the U.S.

The Council reported that 11.1 per cent of the U.S. labour force had university education, compared to 5.3 per cent in Canada. That ratio also held for high school education.

TRAINED BUT POOR RECOGNIZED TODAY

The situation is obviously not improving. Finance Minister Sharp stated recently that 30 per cent of Canadians between the ages of 14 and 24 have left school with only grade eight education. "These are tomorrow's poor", said Mr. Sharp

Basically, the lesson is clear. Canada's poor lack of training, and those who lack training lack the means of improving their condition.

Nearly half of adult Canadians have only an elementary education, and they are sitting ducks for unemployment and the quagmire of poverty

With that kind of manpower base under the Canadian economy there can be no real stability

As long as Canadians are poorly educated, there will be poverty here. And as long as there is poverty, there can be little joy and little assurance in an affluent society built on sand.

From 1950 to 1963 total public welfare spending in Canada rose from $1 billion to $4 billion.

New measles vaccine offered to children

The Hon. J. Donovan Ross, Minister of Health, has announced that measles vaccine will now be available for all children in Alberta who are between three months and three years of age, and who have not had the disease. The vaccine will be given at clinics, health units and elsewhere.

Measles vaccine has now been in use in North America on a private basis for two and one-half years and has been shown to be a safe and effective way of preventing measles.

Contrary to popular belief, measles is not just a simple childhood disease, but one which can have serious consequences. In 1964, in Alberta, nine children died as a result of measles and many others were made seriously ill.

Children in this age group are likely to become seriously ill as a result of measles

Alberta is the first province to undertake a program of providing measles vaccine to all young children. It is estimated 80,000 children will be eligible.

The schedule recommended is three doses of killed vaccine one month apart, followed seven months later by a dose of live measles vaccine.

Ducks Unlimited recently heard about a pair of Egyptian geese, escaped from a pen at Devil's Lake, North Dakota, which were shot near Alameda, Saskatchewan. Somebody managed to salvage wings, head and neck to permit positive identification — just before the hunter popped his exotic meal into the oven.

On the Provincial Scene

By JOHN WARREN

Premier Manning is undoubtedly a remarkable man. A politician all his adult life, he has suffered few of the serious attacks on his integrity that plague most men in that hazardous trade. His interests range from preaching to farming and his knowledge covers the entire sphere of government affairs.

One of the things Mr. Manning does best is squelch the people who annoy him from time to time. There have been quite a number recently. Some, like Neil Reimer, are quickly disposed of. Asked recently to comment on a statement by the NDP leader, Mr. Manning retorted that he paid no attention to Mr Reimer, who "couldn't tell the truth if he tried".

A few years ago the former federal resources minister, Walter Dinsdale, made the mistake of commenting on a particular area of the oil and gas industry. I can remember Mr. Manning explaining, with a pleasant smile: "I could write a book on what that man doesn't know about the oil industry". He then proceeded to explain.

This is more the premier's tone. The manner is that of a patient teacher with a balky student.

Last week the students included the federal minister of agriculture, J. J. Greene; the former minister, Harry Hays; The Southam Newspapers' political expert, Charles Lynch; the government in Ottawa, and an Indian girl studying at the University of Alberta. The list is composed of mere mortals, obviously over-

Mr. Manning noted that Mr. Greene had a "very poor memory" the day he told the house of commons no special request for aid to Peace River farmers had been received by the federal government. "He signed the letter rejecting the request", explained Mr. Manning.

And Mr. Hays "missed the point entirely" when he said the Alberta farmers could have been protected if the province had co-operated in a federal crop insurance scheme. The premier pointed out that Ontario and Quebec have had just as long to get crop insurance but farmers there got $15,000,000 in special aid.

Mr. Lynch's error was to suggest that the Alberta premier calls the signals for the federal Social Credit leader, Robert Thompson. "It is totally false", said Mr. Manning. "The story was completely biased" and unfair to the five Socreds in Ottawa.

The entire federal government was rapped on the farm assistance issue; for discrimination in aid to the provinces for Trans-Canada highway building; and for building the expanded heavy water plant in Nova Scotia instead of Alberta.

And 21-year-old Marie Smallface had her knuckles rapped for telling an Indian conference in Toronto that Alberta Indians can't vote in provincial elections. "They were given provincial voting rights at the last session of the legislature", said the premier.

Much of the news space last week was taken up by the grain-shipping situation and developments affecting higher education in Alberta.

While the railways, the federal government, the grain companies and the grain handling authorities in Vancouver blamed one another for the problems, the three prairie provinces got together to complain. "Never mind passing the buck. Let's just get the grain moving" they said to Ottawa. At week's end a commission had been named to try to do just that.

The government announced it would boost grants to the University of Alberta by $235 per student in an effort to prevent higher student fees. Mr Manning said the jump to $1,000 a student, would probably mean provincial assistance to the two university campuses would total $22,400,000 next year.

And a special study of higher education needs in Alberta last week recommended extensive changes for both the university and junior (or community) colleges.

Around the town

Mrs W McHaffey left January 28th for Kamloops, B.C., to help out at the home of her son, Bill Warner, and two daughters, while Mrs. Warner is in Vancouver with their infant son who is receiving medical attention in the General Hospital.

Ray Ovelson of Kingman was the winner of the Tofield Legion Arf and Arf $30 for January.

* * *

Mrs. Tom Nahrebeski visited in Edmonton for a few days last week with her daughter and son-in-law, Ethel and Paul Chorney and family.

Modern etiquette

Q. Just what is meant by "semi-formal", as applied to the dress of both men and women?

A. This usually depends upon the community. In some places, where men customarily wear tails, semi-formal means tuxedos for them and simple evening dresses for the women. In a simpler community, it would be plain dark blue or grey suits for the men and afternoon frocks for the women.

Q. Is it permissible at the dinner table to eat the skin of a baked potato, and also the parsley used as a garnish?

A. If you enjoy these items, it is perfectly proper to eat them.

Q. I've been told that the "elbows-on-table" rule of eating has been relaxed Is this true?

A Yes, and it has been for some years. It is now generally acceptable to lean the elbows on the table—so long as you do this BETWEEN courses and not while you're actually eating.

Q. Is it necessary to respond with a "You're welcome" to a "thank you"?

A. Some sort of response should be made, and "You're welcome", or "That's quite all right" are always in good order.

Q. When a bride is being married in her "going away" dress, should she carry a bouquet?

A. It would be better if she wore a corsage.

Barbara Roth marries Mervin Yoder Dec. 30th.

The Salem Mennonite Church was the scene of a lovely wedding on December 30th at 6.30 p.m., when Miss Barbara Louise Roth, daughter of Mr and Mrs Joseph E. Roth, became the bride of Mervin Leland Yoder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernie E Yoder of Camrose

The bride was lovely in a gown of white velvet and she carried a bouquet of red roses with silver balls. Her sister, Faye (Mrs. Ed Friesen) of Eaglesham, was matron of honor. Her sister, Pat Roth, and Marian Yoder, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids. They wore identical street length dresses of red velvet and carried red velvet muffs with white 'mums. The groom's cousin, Derrill Reil, was groomsman, and Bryan Stauffer best man. Harley Stauffer, Ed Friesen and Dennis Boettger served as ushers

The mothers of the bride and groom wore teal blue suits with brown accessories, and yellow rose corsages

Rev Paul Voegtlin offered the meditation, Rev Harold Boettger solemnized the ceremony, and Rev M. D Stutzman, grandfather of the bride, offered a prayer of dedication. The wedding music was rendered by a mixed quartet and ladies' trio

A reception was given in the church basement to 100 guests, with Joseph Voeglin capably serving as master of ceremonies. Harold Lauber proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom ably responded

For her honeymoon, the bride chose a two-piece blue wool suit with black accessories, and red rose corsage

Mr and Mrs Yoder are residing in Edmonton.

OORP and Elks celebrate their 20th anniversary

(Mrs. G. Taylor)

On Saturday evening, January 29th the Holden Lodge (OORP) and the BPO Elks held a joint social party to celebrate the 20th anniversary of both Lodges.

The BPOE was instituted in October 1945 and the OORP was instituted on January 22nd 1946. Of the 42 charter members of the OORP there are still 11 members, two being non-resident, the other nine still taking active part in all Lodge activities. Their first P.N.R.L., Rita Stewart still keeps her membership although now residing in Victoria, B.C.

The evening was spent dancing, various games and playing cards. The Elks also entertained with a few skits. The entertainment was in the good hands of Bro Earl Hardy, who was the first Exalted Ruler of the Elks Lodge. After a sumptuous lunch, Exalted Ruler Zane Bilyk spoke a few words regarding the Lodge and presented a 20-year pin to Alfred Sorenson, a charter member and also presented a 15-year pin to Sam Black.

P.N.R.L. Mason then spoke a few words on the OORP. During the years Holden Lodge has instituted other Lodges; these being Viking Lodge by D.D.S.R. R.L. Dorothea Grosland (deceased); assisting with the institution of Hardisty Lodge; and of Kinsella Lodge by P.D.D.S.R. R.L. Irene Taylor and assisting with Irma Lodge Holden Lodge was instituted by the former P.S.H.R.L. MacPhee of Camrose Lodge.

It is interesting to note that a charter member, Mrs. Zella Henderson who took her demit on leaving to reside in Tabor, several years ago, there being no OORP there then, was a charter member when Tabor Lodge was instituted. Both the BPO Elks and the OORP are active in all community affairs.

The Mercury

Tofield Hiway 14 Ryley Holden

PROVINCIAL LIBRARY EDMONTON, ALTA.

VOL. 14 NO. 24 PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT TOFIELD, ALBERTA Thursday, February 10th., 1966

Two vain tries

Safes too tough for thief's cutting torch

A burglar or burglars learned to their dismay late Sunday or early Monday morning safe manufacturers have improved their products to quite an extent. In the old days a welder's cutting torch made short work of a safe's locking mechanism, but the high grade steel used in today's construction is highly resistant to the torch treatment.

Attempts were made to cut into the vault of the Bank of Montreal at Daysland and to crack another safe in the Treasury Branch agency in Holden.

RCMP at Camrose have reason to believe both jobs were attempted by traveling criminals from Edmonton, and that the same party made both attempts.

At the Daysland bank entry was gained by breaking a lock on the rear door. Indications were the thieves tried to enter by the front door, using a bar on the lock, but this attempt was unsuccessful. "They were very neat fellows", commented an RCMP spokesman "They left no mess at all".

Both cases are still under investigation.

At Holden the office of Dryden Insurance and Accounting was entered. A window was forced open to gain entry, and the burglars then opened the back door to bring their equipment out of the building. They tried first to cut the front of the safe but ran into insulation. Then they cut a large panel out of the side, removing the outside shell. The inside shell, however, was not touched, leading police to suspect they either ran out of fuel for the torch, or were frightened away.

No more trips for E. Brice

A familiar figure on Tofield streets, or walking to the lake and back on a Saturday morning, Edward Brice, barrister and solicitor, will not be seen too often at the town any more.

Except when he was on holidays Mr. Brice never missed a trip to Tofield from Edmonton every second week over the past 50 years. He was town solicitor in 1914.

In a recent letter to the town secretary, Mr. Bruce wrote: "I have enjoyed my contact with the town for about half a century, during which time I have made some enemies but, at the same time, appreciate having made some good friends".

Historical Society to meet February 15th

Foiled by the cold weather in January in its attempt to hold the annual meeting the Tofield Historical Society has decided to hold the meeting on February 15th. As a large crowd is expected to be on hand and Mrs. Walsh-Sloan on Pipe Organist on hand the meeting has been changed to the meeting room of Library of the Community Centre.

In order to allow ample time for the business meeting, which includes election of officers, the business to come before the entertainment by Mr. and Mrs. Smith, it is hoped by Mr. Harold Schultz, president, that everyone will make an effort to be present for 7:30. This is earlier than usual, but this change is felt necessary to allow more time to enjoy the evening's entertainment.

Remember 7:30 in the community Centre meeting room on Tuesday, February 15th for the Annual Meeting of the Tofield Historical Society.

Tofield boys undefeated!

(Elaine Walker)

Last Friday evening completed the boys' basketball schedule by winning the game 66 to 33 over Ryley, the Tofield Boys' High School team remained undefeated and clinched the title.

The game was well-played, with all the boys of the Tofield team scoring.

The Tofield girls played a very commendable game, but were defeated 24 to 18. The girls will play one more game in Viking this Friday.

Since the Tofield boys won the League Championship, the Basketball Tournament on February 19th will be held in Tofield. Saturday afternoon the Holden and Ryley boys will play, preceded by a game between the Tofield and Holden girls.

The championship games will take place Saturday evening between Ryley and the winner of the girls' games and between the winner of the Ryley-Holden boys' game and Tofield boys' team.

Plans are underway for a flea tournament, and it is hoped the public will continue its support in these coming games. Admission will be adults, 50c for the afternoon and also for evening games, and 25c for students for each session.

Speech contest here Thursday

(Elaine Walker)

On February 17th a Speaking Contest will be held in the library of the Tofield School. The youth of the districts of the surrounding area, Tofield school will be represented by Donna Jacobsen and Frances Soulis.

The public is also welcome to attend these speeches, which are certain to be well worth hearing.

Attend 'Sell-o-rama'

G. C. Pittet of Tofield's Macleods Family Shopping Centre, and Nancy Pittet, accompanied by Ray A. Pittet, all attend Macleods 16th annual "Sell-o-Rama" in Edmonton Monday and Tuesday.

This annual event brings together over 250 Macleods Family Shopping Centre managers and dealers from more than 100 towns and cities in Western Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia

"PRAIRIE PLAYERS"

The public is also reminded once more of the famous "Prairie Players" coming to Tofield on February 16th. There will be some tickets available, and the plays will be begin at 7:30 in the Tofield Community Hall

Good turnout

As indicated by the number of cars and trucks clustered around the Tofield Curling Arena yesterday afternoon, the Farmers' Bonspiel, now under way, is as popular as ever, and has attracted a good crowd this year. Mercury Photo

VOL. 14 NO. 24 PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT TOFIELD, ALBERTA Thursday, February 10th., 1966

Two vain tries

Historical Society to meet February 15th

Foiled by the cold weather in January in its attempt to hold the annual meeting, the Tofield Historical Society has re-scheduled the meeting for February 15th. A large crowd is expected to hear Mr. and Mrs. Scott speak on their homeland in India, the meeting has been moved to the meeting room of Town of the Community Centre.

In order to allow ample time for the business meeting, which includes election of officers, the business to come before the entertainment by Mr. and Mrs. Scott, it is hoped by Mr. Harold Schultz president, that everyone will make an effort to be present by 7.30. This is earlier than usual but the change is felt necessary to allow more time to enjoy the evening's entertainment.

Remember 7.30 in the Community Centre meeting room on Tuesday, February 15th, for the Annual Meeting of the Tofield Historical Society.

Tofield boys undefeated!

(Elaine Walker)

Last Friday evening completed the boys' basketball schedule. By topping the game 66 to 33 over Ryley, the Tofield Boys' High School team remained undefeated and clinched the title.

The game was well played, with all the boys of the Tofield team scoring.

The Tofield girls played a very commendable game, but were defeated 24 to 18. The girls will play one more game in Viking this Friday.

Since the Tofield boys won the League Championship, the Basketball Tournament on February 19th will be held in Tofield. Saturday afternoon the Holden and Ryley boys will play, preceded by a game between the Tofield and Holden girls.

The championship games will take place Saturday evening between Ryley and the winner of the girls' games and between the winner of the Ryley-Holden boys' game and Tofield boys' team.

Plans are underway for a fine tournament, and it is hoped the stable will continue its support in these coming games. Admission will be: adults, 50c for the afternoon and also for evening games, and 25c for students for each session.

Speech contest here Thursday

(Elaine Walker)

On February 17th a Speaking Contest will be held in the library of the Tofield School. The contest is for students of the surrounding area. Tofield school will be represented by Donna Taylor and Frances Shultz.

The public is also welcome to attend the speeches, which are certain to be well worth hearing.

Attend 'Sell-o-rama'

G. C. Pittet of Tofield's Macleods Family Shopping Centre, and Nancy Pittet, accompanied by Ray A. Pittet, will attend Macleods 18th annual "Sell-o-Rama" in Edmonton Monday and Tuesday.

This annual event brings together over 250 Macleods Family Shopping Centre managers and dealers from more than 100 towns and cities in Western Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

"PRAIRIE PLAYERS"

The public is also reminded once more of the famous "Prairie Players" coming to Tofield on February 18th. There will be some tickets available, and the plays will be begin at 7.30 in the Tofield Community Hall.

Safes too tough for thief's cutting torch

A burglar or burglars learned to their dismay late Sunday or early Monday morning safe manufacturers have improved their products to quite an extent. In the old days a welder's cutting torch made short work of a safe's locking mechanism, but the high grade steel used in today's construction is highly resistant to the torch treatment.

Attempts were made to cut into the vault of the Bank of Montreal at Daysland and to crack another safe in the Treasury Branch agency in Holden.

RCMP at Camrose have reason to believe both jobs were attempted by travelling criminals from Edmonton, and that the same party made both attempts.

At the Daysland bank entry was gained by breaking a lock on the rear door. Indications were the thieves tried to enter by the front door, using a bar or the lock, but this attempt was unsuccessful. "They were very neat fellows", commented an RCMP spokesman. "They left no mess at all".

Both cases are still under investigation.

At Holden the office of Drayden Insurance and Accounting was entered. A window was forced open to gain entry, and the burglars then opened the back door to bring their equipment in to the building. They tried first to cut the front of the safe but ran into insulation. Then they cut a large panel out of the side, removing the outside shell. The inside shell, however, was not touched, leading police to suspect they either ran out of fuel for the torch, or were frightened away.

No more trips for E. Brice

A familiar figure on Tofield streets, or walking to the lake and back on a Saturday morning, Edward Brice, barrister and solicitor, will not be seen too often in the town any more.

Except when he was on holidays, Mr. Brice never missed a trip to Tofield from Edmonton every second week over the past 50 years. He was town solicitor in 1911.

In a recent letter to the town secretary, Mr. Brice wrote: "I have enjoyed my contact with the town for about half a century, during which time I have made some enemies but, at the same time, appreciate having made some good friends".

Rule of law buried

We've ceased paying even lip service to the fiction that Canada is a law-abiding country wherein authority is respected, apparently, and the rule of violence and of mobs has taken over.

Who would have thought a decade ago that a union leader could have the barefaced temerity to tear up a legally issued court injunction against picketing, and continue parading imported pickets so as to bar access to a strike-bound plant, as was done last week at the [illegible] The Oshawa Times?

It [illegible] that it was another newspaper, although goodness only knows how badly the news and information is needed these days. What matters is that any industry in the country might have been involved, or may yet be involved in similar difficulties. And if it's fair for the industry [illegible] to live within the law, then it's just as fair for the union.

It's only thirty years ago that thousands of young Canadians started from the West Coast for Ottawa on a protest march against conditions facing them in the Depression. How many people recall they faced mounted machine guns in front of a round-the-clock guard in the city of Calgary? How many people recall they were turned back at Regina when the mayor read the Riot Act, again with the militia on the ready?

Where was the militia in Ontario when unprincipled men took the law into their own hands?

The big question is: What was Ontario's attorney-general doing when his deputy's injunction was contemptuously shredded? Why do we keep thinking of Hitler and the solemn document he contemptuously dismissed as "a scrap of paper"?

Farmers in trouble

People with access to far more information than we possess cannot reach agreement over who is responsible for the slow and erratic movement of grain from western farms, so far be it from us to point the finger.

When the hue and cry being raised these days is at the CPR, it hasn't always been this way. We know of farmers who a few years ago, for instance, considered switching their permits from the CNR to the CPR because they weren't getting the service needed.

But that was a few years ago and maybe things have changed all round. Certainly Camrose's Member of Parliament [illegible] seems to feel [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] on the shoulders of the Board to buy it. Certainly to argue "we can't buy it but won't let you sell it to anyone else" is preposterous.

The farmers at Andrew don't much care when their grain is shipped really, so long as they can spend the income from it. But the income from a one-bushel quota is ridiculous. These men were desperate because the Wheat Board put them in a desperate position. They weren't lawbreaking for luxuries to indulge whims [illegible] they were desperate even for the necessities of life for themselves and their families.

Why can't the Board arrange cash advances enough to cover life's bare necessities against farm stored grain [illegible]

"Enhgosed peease find our new bredy hard ... I saye wigh some inyedsey yhay your firm has fineggy run into yhe age of yhe compuyer wiyh humorous reaays."

The perils of mass mailings in this age of automation are clearly noted in that paragraph from a letter received by Tilden Rent-a-Car from Jack Lindsay, a customer in Vancouver.

No respecter of the alphabet, the machine which imprints the company's credit cards forgot to mind its p's and q's when it came to Lindsay's card and produced this address:

Mr. J. Quinsay
Jahk Quinsay Qimiyed
[illegible]
Vanhouver 2 B N

A man of letters with a sense of humor, Lindsay returned the card to Tilden's Montreal office and suggested that the automated equipment redo yhe hand and eqiminaye yhe errors.

Then there was the customer in Burnaby, B.C., who objected to having his place of residence recorded as Dumglane when actually he lived on Dunblane Avenue. And the young lady in Winnipeg who didn't care to find a "Mess" in front of her name. Tilden commanded the machine to use the proper identity by changing it to Miss.

A man named Nash in Sydney thought Tilden made a Hash of things and a chap in Ottawa whose Christian name and middle initial is Bruce S. didn't like the B.S. on his card.

Of course, I wouldn't want to guarantee I could prepare 140,000 credit cards and mail them out in two or three weeks time without an error, either.

The B.C. salmon industry received a sort of left-handed compliment from British "consumers".

According to a news item from London, B.C. salmon received an unsolicited testimonial from British shoplifters. Store Detectives Ltd., a private security agency that operates throughout Britain, reports B.C. canned salmon was the article most often picked up by shoplifters during 1965.

This hardly comes as any surprise, commented one Vancouverite. In Canada canned salmon's food value is so high it's practically a steal anyway.

Famine is possible

Famine is possible in some parts of the world in the near future unless the world's capacity to grow more food is fully used, FAO Director-General B. R. Sen told the organization's [illegible] conference in Rome.

He said that while there are [illegible]

[illegible] states are depleting North American surplus stocks.

"What should be done ... [illegible] the potential [illegible] for food production [illegible] already exist in the developed countries, most specially in the U.S.A., where in recent years millions of acres have been taken out of cultivation," he asked. # Information on liquid granular fertilizers

By Frank Kelme
Assistant District Agriculturist

Many enquiries have been received lately concerning the use of liquid fertilizer. To answer the many questions some farmers may have about it, I have the following information.

The liquid fertilizer is as effective as granular fertilizer in supplying plant nutrients. Liquid fertilizer has one big disadvantage—high cost.

Experiments were conducted this past year at the Lacombe Experimental Farm and Chedderville Project Farm. The results of these tests showed:

1. Treatment of the seed with liquid fertilizer was not effective in increasing yields.
2. Foliar sprays were not effective in increasing yields.
3. The combined use of three gallons of liquid fertilizer drilled in with the seed and two gallons of foliar spray when the crop was six to eight inches tall, produced an increase of 3.7 bushels of barley at Chedderville location and 12.9 bushel increase at Lacombe, also with barley. The use of granular fertilizer to supply exactly the same amounts of nitrogen and phosphorous produced yield increases of 2.7 and 16.1 bushels at the same two locations.

It should be noted that these are the result of only two years experiments, so their reliability is questionable.

Shower honors bride-elect

On Saturday night a miscellaneous shower was held in the Tofield Legion Hall in honor of Miss Barbara Williams, whose marriage to Mr. Kai Kristensen will take place this Saturday in the Tofield United Church.

Bonnie Bowick and Barbara's cousin, Nola Williams, assisted her in unwrapping the gifts. Barbara very graciously expressed her thanks to the ladies for the many beautiful and useful gifts.

The couple plan to make their home in Edmonton.

Glaucoma research aided by $5000 grant

The University of Alberta has received a grant of $5,000 from the E. A. Baker Foundation for the Prevention of Blindness for further research into the treatment of glaucoma. The money will finance work already being done by the Eye Department of the University to learn more about the eye disease that is the most common preventable cause of blindness among Canada's adult population.

The increase of blindness in Canada caused by glaucoma is the concern of this country's eye specialists and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind which is active in the prevention of blindness. Glaucoma causes higher pressure inside the eyeball and ends in blindness if not treated. It is responsible for ten per cent of the blindness in Canada, fifteen per cent in the older group. It is more common in people forty years and over.

Information gathered from thousands of tests taken over a period of time on glaucoma patients at University Hospital have revealed some interesting facts about the mechanism and control of pressure inside the eye. So far all tests have been on human beings; the $5,000 given by C.N.I.B. will provide an opportunity for analysis not suitable on humans through a research fellow in the Department of Pharmacology at the University of Alberta. It is hoped that his work in this field will provide information to alleviate glaucoma sufferers through the Glaucoma Diagnostic Clinic at University Hospital and the eye specialists of Alberta.

The grant is one of many made by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind to honour Col. E. A. Baker, one of the founders of C.N.I.B. and a world figure in the rehabilitation of the Blind and the Prevention of Blindness. Since its inauguration in 1962, the E. A. Baker Foundation has awarded grants totalling $60,000.

Modern etiquette

(by Roberta Lee)

Q. What does "bowing" mean for a woman?

A. Not the deep, formal bow of yesteryear. It is a pleasant nod and smile, accompanied by a slight bend forward from the waist. Bowing is a friendly gesture, not a stiff one. You would use it in greeting friends across a room, and some naturally graceful women combine it pleasantly with shaking hands.

Q. My wedding is to be a very small, informal one, and someone has told me that under these circumstances it would not be proper for me to wear a white bridal veil. Is this true?

A. Not at all, so long of course as this is your first marriage.

Q. Since I have just broken my engagement, what do I do about the wedding gifts I have already received? Should I return them and explain the reasons for breaking my engagement?

A. You should return the gifts, but it is not necessary to make any explanations. Simply that your engagement has been ended by mutual consent.

One report indicates that some biologists insist that fish and man are "brothers under the skin". They claim that man in his physical formatoins passes through recapitulation — that he is at one stage actually a fish. Women, of course, knew this from the beginning. They can even name the species!

British auto sportsman R R C Walker (above) has had a life long devotion to fine machinery. Obviously he knows something about cars . . . but one thing he didn't know was how remarkably quiet the 1966 Ford is

"1966 Ford quieter than my Jaguar? Not jolly likely!" said Rob Walker

... then he drove the Ford.

Ford's Quiet Man, who recently demonstrated the extraordinary quality of the 1966 Ford to owners of some of the world's most expensive luxury cars, here discusses the '66 Ford LTD with Rob Walker at his family's estate in Wiltshire, England.

Compare your car with the quiet of Ford's solidly built body. Take a "Quiet Test" today.

British sportsman Rob Walker was skeptical about comparing the quiet of the '66 Ford with his hand-finished Jaguar Mark 10

But then he drove both cars, and said, "This really is astonishing . . . I believe this Ford of yours really is quieter. Astonishing!"

Compare your car with the '66 Ford and you'll understand his astonishment. Ford's quiet ride is a direct result of more built-in quality—a strong, solid body that gives you quietness that compares with the world's most expensive automobiles.

This quiet quality means more value for you because today's Fords are built for years of dependable operation, years of owner satisfaction

And with it all, of course, come Ford's wonderful new ideas for your comfort and convenience. Stereo Tape players. Silent-Flo ventilation. A "Magic Doorgate" on wagons that swings out like a door, and down like a tailgate. And a host of other features offered first by Ford

Q: How many salt and pepper shakers are proper for the dinner table?

A. The most convenient placement is a pair at every other plate

Q When a girl is introducing a young man to her [redacted] should she say, "This is my mother, Mrs. Kenton"?

A No The man should be presented to her mother by saying, "Mother, this is Bob Harris" And since the young man should certainly already know her mother's name, it isn't necessary to mention it

Q Will you please suggest a note I might friend a friend who was kind enough to write to me during a recent bereavement?

A "Dear Jane Your sweet letter gave me great comfort Thank you so much for your thoughtfulness I shall call you as soon as I feel able. Lovingly, Susan."

Q Does it really make any difference whether a person sits down from the right or the left side of his chair at the dinner table?

A. No; whichever side offers the quickest and easiest access.

Q Should a woman call on a new neighbor in the same apartment building?

A. An offer of friendship is never out of place. In fact, the fine old custom of calling on new neighbors has lapsed sadly in recent years, and I'm wholeheartedly with any person who tries to revive it.

Q Do you think a social letter written with lead pencil is in good taste?

A Much better to avoid this. But if you simply MUST, it is usually nice to apologize for the pencil

Thank You!

A letter received by Mrs. J. Francis from the District Secretary, Rev E. M. B. Wheelock of the Canadian Bible Society, reads as follows

Dear Friends

We wish to convey our thanks very sincerely to the collectors and to all interested friends who donated to the Canadian Bible Society This very generous gift of $235.12 from the Tofield district is most deeply appreciated and truly encouraging

Wishing you richest blessing in the New Year and with all best regards and good wishes

Very sincerely yours,

No word yet on final wheat payment

Rumors of the final wheat payment for last year's crop have been circulated throughout the district recently, stirring many hopes The Mercury has been unable to trace the rumor, however, or to gain any backing for it.

Usually, according to most agents, the final wheat payment does not appear until March. However, according to the rumor, this year's payment was expected to arrive around the middle of February.

Most farmers agree it would be quite a Valentine.

They did the planning

This is the committee responsible for planning the mammoth Talent Show to be held Feb. 25th in Tofield. Although the three Co-ops have in years past had such shows free for their customers and friends, this year a change has been made. A small admission will be charged and proceeds will go to the Tofield Senior and Pee Wee 4-H Beef Clubs. Pictured above, are, seated left to right: Andy Helberg, 4-H Leader; Bill Friesen, UFA Director, and Ralph Cossey, Co-op Director. Standing are Grant Cossey, Marjorie Moore and Laurie Weatherill, all members of the Senior 4-H Club.

Co-ops and 4-H Clubs join to plan super talent show

On Friday evening Feb. 25th, something new in the form of a Talent Night in Tofield will take place. In previous years, the three Tofield Co-opers, namely the Co-op Store under the management of J Baergen the Maple Leaf Service UFA Co-op operated by L. Hunter and Bill Friesen and the three Alberta Wheat Pool agents of the district C Nolan L. Fosbaug and C Weir have put on a free Talent Night for their many customers and friends. This year however, these three Co-ops are sponsoring the local 4-H Beef Club in a Talent Night. There will be a charge at the door this year, with all proceeds to go towards the furtherance of the work of the 4-H Clubs

The 4-H Club actually has two clubs, the Senior and the Pee Wee Beef Clubs. The Senior Club boasts a membership of 20 and is under the capable leadership of John Moore, who has given much of his time and energy over the past years in helping the young people realize what the 4-H motto of "Learn to Do by Doing" means.

The Pee Wee Club consists of members under 12 years of age and is the potential club of tomorrow. The Pee Wees this year have 15 members and is led by Donald Woods, who has achieved many honors while he was a member of the Senior Club. These two men are doing a wonderful job in working with the 4-H, and it is hoped that the general public will lend support to the 4-H movement in Tofield

A well-planned program has been outlined and a real evening's entertainment should be in store for everybody

Bob Monroe, well-known disc jockey from radio station CFCW has consented to emcee the show while Rich Simms and Dennis Ratcliff, also from CFCW, together with Cliff Michelberg of the Co-op Extension Branch will be the judges

The Talent Night should be of special interest [illegible] between the ages of 16 and [illegible] as two winners [illegible] group will be eligible to compete in an Edmonton district final [illegible] winners will be picked and awarded an all-expense educational trip through Alberta and Saskatchewan during the Easter holidays

As an added attraction for the show Mr & Mrs Sidhu, teachers at Tofield who recently arrived from India, will favor the audience with numbers in song in their native tongue and also perform several of their native Indian dances

The Tofield Band under the direction of Sgt. Coates will also render several numbers

The Co-ops are also going to continue a practise that they started several years ago to serve coffee and lunch to everyone at the end of the evening's entertainment

The 4-H Clubs, in meeting with the Co-ops, set up the following committees: Publicity – Laurie Weatherill, Colleen Wylie, Grant Cossey, Marjorie Moore and Mr. Andy Helberg; Hall – Laurie Watherill, Ken Dodds and Mr. F. Cline, Public Relations Officer for the Co-op; Stage Helpers Mrs B Wyllie, Mrs J Moore and Mrs E. Woods, Ticket Sales Mr John Moore and Mr Don Woods; Lunch Phyllis Rose, Marilyn Schacker, Nettie Appleby Mrs. Rose and Mrs Rudzki Ushers – Robert Holowatiuk Monte Malcolm, Allan Herchak, Lyle Helberg and Mr Bill Friesen; Registration — Grant Cossey, Johnny Baergen and Lyle Helberg

It may be pointed out that the committee are planning to close entries when the first 25 are received So far 16 entries have been received Anyone wishing to enter is urged to get his entry in as soon as possible.

The admission charge has been set at 75¢ for adults 50¢ for students over 12 and those under 12 will be admitted free.

MacDuff Ottawa report

OTTAWA — The campaign is over for Defence Minister Paul Hellyer. He has come to the finish line in the press for the job he has done or misjudged. The opposition parties have sat back and over little to start shooting before in the press campaign.

The one to this method of the new parliament, he has come under vigorous criticism. The air force unification bill was criticized by opposition leader John Diefenbaker. It was opposed by Mr. Diefenbaker's former Minister of Defence Doug Harkness, who resigned as by another former Minister of Defence George Pearkes. The New Democratic Party and Social Credit group have joined in the attack.

The years from the Liberals' return to power in 1963 have come in for increasing criticism as the country Mr. Harkness and Mr. Churchill have been hearing reports that much of them more than a bit unhappy over the state of morale in the armed forces. They talk start predicting and pray ask for additional information.

They want to know if the Canadian forces are in such a state of readiness that they would be able to carry out all of Canada's commitments. They are complaining that the shortages of trained manpower are becoming so ill as to affect their ability to defend the country from either conventional or nuclear weapons.

The Liberals launched an all-out assault on the Tory administration in those days. They criticized the policy of unification, integration and "centralized bureaucracy" and trumpeted from the spires of Parliament that the Canadian forces could not carry out their commitments under NATO. The resignations of Mr. Harkness from the defence job was added strength to the political assault.

Now the Conservatives are hammering to free touch with some of the ammunition they have been collecting about the state of the armed forces under the Liberal government. Mr. Hellyer was on the hot frequently during the first weeks of this new session.

One of the successes he was called on to defend was the recent close Northrop CF-5 Freedom Fighter by a NATO ground support team. Later he was questioned a shortage of technical personnel in the forces. And again he was called on to provide explanations for the great demand for trained pilots in the Royal Canadian Air Forces when the services were supposedly reducing manpower flying jobs could not be found.

The questions over the Liberal decision to acquire the CF-5 Freedom Fighter largely from a Canadian Press report that the United States Air Force was discriminating against buying the aircraft. The American media there discussed after tests of the plane in Viet Nam.

The Canadian purchase [illegible] will spend $211,000,000 to obtain 115 Canadair-built CF-5's for Canadian. The first fighters are to come off the Canadair Limited assembly line at Montreal next year. The defence production department in Canada and the Canadian aircraft industry had hoped to get in on any follow-up orders for the CF-5 from the United States and other countries. The U.S. decision is a blow to these hopes. When Mr. Hellyer came under fire over the CF-5 he [illegible] money to the defence of the aircraft. He said "my opponents" informed him that before 20,000 feet A-1 the best aircraft in the world and will do the job for the Canadian forces." [illegible] is the third standardized manner.

The Defence Minister explained that the U.S. decision primarily was not intended to buy the CF-5 because the American requirements are not the same as Canada's. He contended that the Viet Nam trials showed the aircraft was an outstanding air-to-ground weapon. He contended that it was a satisfactory air-to-air fighter. He added that the opposition's not good to be put up against it. Mr. Hellyer said this would Mr. Harkness could refer reports that refuelling flights for the CF-5's had been a failure. But Mr. Hellyer denied such reports. The CF carried a report [illegible] question the manufacturer U.S. trade magazine Aviation Week to read that the Freedom Fighter had to be refuelled 16 times in the air and make two [illegible] three during its 10,500-mile trip from Arizona to Saigon [illegible] October. It said the combat trials and [illegible] were [illegible] one of the main factors [illegible] that the plane needs a lot of refuelling to take off with [illegible] load. This [illegible] more required by an Air Canada [illegible] passenger jet.

In the Commons questions were also raised about a shortage of pants for the air force. The Defence Minister said his Department is worried about the dropped-up drive by U.S. airlines to recruit experienced RCAF pilots. Officials in the Defence Department report that the demand for commercial airline pilots in the U.S. and abroad is running to about 4,000 annually one American airline alone has reported seeking 750 pilots this.

With a shortage of pilots looming some 110 flight lieutenant pilots in the RCAF due to retire in 1967 have been offered two-year extensions of flying jobs. The Air Force shortage is developed after the 200 aircrew were imported out of the air forces. The defence officials explained it was not necessary at that time that the airline [illegible].

Red tape?

The Post Office has the answer to the question when is a stamp not a stamp? For anyone outside the Post Office, the answer is when it's a precancel.

Many people know these stamps that bear two heavy black bars across the face—when they're sold, but many don't know that even though they cost money like any other stamp, they can't be used for first class mail, or parcel post or any other mail except advertising apparently.

We've no quarrel with the local postal worker who recently and very courteously charged an extra ten cents due on a letter mailed with six cents worth of precancelled stamps. This was only a matter of enforcing regulations as they're set out.

But what can possibly be wrong with the use of Canadian postage properly bought, properly paid for, too. Or is it considered that literally thousands of us would take the time to steam them off and re-use them again?

A-B-C

The Safety Council's A-B-C reads Always Be Careful.

And striking proof was furnished only this week of how important the precaution is. The news columns told the story of a young woman who poured a can of cleaning compound into a toilet bowl without knowing that another preparation had been put in it only a short while before and was still working.

The chemical action of the two produced a concentration of chlorine gas known as one of the most lethal and pain producing gases for warfare and only by utter good fortune was tragedy averted.

The fine print in the instructions carried the information that this set of circumstances could develop. Yet the unknown combination was one of those one-in-a-million chances.

Even in a home there are times when the unexpected could develop. Mother could be called away, or someone else, like daughter, could have experienced the same idea of cleaning the toilet at the same time. No-one needs to be told how many amazing little quirks can develop around homes.

It's possible, of course, to leave some sort of label or sign around with the information that some substance has been used. But just think how much simpler, and how much safer to just flush the toilet before starting to work on fresh, clean water.

How many deaths are attributable to the [illegible] of ambulance and fire services [illegible] is not known. But there were a substantial [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] services [illegible] the strike.

It was one of the most extreme abuses on record of the right to strike. In fact some New York state [illegible] it illegal for public employees to strike in this manner. The transit union did not even have that right. But the union leaders simply defied the law and publicly [illegible] orders.

In North America the right to strike is no longer an absolute. Nor is the [illegible] of [illegible] to enforce the laws or take other action in the case of the publicly owned New York [illegible] where the municipal government has assumed the responsibility to provide [illegible] transportation, [illegible] [illegible] was [illegible] at most [illegible] less [illegible] than 40% the [illegible] of the army [illegible] [illegible] since it was a [illegible] illegal strike that action would not have been strike breaking. Of course it could have the [illegible] but not nearly the trouble that was inflicted by the 12 day strike. However [illegible] readers carefully [illegible] as suggestion of such a challenge to the union.

The almost universal refusal of political leaders to [illegible] leadership when labor disputes are involved has been the subject of a [illegible] comment by Richard J. The Princesses, Gwen Sears, Donna Mosby, Lena Schroeder, Anne Wall and Judy Moore, were each given a gold crown and a box of chocolates. The Queen received a pendant, presented by Louella Schacker, as well as a box of chocolates, after which she ascended to her throne, made and decorated by Brian Schultz and Terry Moore, from which she made a speech, thanking her supporters. As her first royal duty she drew the lucky ticket, the holder of which was Raymond Lindsay, who thereby won a box of chocolates.

Francis - Kerby wedding solemnized

The Hyglen Heights Baptist Church, Calgary, was the scene of a pretty evening candlelight ceremony on November 27, 1965 at 6:30 p.m. when Miss Adrienne Margaret Kerby became the bride of Mr Arthur Garry Francis. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr and Mrs Richard Kerby of Nanaimo, B.C., and the groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Francis of Tofield.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev Cyril Hutchinson. Miss Marilyn Wilson played the wedding music and Miss Greta Prihodko and Murray Hodges were the soloists.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white-textured velvet, styled with lily-point sleeves. Her chapel length veil was held in place by a wedding ring head dress of fur. She carried a bouquet of deep yellow roses and white carnations, and her only jewellery was a single strand of pearls.

Floor-length gowns of deep emerald green velvet with matching headpieces were worn by the bride's attendants, who carried white Bibles with small custers of white carnations tinted with gold. Miss Marguerite Kerby, sister of the bride, Miss Deannie Petunia, cousin of the bride, and Miss Cora Street were the bridesmaids. Flower girl, Glenda Francis niece of the groom, wore a short dress of emerald green velvet with matching headpiece, and carried a basket of white [illegible]. Little Gregory Francis, nephew of the groom, acted as ring-bearer.

The best men were Earl, Keith and Reed Francis, brothers of the groom. Ushering the guests were Jack Francis, the groom's brother, and Paul Dyck.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Kerby chose a rose-beige colored two-piece lace dress with pink and brown accessories. Her corsage was of deep yellow roses. The mother of the groom wore a navy blue brocade dress with pink accessories. She wore a deep pink rose corsage.

A reception for 90 guests was held in the basement of Bethel Baptist Church, with Carson Mitchell acting as master of ceremonies. William Petunia, cousin of the bride, proposed the toast, to which the groom ably responded. Miss Josephine Francis, sister of the groom, was in charge of the guest book. The bride's table was beautifully decorated with candles and a three-tiered wedding cake decorated by Mrs. Henry McGinitie.

MacDuff . . .

...ames would seem to the extent ...s true.

The same applied to the acute shortage of technical personnel in the armed forces. Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson wanting to know what was being done about that situation. Mr Hellyer agreed that there were difficulties. He said the armed forces were having the same trouble competing for manpower as every other organization is experiencing in those boom times.

Hardly had the defence minister weathered those attacks in the Commons than the report of the Auditor General A. M. Henderson was tabled in the House. It contained several severe criticisms of defence spending. It was carefully filed away for future reference by the opposition defence critics.

They are waiting for the House Defence Committee to be consulted so they can start an examination of the effects and impact of integration of the armed forces. The Defence Minister, too, willnit welcome the committee study as it would give him an opportunity to set forth the government's side of the story—a picture that Mr. Hellyer believes will reflect credit on the Government.

Hafso rink takes Grand Challenge for Viking in one - point victory over Moore of Tofield

On Friday afternoon the climax of an intensive week of curling was reached when the final game in all four events of the Farmers' Open Bonspiel was played before a full house. The fleury Hafso rink from Viking emerged the big winner as they captured the Bank of Montreal trophy, reminiscent of the Grand Challenge winner.

The bonspiel began Monday morning with 32 teams competing for honors, 15 were from the Farmers Club, 6 from the Tofield area, 5 from Round Hill, 3 from Ryley, and one each from Mundare, Fort Saskatchewan, and Viking.

The Hafso rink defeated a stubborn Johnny Moore rink who, earlier in the day, had defeated the Teddy Strelchuk rink, last year's winner. Moore was down early in the game, but came back with a big three on the ninth end, to narrow the gap to only one point. However, in trying to bury his last rock behind a guard he came a few feet short, thus giving Hafso the narrow one-point victory. Supporting Hafso were third M. Leverton, second Bill Plaas, and lead A. Burnham. Helping Moore in a losing cause were: D. Larson, second Bill and Ivan Wylie.

The P. Gerbrandt rink from Round Hill, skipped by F. Hersberg took third place, while the Teddy Strelchuk rink wound up fourth.

SECOND EVENT

The second event was an all-Tofield final, with G. McLeod ian defeating the P. Anderson rink skipped by R. Pollock. Kalbo from Mundare took third prize while D. McGlinlie took fourth.

The third event was won by the White rink from Fort Saskatchewan, who defeated C. Gawalski of Round Hill. To gain a berth in the finals, White had defeated Haugen, and Grabeski had beaten Ken Rempel.

"Granny" Haines passes at 92 years

Mrs. nd Mrs. Ron Otto attended Haines in Viking on Monday to attend the funeral for Mrs. Lydia "Granny Haines , as she was known, would have been 92 years old in March. She was very active until the last six months, which she spent in the hospital.

Mrs. Otto also visited with her parents in Vidler. Mr and Mrs G. T. Armstrong.

After the curling was all finished, President Vern Walker called on Horace Sedor of the Bank of Montreal to present the trophies to the Hafso rink, after which the other prizes were distributed to the various winning teams.

Mr. Walker thanked all those who had made the bonspiel such a success, and invited all the rinks back again next year. He also gave a special thanks to all the merchants and firms of Tofield and district who had made such good contributions towards the bonspiel, ensuring its success.

The last event was won by Art Francis, who defeated the Plaasrink. Third and fourth places were taken by the Lee Duckerhall and C. Bessonrink, respectively.

The Walker rink was the first rink to be sidelined and they were rewarded with a free feed at the Diamond Cafe as consolation. The first semester of the sport was made by Ron Georgevin, and he picked up four boxes of chocolates for this feat. Ron Monsonrsh was winner of the curling sweater which was raffled, and he was so pleased with it that he has intimated he might even consider taking up curling next year.

bootlegger or the fellow who takes a bet or sells a sweepstakes ticket, but they become "heinous wonders" when a union leader defies a law.

"When the picket lines have been set up", writes Mr. Needham, "what people are being labelled and wishes being smashed and trucks being burned and cars having their tires slashed, where are the politicians then? Hiding under the nearest bed, fleeing all this, I have wondered; "If labor unions do not have to obey the law, why should I? Why should anybody? Is Ontario being run by Leslie Frost, by John Roberts? Or is it being run by Jimmy Hoffa, by Walter Reuther? Who's in charge around here? Where's the law I'm still wondering".

To return to the subject of the New York transit strike, it may be recalled that it was the decisive action taken by Calvin Coolidge in the case of the Boston police strike that won him the presidency and public favor that elevated him from the governorship of Massachusetts to the presidency of the United States. At that time Coolidge made the famous statement, "There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anywhere, at any time". And when he was told that organized labor would prevent his election to any office in the future, Coolidge replied, "It does not matter".

Society annual meeting held on February 15th

The delayed annual meeting of the Tofield Historical Society was held February 15th in the Community Centre meeting room with president Harold Schultz in the chair and approximately 26 people present.

The financial report showed a balance of $423.74. The president's report mentioned the new exhibits in the museum, the work done to improve facilities in the museum and the entertainment of the Old Timers as a part of the July 1 Community League Sports Day.

CENTENNIAL PLANS

Some discussion occurred regarding centennial plans and also in regard to the quilt to be made by Mrs. Mary Tiedemann, using the cattle brands of the area as motif. Further particulars about the quilt will be made public later. This quilt will be raffled for benefit of the Society's funds.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Election of officers was held under the chairmanship of J. E. Stinson and resulted in the following slate of officers for 1966: Harold Schultz, president; Conrad Patterson, vice-president; J. R. Francis, secretary; Edna Bowick, treasurer. Stan Dunham and S. J. Sears were elected directors for two years and Dave Heidebrecht and Clifford Appleby for one year.

A vote of thanks was given the retiring secretary, Grace Philips.

It was called to the attention of the audience that due to the efforts of R. J. Francis, aided by H. A. Pike, Tofield's original school district number of 376 has been restored and 1939 has been allotted to Ingram S.D., which had erroneously been given 376 when the school building from Tofield had been moved to Ingram. Since the lower number is an indication of Tofield's age as a settlement, the Society is grateful to Mr. Francis for securing the return of the original number.

INDIAN CULTURE

Following the business meeting, Mr. and Mrs. Sodhi of the Tofield High School delighted the audience with an illustrated talk on their native country of India. Mr. Sodhi explained the contribution made to Indian culture by each of the four major religions—Buddhism, Hinduism, Moslem and Christianity. Mrs. Sodhi described the status of women in India and the Indian marriage customs. Mr. Sodhi played some records of Indian music which showed the effects of Western civilization on Eastern music. Mrs. Sodhi demonstrated the draping of an Indian sari such as she herself wears, and also danced to the Indian music.

A question and answer period followed, in which the audience took full advantage of Mr. and Mrs. Sodhi's willingness to answer questions about many aspects of Indian life, including that of the cottage industries. To illustrate the excellent qualities of the products of these industries, Mr. and Mrs. Sodhi had brought some examples. Hammered brass goblets, sequins, slippers and Indian jewellery were displayed.

A hearty vote of thanks for the delightful entertainment they had provided was given to the Sodhis by the audience.

To close an interesting evening, lunch was served by Mrs. Harold Schultz, Mrs. J. Francis and Mrs. Dorothy Whillans.

On graduation with a Bachelor of Engineering degree, first class honours in engineering physics, he was awarded the Governor-General's Gold Medal and the department of national defence award of merit as well as numerous departmental prizes. In addition, he was the recipient of the McLaughlin Graduate Fellowship, the highest post-graduate award given by Queen's University and an Imperial Oil Fellowship.

On completion of his present studies at Queen's University, leading to a doctorate in statistical communications theory, he will follow a career in the Canadian Army in the Royal Canadian Engineers.

Native son awarded research grant

Dr. Max Tofield Rogers, a former son of Tofield, recently received a $40,000 Petroleum Research Fund grant.

J. W. Robinson of Tofield just received a copy of the American Chemical Society Magazine mentioning that Research Grants of $40,000 each have been awarded to five outstanding scientists by the Petroleum Research Fund administered by the ACS Fund.

The latest recipients are Dr. George A. Olah of the Western Reserve University, Dr. Max T. Rogers of Michigan State University, Dr. Paul Von R. Schleyer of Princeton University, Dr. Herbert L. Toor of Carnegie Institute of Technology and Dr. Harry M. Walborsky of Florida State University.

The awards permit each recipient to investigate any area of pure science which may provide a basis for subsequent research in the Petroleum field. The grants are for a four-year period but may be used at any desired rate.

Max Rogers is a son of Mrs. Edith Rogers and the late Harry Rogers, and is a grandson of the late D. Tofield for whom the town of Tofield was named. Max was born in 1918 and had all his public school education in the old brick school.

The American Chemical Society, in describing Dr. Rogers, has the following to say: "Dr. Rogers, professor of Chemistry at Michigan State University, received a B.Sc. in 1937 and M.Sc. in 1938 from the University of Alberta, and a Ph.D. in 1941 from California Institute of Technology. From 1942 to 1946 he taught Chemistry at the University of California, Los Angeles. He became assistant professor of chemistry at Michigan State in 1946, associate professor in 1948 and professor in 1955. Dr. Rogers held a Guggenheim Fellowship at Oxford, England, in 1954, and in 1962 he was a National Science Foundation post-doctoral fellow at the National Physical Laboratory, Teddington, England.

"He has written 112 papers dealing with the determination by physical methods of electronic and molecular structures of a variety of organic series."

Dr. Rogers was on a Scientific tour to Japan last year and gave two papers. We have followed his career all these years and are proud of his success. He has been on the Monroe Commission for many years.

Tofield salutes Dr. Rogers and congratulates him on his wonderful achievement.

Sorry, Mr. Manning

Recently this paper suggested reverting to the preferential ballot system, rather than today's single choice votes in provincial elections, and to bolster our case, pointed out the present Social Credit government had been elected with less than fifty per cent support of provincial voters.

Really, we feel the merits of the case stand up for themselves, without the added bolster. In any case, the fact is we erred in making the mistake.

Premier Manning has drawn the error to our attention, together with the information that his government was returned to office with a majority popular vote of 54.8048%. We appreciate Mr. Manning's correcting our error no less than we're intrigued by the accuracy . . . to the fourth decimal point . . . of his information.

Yet it seems to us this serves just as much to strengthen our argument. The fact that five voters out of nine, the ratio above, can elect 57 per cent of the members in the house hardly seems like representative government to us.

Even while we'll agree that the Liberals and Conservatives helped elect such a ponderous Social Credit majority by their own weakness, and while we feel Social Credit is doing a reasonably good job, we still would hope for balloting which would give a more balanced picture.

Let's back Dickie

Calgary's M.L.A. William Dickie, has brought up in the Legislature an item of importance to many young men and also their parents, in asking the government to ban the present arrangement which permits national hockey league clubs to sign up youngsters of all ages who play hockey, so that when they reach professional age and level they are required to serve under conditions already fixed by the NHL.

Most youngsters haven't the faintest notion of what they're letting themselves in for, and scramble to get aboard the big league bandwagon, not realizing what the cost may be later on. Legislation requires that many deals with minors are not legal, and this is one more area where youth should be protected against the smooth, fast-talking salesmen trading in human flesh.

Smokescreen

Speaking recently at Rocky Mountain House, his home constituency, the Hon. A. L. Hooke, minister of municipal affairs, had the following to say:

"We are overlapping at the shrine of higher education and I think we are placing too much emphasis on it," he said. "I'm not afraid to get up and say it because it is a fact. We have to have a staff, and my thesis is that [illegible] really have to have university grads in so many schools."

Surely the minister is just sending up a smokescreen when he speaks thus to divert attention from the role the government is not playing in this field. Himself a former teacher, Mr. Hooke must know that the cost of all the swimming pools built in all the years in all the schools in the province and there aren't many) wouldn't pay the teachers' salaries for two weeks.

Having just faced new tax assessment notices, many property owners are keenly aware of the cost of education and the spiralling costs. And many object to the unrelenting upward pressures on teacher salaries out of proportion to income levels of these same taxpayers. Competing fiercely in the commercial world for increased recompense, they can't understand a system that offers similar reward to superior and incompetent alike.

Other than creating the strongest union in the province, what has Mr. Hooke, or his government, done in the face of this situation?

Bright day ahead

The curse of broken bottles, with their hazards and dangers, may soon be eliminated through the ingenuity of a Canadian chemical engineer Walter Heinrich, a plastics and chemical consultant in Ontario has solved the problem that previously closed off the carbonated drink market to plastics according to reports. He has designed a molded-in top for polyvinyl chloride (PVC) bottles which can even be pasteurized without causing a leak. Brewers and bottlers are rep tried to be inspecting the new sealer, and health officials are also checking it.

The advantages to the bottling industry are immense: lighter bottles, which saves on handling, stacking, and freight, and big savings on labor and transportation because there are no "empties" to collect.

All the big benefits that would accrue from relief from the cut feet, cut tires and other damages, and the benefits can be seen to be enormous.

Maybe economy can win where legislation has so far failed.

By George!

In a meeting with Premier E. C. Manning and his cabinet earlier this year, a group of six news-paper types brought up the matter of a proposed ombudsman. An ombudsman is a man appointed to hear the case of a supposedly wronged citizen, decide whether or not he has a case and then correct the injustice which has been brought about in the first place by bureaucracy. The premier told us at that time this whole question was under study and would probably come up at this session of the legislature. He and some of his cabinet members wondered if an ombudsman is what the people of this province want. And after hearing reports of how the ombudsman system worked in New Zealand, I have often had second thoughts about it myself. While it's true that thousands of people bring their cases before the ombudsman in New Zealand, when these are screened only a fraction of these cases are deemed worthy of investigation. And of these investigated another fraction are found to have a case to answer.

Surely there must be a more efficient way of being sure the victims of bureaucratic injustices are given a fair shake.

Says The Lacombe Globe editor:

"In theory, the idea of an all-powerful citizens' champion set-ting in a government centre and anxious to take up the cudgels on behalf of the wronged is an enticing one.

"But in this day and age, it sounds mightily like a fairy tale. A full-time ombudsman would of necessity be a civil servant, and it seems quite axiomatic that bureaucratic wrongs will not be corrected by another bureaucrat."

The Medicine Hat News comments, "No weapon with which an ombudsman could be armed could possibly prove more effective than the power of a member of parliament asking questions in the house of commons."

And, added The Lacombe editor, with his parting shot, "Any MP or MLA who does his duty to his constituents is the logical ombudsman for his area. Let's keep this responsibility in the hands of our elected representatives, rather than delegate it to a government appointee."

Which leaves us with the all-important question: Are our elected representatives carrying out their duties to the best of their ability, with the best interests of their constituents at heart, regardless of how the party dictates?

From the mail bag

Editor The Mercury:

We often hear, "We made our own recreation when we were kids." And now I see that some of the youth are not making only their own facilities, but for the whole community as well. And I can easily imagine the "fathers" advice that they have been and are getting on how to do things the way used to do. Interfering that the way they did it was the only way to do it. It makes me wonder what I would do if I were a youth in their place today getting that kind of info. I have a feeling that I would do one of two things: Either react with violence or just dejectedly give up and go sulk. Either way it would be so much better why are we not doing it.

But is not the responsibility of furnishing said facilities that of the older of us? It is easier for us to forget it. But is it cheaper? For if youth lack outlets for their youthful energies and have to seek their own relief from boredom, naturally some of them are sure to find what we call "trouble". Are they to blame or we? But then we send them away where they can be [illegible] free board for from a few months to a few years. And then we get righteously indignant, when they return from said "post graduate course in mischief." If they put into practice the knowledge thus learned, and return them for longer periods of time in those we society have by our failure just deliberately and almost with malice aforethought forced them to become social outcasts. And in the day of judgment their deeds will be on our heads and their sins be judged our sins.

—Geo G. Abernethy

Common honesty

(The United Church of Canada)

The phrase is interesting—common honesty. It says much about the foundation of mutual trust on which the everyday life of Canadians is built. We set out many targets as a corner box with a bid in one side and a [illegible] Men and women with expensively prepared skills give us their services first and bill us afterward. Almost any story will extend credit easily and quickly. The director of the Accounts Department of a large retail establishment says the lowest fee a hard core of deliberate shoplifters (perhaps 4% of the clientele most people are reasonably good risks.

Unhappily, though dishonesty is not as rare as we'd like to think. There are indications that it is on the increase. Shop-lifting for instance. Prior to the Christmas buying spree merchants expected a heavy wave of pilfering. There was such a demand for security services from firms like Pinkertons, who keep a watchful eye on suspect fingered customers, that one newspaper commented. "The private eyes never had it so good." The magnitude of these petty thieves are not known, who pack up little items that don't seem like their stealing.

Male dishonesty seems up did actually. A repairer on others his service a charge for the hours [illegible] care about a repair [illegible] Often the former simply [illegible] the bourgeois after all it's only [illegible] government that loses. Some [illegible] a psychiatrist remarked [illegible] of the chief subjects discussed at the parties he attended was how to cheat the income.

People who [illegible] think of stealing from an individual not only [illegible] "one man" from hotels, deceive [illegible] of fierce and knowingly [illegible] the law.

Perhaps the [illegible] "[illegible]" and the [illegible] pay [illegible] techniques [illegible] and [illegible] are to blame for [illegible] most at the edge of [illegible] whatever the reason, [illegible] should take a sharp look at their own habits. We all have a stake in common honesty. [illegible] later we are the victims if it disappears. It is a precious commodity. Let's not lose it.

Locals . . .

Wednesday, Feb. 16th brought the Prairie Players to the Tofield Community Hall. The afternoon production of the "Seven Seers' Appreciate" was enjoyed by the grades 6 and 7 of the County of Beaver. That evening grades 8 to 12 watched the entire performance of "The Doctor in Spite of Himself".

The High-School Open Mixed Bonspiel will begin at 8:00 a.m. on March 5. The public is reminded that these games will provide some top-notch entertainment.

Moved and carried that the formation be accepted.

In regards to the teacher recruitment Mr. Pike reported on a meetin of the Superintendents of Zones 2 and 3 and that the Superintendents were not in agreement with the stand taken by Zones 2 and 3 of the A.S.T.A. Some superintendents were not prepared to participate at all, although some Boards, whom these superintendents served, might want to participate to some extent. M. G. Gault stated that he was not prepared to act under last year's circumstances but would act providing the teachers could be hired on the spot and a number of superintendents had agreed to such an arrangement. Dr Boddick stated that a basic payment, possibly $50 or $100, should be made by each member of the Zone if it was felt that the hole matter should be handled on a voluntary basis with the hiring of the teachers when they are interviewed. It was expected that this matter would be further discussed at the next Zone meeting and that some definite proposals should be ready for that meeting.

Moved and carried that the report be accepted.

In regards to the Building Program at Viking, the Superintendent reported on the increased grant of 82 per cent for school building purposes and referred to the Commissioners letters to Dr. Scott, the Deputy Minister of the Dept. of Education, from the secretary-treasurer and Dr. Scott's reply to the first letter in this connection. He suggested that nothing further could be done until a reply had been received to the second letter.

Moved and carried that the action be concurred in and the report accepted.

The Superintendent then referred to the 3 one-room schools at Viking that are to be abandoned after the new construction is completed, and he suggested that the old Home Ec. room would have to be renovated and that one of the two schools on the west side of the present buildings, the building to the south, could be retained as a music room. The north building should be removed and it could be offered to the Town for the use of youth organizations.

Moved and carried that the Superintendent's proposals be

School committee meets February 8th

Following are the minutes, in part, of the County of Beaver No. 8 School Committee meeting held Tuesday, Feb. 8th:

In regards to the Frontage Assessment at Viking, the secretary-treasurer reported that he had contacted the secretary-treasurer of the Town of Viking in regards to prepayment of the frontage tax. He had also noticed in the Viking News that this matter had been dealt with at a Council meeting and that the cost would be $3.74 per foot—516 feet of frontage was involved making a payment of $2,927.40, approximately half the cost that would be paid if it was paid over a period of 20 years.

It was moved and carried that the frontage tax be prepaid upon receipt of the statement from the Town of Viking.

In regards to the Student Accident Policy, the secretary-treasurer informed the Committee that he had written the agent, P. O. Nordstrom in Viking, inquiring if it would be possible to have payments for medical attention made direct to the attending physician rather than to the parents. A reply from Mr. Nordstrom indicated that this was quite feasible.

In regards to the teacher recruitment Mr. Pike reported on a meetin of the Superintendents of Zones 2 and 3 and that the Superintendents were not in agreement with the stand taken by Zones 2 and 3 of the A.S.T.A. Some superintendents were not prepared to participate at all, although some Boards, whom these superintendents served, might want to participate to some extent. M. G. Gault stated that he was not prepared to act under last year's circumstances but would act providing the teachers could be hired on the spot and a number of superintendents had agreed to such an arrangement. It was expected that this matter would be further discussed at the next Zone meeting and that some definite proposals should be ready for that meeting.

Moved and carried that the report be accepted.

The Ryley Times

THE LANGUAGE WAR. Although there can be little consolation in it, Canada is not the only nation experiencing difficulties because of its bicultural and bilingual makeup. In Belgium, continued riots are erupting between French-speaking and Flemish-speaking factions. Above shows police breaking up a demonstration in which 300 Flemish nationalists marched in Louvain calling for recognition of their language. Tear gas and rifle butts were used to stop the march, and 19 people were injured.

Red Cross campaign begins March 1st

PALMER-EARLING, March is "Red Cross Month" across Canada. For 18 years, 1940 to 1958, the Palmer Branch was active in the Red Cross.

However, they are now only working during the March Campaign and expect to be wound up by March 31 to avoid conflict with other appeals.

Volunteer canvassers this year are Nick and Jerry Kushnerick, Oscar Afseth, Hans and Duane Huseby, Mrs. George Mosby, and Mrs. Joe Knudson. The quota for this district is $175.00

Recipe box

The coldest days call for the hottest food. And Canada's coldest days usually fall in February. Here then is a timely recipe for a piping hot meat dinner.

This unusual dish is nourishing for the family and would be welcomed by guests, as well.

MEATZZA

- 1 cup lukewarm water
- 1 teaspoon granulated sugar
- 1 envelope fast-rising active dry yeast
- 1 tablespoon granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons peanut oil
- 3 cups (about) pre-sifted all-purpose flour
- ¾ pound ground beef
- 1 tin (7½ oz.) tomato sauce
- 1 cup chopped mushrooms
- ¼ cup dry bread crumbs
- ½ teaspoon garlic salt
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 teaspoon oregano
- 1 (8-oz.) package Swiss cheese slices, halved

Measure lukewarm water in large bowl; stir in 1 teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle yeast on top. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Add sugar, salt, oil and 1½ cups flour. Beat until smooth. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough, about 1½ cups more. Turn out on a lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic. Place in a greased bowl, grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes. Meanwhile, combine ground beef, tomato sauce, chopped mushrooms, bread crumbs and garlic salt. Punch down dough, turn out onto a board. Roll half of dough into a circle to fit a 10-inch pie plate. Place dough into greased plate and press around plate to form a standing rim of dough. Spread with half of meat mixture. Repeat with remaining dough and filling. Sprinkle each meatzza with half of the grated Parmesan cheese and oregano. Bake in preheated hot oven (400° F) for 20 minutes. Remove from oven, cover with cheese slices. Return to oven five minutes or until cheese is melted. Serve at once. Makes two 10-inch meatzzas.

The swinging set

By Robin Randel

Bored ? or do we lack initiative ?

Have you adults often wondered what we teenagers do on the weekends? Well, sit back and get an curful.

what's life like in the

FOR ANYBODY? NO.
GOOD PAY? YES.
ORDINARY JOB? NO.
FINE CAREER? YES

There is one know on Friday night. After the show, perhaps there is a party, etc. Do you think all of us sound our weekends that way? Even many who go steady find themselves sitting home twiddling their thumbs. Some, sadly to say, go off to the country to park and neck or get sloshed ! For those adults who are wondering about the meaning, sloshed means to get drunk. Then there are those who are held at home because their parents feel that weekends are too wild, etc But these kids have been known to sneak out to walk the streets

But why blame the kids? Either way, they are just looking for something to do to pass the time away Maybe they just seek excitement

What this city needs (and I say "city", dear friends) is a project to start some kind of thing of that small spark in the younger set. And some caring and thoughtful businessman would not only make a fortune from a coffee cellar, but would also win the hearts of hundreds of now bored kids Not only that, Camrose would retain its reputation for clean-cut kids.

I have heard that in Edmonton, a church group has started a coffee shop in some basement cellar How fab!! Kids from 13 to 19 years can take their dates or even go stag, just to get together to talk, drink coffee, and dance And what's more fun than mixing up way-out poetry?

"What a perfect idea", one of the secretaries in the office said.

"Well, what do you know. An adult who agrees with a teenager". I said sarcastically.

"Why not? It's just what these kids need".

"Yes", I said. "But I know how busy you adults are, and we society-starved children wouldn't want to put you out of your way. Half of you wouldn't want to see us have a real time, anyway"

She gave me a surprised look and strutted off.

Color hints

THE EDITOR OF THE LADIES' section in Keeping Track, official publication of the employee communications branch, personnel and labor relations department of the Canadian National Railways, says that many people are "seized with a mania for decorating their homes" as Old Man Winter begins to lose his grasp for another year.

True, she says, it can be pretty expensive to start furnishing your home when you're still paying the Christmas bills, but a change of color costs little, and it can change a room.

Warm colors like red, orange, yellow and shades of these colors make a room seem smaller but more lively—they are particularly good in living rooms and dens. Cool colors—blue, green, violet and variations on these—make a room seem spacious and airy and give it a tranquil atmosphere. If you want to change the apparent shape of a room, use pale colors on the walls you want to push out, and warm ones on the walls you want to move in.

Echo in the room the predominant color in something you already own. You might want to dramatize a magnificently printed carpet or mosiac-topped table. Pick out the predominant shade and use the same color elsewhere. New cushions, a jar of brillliant dried flowers, new prints to hang on the walls—all are inexpensive ways to alter the color emphasis in a room.

In planning your color scheme, remember that one color should dominate, while a second or third is used in a lesser degree to point up or subdue. The third color is an accent color and should be used sparingly on lamps, ashtrays, flower-pots and cushions. It adds the "zip" to a room that seasoning adds to food. You can spray some inexpensive accent pieces with aerosol spray paint which is easy to use and dries quickly.

As an extra help to home decorating, use a color wheel. Color wheels, which diagram the relationships between colors, can be found in books on home decorating.

(Mrs. Jas Knudson)

PALMER - EARLING — We challenge anyone to beat this record!

Away back in 1911, Mrs. M. Rasmussen's mother, Mrs. Poulson, started a Christmas cactus and it continued to flourish. At the time of her mother's death, February 11, 1935 the plant was handed down to her only daughter, Mrs. Rasmussen of the Gladstone district about 22 miles east of Camrose.

Nora has lovingly cared for the plant these past 30 years, for sentimental reasons as well. It is now a hanging plant with a circumference of about 36 inches and is still blooming. At Christmas time it had about 100 red blossoms.

Mrs. Rasmussen has started a small cactus from slips that she will soon give her only daughter, Mrs. Dennis Huseby to adorne their new modern home in the same district.

Education to be discussed at public meeting, Mar. 8

This year the week of March 6th - March 12th has been designated as Education Week in honor of this public recognition of the importance of education. The Tofield sub-local of the ATA, under the presidency of Mrs. M. Cann, will present an evening of discussion and entertainment on Tuesday, March 8th, at the Tofield School, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The evening's activities will be divided into two parts. The first session, beginning at 7:30, will explore the new trends in education which are already in operation in the County of Beaver schools as well as those which are scheduled for introduction next year.

This session will be divided into three sections, any one of which parents may attend according to their special interests. One group will be concerned with the elementary grades. Here, a panel discussion under the chairmanship of Mrs. Daisy Hung with Mrs H Huddy as consultant, will discuss the Continuous Progress Plan which has now been in operation in the County of Beaver for six year. Concerning the Continuous Progress Plan, four aspects will be considered:

1. The aims, methods and achievements of the plan.
2. What is being done for the gifted child
3. What remedial steps are being undertaken to help the slow learner.
4. Are the present report cards satisfactory? Would parents prefer another kind of report-ing system?

While this session is evaluating the success of the Continuous Progress Plan, parents interested in the new High School and Junior High courses in science, Mathematics, English and Social Studies courses will meet to hear these explained. Mrs. Cann will be the chairman for this session and she will have a number of teachers assisting her. Miss Cumming will explain the English 33 course which is being taught for the first time this year. Mrs. Sodhi will discuss the new maths-matics course introduced this year in Grade X. Mr. Cribb will describe the Grade X science course which is also is new this year. He will also describe briefly the new course in social studies 431 to be introduced next year for non-matriculation students. Miss Matthews will discuss the Grade VII course introduced this year, with Mrs. Cribb reviewing the teaching of the elementary grades in mathematics. Mr. Sodhi will discuss new trends and concepts in counselling. Mr. A. A. Pike, Superintendent of Schools, will be consultant for this session.

When these two sessions have been completed, the two groups will join in a general session to discuss "Education in Alberta". This will take the form of a panel discussion involving students, parents and teachers., and should prove valuable to anyone interested in education, no matter at what level or from what viewpoint.

The public is given a most cordial invitation to attend any or all of these sessions and to remain for the lunch and the social hour which will follow

Community League seeks to retire debt in 1966

An all-out effort to reduce or, hopefully, to retire the debt on the Tofield Community Centre this year is being made by the Tofield Community league under the presidency of Lionel Borton

In order to achieve this objective, the League is sponsoring several evenings' entertainments in the near future

DRAMA NIGHT

One of these will occur Thursday, March 10, when, under the sponsorship of the League- the Tofield School drama classes are presenting two one-act plays

" F. Annis, who last year won an award as Best Director, will present the play he has chosen as this year's entry in the Zone Drama Festival. His choice this year is "From Five to Five-Thirty", by Phillip Johnson. The cast, in order of appearance, are: Cherie Astley, Dianne Pittet, Lynn Dunlop, Cheryl Halverson and Gerry Hardy

Since the drama festival will be in Vegreville this year, this will be the only chance Tofielders will have to see this play here. In the past, Mr. Annis' plays have been highly successful and indications are that this year's entry will uphold the high standards set by previous ones and well worth seeing

The second one-act play will be "Rise and Shine", by Elda Cadogan, with Karl Meyer, Gwen Sears, Eddie Riley and Gwen Pushaing in the cast. Mr. Norton, from the Junior High School, is directing this play.

Other attractions will feature the musical talent found in the Tofield School, and will round out an evening of first-class entertainment by the young people of the community .

OTHER EVENTS

On April 2, the Camrose Chorus will present an evening of fine variety entertainment; again the League will be sponsoring the result

On April 14- the Little Old Opera will be featured in the Community Centre

All these events are well worth attending and community support for them will aid in reducing the debt on the Tofield Community Centre.

Capacity crowd at Talent Show

A capacity crowd attended the Co-op and 4-H Club Talent Show on Friday night, Feb. 25, in the Tofield Community Hall

Bev Munroe from CFCW, Camrose, was master of ceremonies The program opened with the Tofield school band, directed by Mr Coates of Edmonton, playing "O Canada", followed by the Esd Port march.

Society appeals for registered brands

The Tofield Historical Society, at its last annual meeting, agreed to go ahead with plans for the making of a quilt displaying the various brands in the Tofield area

This quilt will consist of copies of registered brands on blocks 5 by 6 inches along with the owner's name. The Society is asking one dollar ($1.00) per brand to cover the cost of material. It is hoped that interested local outfitmen will leave their deposit at the office of J. F. Stinson or with Mrs. Mary Tiedemann, Deville, Alberta Brands will be accepted on a first-come, first-serve basis, as only a limited number can be used

It is the Society's intention to raffle the quilt, winner to be declared on July 1st this year.

W. Wilkie wins power toboggan

Wm. H Wilkie, Tofield, with ticket No 639, was the winner in the Lions power toboggan draw which was held in conjunction with the Tofield Lions Charter Night last Saturday evening. Mr. Wilkie's son Harry, said that his father, 82, would not likely use the popular machine too much, but he looked forward to many hours of scooting over the snowbank himself

Members and their wives numbering some 170 from Fort Saskatchewan, Daysland, Two Hills, Ryley, Camrose, Chipman, Edmonton and Lamont were at the Community Hall to help the local Lions celebrate the Charter Night of the Tofield club. The evening was enlivened with several novelty dances and completed with a buffet banquet at midnight.

Somebody goofed!

Due to a breakdown in communications, or perhaps more correctly, the misunderstanding of a term used, an advertisement scheduled for The Mercury last week, advertising a program night at Chipman School auditorium for Friday, March 4th, at 8:00 o'clock, did not make last week's issue

A former correspondent, Mrs. Bessie Pedersen, who now lives in Fort Saskatchewan, wrote the editor a very nice letter last week "It's always a pleasure to hear from her", and among other things she mentioned a "poster" she would like to see printed. Well, what the editor saw the word "poster", he decided to look into it as soon as he got last week's Mercury on the press and rolling First things first! Then, after The Mercury was printed, he again checked into the "poster", only to find what Mrs Pedersen actually had wished was an advertisement in The Mercury.

The editor mentions this only to save his good friend, Mrs. Pedersen, from getting it in the neck for not getting the ad into last week's paper. The editor will take the blame He should have read the letter more carefully Please accept his apologies, Mrs Pedersen!

Also to those who receive this week's paper in time for the Friday night program, we might mention there will be piano solos, monologues, a one-act play, pantomimes, an Irish band parade stars, square dancing, western singing, A-go-go 60 and a singalong It is sponsored by the Hope Creek UCW, with proceeds to go to the building fund Admission charges will be $1 for adults 75 cents for students and 50 cents for children six to 12 years of age.

Reason and responsibility

Introducing his new program of legislation on adoption, the Hon. Mr. Halmrast has demonstrated at one and the same time that he possesses the courage to tackle a difficult and politically dangerous problem, to face it with honesty, with a sense of proportion and breadth, and with a mature, enlightened, and responsible viewpoint

Mr Halmrast's suggestion that adoption be restricted for a full year to the religion of the mother's choice is a rational compromise between the viewpoints that no restrictions should be allowed and the opposing view that a mother has the inalienable right to choose the church of the child

We could perhaps be persuaded to accept in part the latter view if we could be persuaded that the woman involved has contributed any part of the high calling of motherhood, with all that this implies. On the contrary we are firmly persuaded that up to this point in the story, she has only played the role of an incubator. The role, the responsibilities and the privileges of motherhood lie ahead . . . and if her baby is up for adoption, she has abdicated these responsibilities and these privileges.

In the same legislation will be provisions making it easier for single women (and we hope, single men) to adopt children, although naturally they will face more careful scrutiny than married couples. There must be countless women and some men who for one reason or another live alone and yet who could and would dearly love to provide a home for some hapless child. Perhaps the quirks and chance to shape our lives decree that some of us are denied the opportunity for the normal companionship of marriage, it should not follow that all other aspects of home life are automatically ruled out in addition.

Money talks

Continuing tragic tolls on the highways are causing far more emphasis on automobile safety than ever before and car manufacturers are coming in for some pretty serious criticisms over their indifference to this fact responsibility in designing and manufacturing.

Safety councils have stressed this need among others, while authors, publishers and other writers have taken up the cudgels with articles in magazines, television programs, newspaper articles, books, safety crusades and so on.

Like water everlastingly drippnig on stone, this barrage of attention may eventually bring some changes in thinking among the car designers. But we wouldn't count on it too much, nor expect a great deal.

The only time they will pay attention, it seems to us, is if and when the insurance companies realize what is happening to them because of the lack of built-in safety features in modern automobiles. When they produce figures showing that claims from one make of car substantially outclass other makes, and either bonus the owners of safer cars or "rate" owners of the other varieties, then, and only then, we feel, will any important concessions be made by the industry

If they would, car insurance companies could wield tremendous influence to reduce their own losses through the building of safer vehicles Every driver today knows how serious is the situation facing the insurance industry, and what it has been doing to insurance rates. If one brand of car were given a lower rate by the insurance companies, while another was given a higher insurance cost, and these ratings could be substantiated actuarially, the effect on buyer's decisions would be heard instantly in Detroit.

Money talks, and right now, the insurance companies are the best position to make big money heard

Crime against humanity

Most people must have felt distinct shock at the revelation one of the major drug manufacturing firms has been charged with continuing to manufacture and supply a comparatively new drug after it had discovered through its own research that harmful side effects were experienced A careful investigation by senior drug officials reveals the knowledge was in the hands of the company three or four years before it came to the attention of the investigators

The certain knowledge that firms continue to manufacture and supply these drugs, without informing physicians, after learning of these extra deleterious effects, must produce the strongest feelings of revulsion in the public After the wonderful efforts at enhancing their reputations for infinite care and solicitude in the preparation of drugs for constantly checking for stability and replacing dated shelf stocks, the drug companies will all be suspected of sharing in this degenerate practice of trafficking in human suffering

All the pleas for marketing under generic names rather than trade names will be given new support

Surely, such a callous disregard of the rights of customers should be treated most severely by the food and drug administration

By George!

Mike Sich, who just last Sunday returned from a motor trip to southern California, says the system of freeways established in the larger cities such as San Francisco and Los Angeles is nothing short of fantastic

His views are backed up by Mary LaBarge, a visitor to that part of the world a couple of years ago. "You can get around Los Angeles from corner to corner, a distance of about 60 miles, just as fast or faster than it would take you to drive through Edmonton", claims Mary Where some of the freeways intersect, he said, there are as many as four tiers of them crossing over and under each other

But Mike has a warning to issue to all who plan to visit one of these large cities Make darned sure you get on the right freeway Mike didn't in his first try

He and his good wife entered San Francisco after dark and began looking for a route to take them to the motel area of the city Inadvertently Mike got into a stream of traffic that led onto the Golden Gate bridge—all six miles of it! So the Sich's made the trip to Oakland After pulling up in the extreme right lane one of 18 such lanes—to pay his toll for the bridge, Mike explained his plight to a kind and sympathetic attendant, a colored lad. "I don't want to be here", said Mike "I want to be in San Francisco How do I get back?"

The lad tried to direct Mike over several blocks of Oakland so that he might reach the road leading to the lane which would take him back to San Francisco, but the attendant himself became so confused, he finally stepped into a booth and talked to the attendants in the other 17 booths over an intercom Stepping up to Mike's car window again, he said, "Look! All the lanes on this side of the bridge are about to be closed for a few seconds When you get by you just drive as fast as you can right across those 18 lanes to the first lane of traffic going the other way" At the signal Mike streaked to the designated toll booth and shortly he and Bertha found themselves headed back to San Francisco.

"I'm sure glad the attendant and I got understanding and cooperative", commented Mike.

And I don't blame him for feeling that way Who could possibly have stood all that embarrassment and a chewing out besides"

Get the accused out of the dock

Most of our criminal Law and court practices derive from England For that reason we watch carefully any changes made in English law and practices and ourselves adopt those which lend to improve our system Only changes not advocated by the English Law Society would be sufficiently considered to bring to our attention, the interest of accused persons by such a change would be minimized and opposed by the Society

The Law Society seeks abolition of the dock in English criminal courts. It would put the accused at a table near his counsel This is the practice in American criminal courts and it seems to work well the accused is not prejudiced before the jury if he is seated in the dock. The dock is enclosed to some degree in the courts throughout the branch.

The argument to change ... put recently by the Law Society

Young lad dies in city mishap

(Mrs. G. Taylor)

Shawn Kiernan, aged six years, son of Mr and Mrs. James Kiernan (nee Emily Laskoski) of 13416 - 102nd Street, Edmonton, and a grandson of Mrs Nancy Laskoski, was drowned when he fell into a deep pool of water caused by a broken water main in the city.

Shawn and a playmate had gone out to play, and less than 15 minutes later the little girl ran home shouting that Shawn had fallen into the water.

In spite of efforts by his father, police and firemen the boy was found to be dead on arrival at the Royal Alexandra Hospital.

He is survived by his parents, one sister, Sharon, his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs M. Kiernan, and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Nancy Laskoski.

Daysland boys and Wet'n girls advance to Alberta hoop finals

One for THS

This is one of several baskets made by the Tofield High School boys Saturday afternoon in a game with Castor High, but unfortunately the Castor boys hooped more of them and eliminated Tofield from the provincial semi-finals. Coach Ken Eastlick led his boys to victory in the first round, however.

Camrose Lutheran College Convocation Centre was the scene of the East Central Zone High School "B" Basketball Tournament Friday and Saturday.

Friday night saw both Highway 13 finalists in the boys' league lose out in their first games. The CLC Vikings were defeated 54-47 by the Daysland Dynamos. Gary Koehli led the Dynamos with 7 points. Terry Thinglestead notched 19 points and Elwood Knebel added another 19 for the Vikings. Vikings played most of the game without George Pheasy, who re-injured his knee.

In the second game Friday night, Tofield defeated Wetaskiwin 44-43 in a real thriller. The teams exchanged the lead all through the game. John Wall had 15 points for Tofield, while Bob Bourque netted 12 and Richard Siler added another 10 for Wetaskiwin.

On Saturday, Daysland defeated Wainwright 70-37. Larry Brinker netted 26 points for the Daysland Dynamos, while Lowe notched 10 for Wainwright.

Castor Boys eliminated Tofield by a 51-34 score. The first half was fairly close, but Castor broke it open in the final half. High shooter for Castor was Heidecker with 16. Stauffer had eight for Tofield.

In the finale, Daysland Dynamos came on from a 19-19 half-time tie to defeat Castor 43-32. Gary Koehli netted 14 points for the Dynamos.

Dr Frank MacInnis, President of CADRECA, presented the zone trophy to team captain Dennis Vos, while a zone basketball official gave the team crests.

In the girls' games Wetaskiwin girls, led by Gloria Roth with 19 points and an exceptional effort by Millicent Eliason, downed Wainwright 35-28. B. Taylor hooped 10 points for the losers. The game had started off very close and slow but gradually picked up momentum. This win meant that Wetaskiwin had hung onto one playoff spot for a Highway 13 league team.

In the other game, Castor defeated Camrose Composite High School 30-23. M Jamieson had 11 points for Castor, with Doug Petruk getting 10 for CCHS.

The final was a real cliffhanger between Wetaskiwin and Castor. Millicent Eliason's six points and exceptional defensive efforts and Marlene Heinch's additional six points helped to give Wetaskiwin a 25-16 win. The score had been 10-8 for Castor at half-time. Loretta Wideman had a high of eight points for Castor.

After the final game of the evening, Wetaskiwin team captain Millicent Eliason was presented with the zone trophy by Dr. MacInnis. The team was then given crests by a zone basketball official.

See those giant wide doors? Handi-Van is easy to load and unload Two curbside doors may be specified and then there are a number of extra window combinations available

Handi-Van can turn in a 35 ft foot circle Lets you scoot out of packed traffic and deliver your goods where and when you promised.

Look at all the space Handi-Van measures 211 cu ft inside That will hold up to a ton of payload Loadspace length from engine housing back is over 92 inches

The engine is a 120 horsepowerengine And if you want more muscle, you can specify a 140-hp workhorse Powerglide is available

The metal floor is built to shrug off abuse from most any load of load In fact, it's a heavy duty floor at no extra cost.

Handi-Van's body and frame are unitized And the heavy-gauge steel has extra resistance to corrosion, giving you longer service.

You can see how great Handi-Van is from the back.
But the most important thing is on the front.

It's that GMC nameplate that makes the difference. Not the plate itself of course, but what it represents. GMC has a reputation for Engineering Leadership. For instance: realizing most Handi-Vans would be city-operated and subject to road moisture and salt, GMC engineers started at the bottom. Sheet metal is exposed areas is first galvanized, then covered with aluminum paint, phosphated . . . then, after all that, undercoated! No wonder Handi-Van stands up so well under the worst a Canadian winter has to offer. And no wonder GMC has earned that reputation for leadership. When you're thinking vans—think Handi-Van by GMC.

MacDuff Ottawa report

emphasized current attention, and was concerned about some aspects of federal economic policy which appeared to infringe on provincial rights.

Philosophical arguments may be pursued calmly and peaceably. Real fighting doesn't start until a specific issue appears, and it already has.

The issue involves an CBC magistrate in Quebec, who are now represented by the International Alliance of Theatre and Stake Employees (IATSE), a CLC affiliate.

The CNTU canvassed the membership and succeeded in winning a vote authorizing a strike. The trouble began when application for certification was made to the Federal Labour Relations Board.

COULD BE BIASED

The Board turned down the application on the grounds that the CBC and other national companies should deal with employees uniformly across the country.

There are four union members on the federal board—three appointed by the CLC, one by the CNTU. It was apparent to the CNTU that whenever it, as a union organization, was in conflict with the CLC, it could not hope to get a favourable decision from the board.

The CNTU officers made this the chief point in their brief to the government. They threatened to boycott the Canada Labour Relations Board unless the board is made bilingual, and unless the effective control by the CLC was removed.

The Federal Labour Department asked them to examine these demands and further meetings were to be held.

But the CLC was not so diplomatic. Following an executive meeting here, President Jodoin fired off a statement that amounted to a declaration of war on the CNTU.

SOTH BARRELS

He accused the Quebec organization of making a deliberate attempt to disrupt labour legislation and collective bargaining practices in Canada. And his criticism went beyond labour matters.

The CNTU, he said, was also trying to "undermine the whole structure of Canada with a deliberate attempt to cut the ties that bind people of various provinces and racial backgrounds together as Canadians".

Mr Jodoin also said that the CLC represented more workers in Quebec than did the CNTU. The CNTU policy would lead to wage differentials among regions.

Workers in Quebec, for example, would see their wages frozen and would be unable to overcome the wage gap with Ontario and other provinces which now exists.

He predicted "chaos". For us, the answer by which the grants to the Town of Tofield and the Village of Holden had been reduced be reinstated and warred to these two local authorities.

In regards to the Crop Insurance Plan, the secretary-treasurer referred to the Council a letter from the General Manager of the Alberta Crop Insurance Corporation which indicated that it would not be possible to extend the crop insurance to the County of Beaver in 1966.

Moved and carried that the information be accepted and the correspondence received and filed

Correspondence

A letter from Elmer Sitler, owner of N ½ 25-49-20-W4th, a quarter section that the County owns in the County of Camrose, advising that he was agreeable to pay $75 rent for this quarter section was referred to the Council Mr Sitler mentioned that a new road had been put through on or near this parcel of land and he inquired if the County would

Little discussion at county ratepayer meet

Judging by the few questions asked and the minimal amount of discussion which took place at the annual meeting of the ratepayers of the County of Beaver Saturday, county residents are generally pretty happy with the way the county council and school committee are handling things. The meeting was held Saturday afternoon in the Ryley gymnasium.

SMALL ATTENDANCE

The meeting was about 15 minutes late starting, due to a poor attendance. When it was called to order, only about 16 ratepayers were present, but this number swelled to nearly 40 before the meeting ended.

Chairman was Victor Rosmaniuk, with Bob Cross as secretary.

One question raised in connection with school matters was why teachers were charged $12 per month for the use of block heaters, while office staff members paid nothing for the same privileges. Secretary Olof Monsson explained this was something new for the teachers just this year, whereas the outlets have been used at the office for several years. The matter regarding the office just never came up, he said, and added he personally would be quite willing to pay for the use of the outlet if this was the meeting's wish. How-

Moved and carried that agreements be obtained from any apprentice that the County may have whereby they agree to remain with the County for one year for each year that the County provides for their attendance at the N.A.I.T.

Students, parents and teachers seek improvements in education system

An interested group of concerned parents attended the evening's program presented by the A.T.A. on Tuesday, March 8th, in the Tofield School in observance of Education Week

ELEMENTARY

The first two sessions ran concurrently in the section dealing with elementary school, Mrs. Daisy Young was chairman with Mrs. Harriet Barkly, Supervisor of Instruction for County of Beaver, as consultant. Members of the panel which dealt with the aims, methods and achievements of the Continuous Progress Plan were Mrs. Noble, Mrs. Everett, Mrs. Ingram, assisted by Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. McCormick. Miss Zwiebehe and Mr. Rexdal reported on the type of report cards used, and they were assisted by Mrs. Astbey and Mrs. Fraser. Printed material was prepared by Miss S. Komarnisky.

On behalf of the elementary teachers, Mrs. Young thanked the parents who attended, but stated that the elementary teachers had hoped for a larger attendance to discuss the problems concerned with the elementary school.

NEW H.S. COURSES

Mrs. Mollie Conn, president of the Tofield sub - local, presided over the group which was concerned with the new courses being, or about to be, introduced into the Junior and Senior High School. H. A. Pike, Superintendent of Schools for the County of Beaver, was consultant for this session.

Assisting Mrs. Conn were teachers from High School and Junior High. Lloyd Cribb explained the new Social Studies 33 course, which is for the benefit of non-matriculation students. Nona Eastlick described the new science and biology course, and indicated probable future changes in the courses and the equipment which will be necessary for them

Who's being fooled?

Two government members shot down Liberal Bill Dickie's suggestion that laws be passed in Alberta to prevent juvenile hockey players from being signed up by national league representatives. Their major criticism appears to be that the bill was "premature".

Nonsense. The only thing premature about it was that it was advanced by a member of the opposition, rather than the government. If they wanted to make amendments, the detail of the bill could easily have been altered; after all, it seems the government has sufficient strength to ensure that.

But to give the bill the old fashioned heave is simply playing politics with children, the very same kids the new ministry of youth is designed to look out for. What can the new ministry achieve that modifying the Dickie bill wouldn't have achieved, other than putting the opposition in its place? Por shame!

Blatant politics

If Prime Minister Pearson had sat down and deliberately calculated the manoeuvre most likely to discredit the Canadian Senate, he couldn't have selected one better than his recent appointment of ten new Senators, all at the same time, and nine at least of them known almost exclusively for their active interest in Liberal party organization.

There would definitely have been criticism if the Senate slots had been filled from time to time one at a time with all Liberal appointments, but it would not have seemed on the surface at least to be such a cut and dried proposition. Even devoted Liberal workers to whom we've talked can't find words for their feelings.

Alberta may probably find itself reasonably well represented by Harry Hays, known for his outspoken opinions regardless of party or personage. It may even be that Harper Prowse, who was selected twenty-odd years ago by Canadian servicemen to quit his regiment and return home to the Legislature, will add some stature to the Red Chamber. Although based on past performance, we do not anticipate debates in the Senate will gain much lustre from their appointments. On the contrary, we feel Alberta's third appointment, Senator Earl Hastings, is little short of an insult.

We have in the past stoutly defended the need for the Senate in Canada, and the job it can do. But we're thoroughly sickened by this contemptuous using of the Senate, and we'd readily agree the time has come for changes in the method of selection.

We still need the Senate and we still need Senators.

But let's for the wellbeing of our nation find another way of getting people into it. We could establish an electoral college, such as in the United States. We might set up a permanent commission making appointments. We might allocate so many to each political party, or to every provincial legislature. We might arrange for popular election from zones or wards, on a lifetime or 75- basis. Or we might establish an hereditary Senate, somewhat in the fashion of the British House of Lords. Or maybe we could hold national sweepstakes, with Senate seats as the prize.

Even this last ridiculous suggestion, we submit, wouldn't produce any more shameful result than Mr. Pearson's sickening political gesture which dubiously avoided any alliance with moral principle

Parlors are past

The Fairview Post brings up a point which must have occurred to many parents of school children as it writes "Some harassing parents wonder why school players come up with costly buildings that seem to have every thing but a floor to walk on. Some parents are miffed at the fact the new shoes they purchased for their child remain as they got to and from class but they are only permitted to be worn inside the school. If the line that seems to be vogue now stands up these estimated with exceeding misery for new wear should crack on some thick coat will avoid everyday use. How long would a Main Street store remain in business if was attempted to have their customers take their shoes off at the door so they wouldn't put a few marks on the line?"

We agree with The Post, but we don't think it's the fact the line or other floor material won't stand up. What about the janitors or teachers who are so proud of the wonderful coat of wax on the floors they won't let anybody walk on them" Granted, there's no place for hob-nailed boots, or cleats, on schoolroom floors or any there. On the other hand, they aren't built like old-fashioned parlors just for when the minister comes.

Or could it be that the stiletto heels the girls wear is the basis of most of the trouble? Anyway, floors are for walking on, not looking at. Let's get back to some sort of reasonable perspective.

By George!

A writer in a recent issue of The United Church Observer, Grace Lane, has let it be known she is not prepared to let critics —be they atheists or otherwise— sit back smugly and glory in the criticisms they have voiced about the churches of Canada and the world. Calling them "secular saints", Miss Lane spends out against those critics so well and so strongly, I felt her opinions will be repeated many times over across Canada, and that this column should be among the first to do so. She says:

Well, 1965 was quite a year. The sky was so lit by the pristine perfection of the secular saints' fine lenses all the answers, possess all the virtues, that we poor, imperfect men and women of faith were revealed for the shoddy creatures that we are.

What we didn't see under this blaze of brilliance, we heard from the eager acolytes who serve the new prophets with such devotion.

A typical specimen was the preacher at a prairie lakeside last summer. We were gathered as a community church that has been maintained by the residents of the district since 1913. Nearby is a fine campsite where several thousand boys and girls have spent happy and constructive holidays since about 1930. Leadership, administration and finances have come from volunteers drawn from several of congregations in southeast Saskatchewan. The current campers, a fine group of teen-agers were present with us. The young man in the pulpit laid us out. There was no health in us and we knew it. The virtuous were all 'out there' lying on the beach and in the water. He was right, of course. It was perfectly obvious by the intense, dedicated way they applied their suntan lotion and littered the sand with paper that what washed most heavily upon them was segregation in the deep south and the refugee problem in the Middle East.

The occupants of the speed boats pointing in too close to the swimmers really had only one thing on their minds, the danger of escalation in Viet Nam and their eagerness to get involved, personally, in solving the problem.

We who had gathered to think and to pray, to ask for forgiveness for our failures and to try harder to be Christlike should have been ashamed of ourselves. Here we were, retreating, when we could have been part of the committed masses milling around the soft drink dispenser.

As well—almost we might hope less we might as well enjoy our shortcomings and quit paying for the hospitals, schools, and agricultural centres we own. We can leave to "them" the homes for unmarried mothers, the hungry we maintain for Indian girls in Regina and the halfway house for released prisoners in Winnipeg. The hundreds of local youth groups and junior choirs we lead week after week we can just forget about.

We may as well stop supporting missionaries in Angola or India. After all, they are miles away from their children and their friends because doctoring and teaching are so much easier in the under developed countries, and they pay so much better than they do in Canada. The secular saints will march right on and we can kick up our heels.

But wait a minute—how long does it take light from the nearest star apart from the sun to reach the earth? Four and a half light years. These dazzlers have just appeared. I guess after all, we'll have to carry on for a while yet.

EVERYMAN'S ESTATE TAX

OTTAWA —A few years ago if the average wage and salary earner realized there was such a thing as an Estate Tax Act then Succession Duties Act) he viewed it as something out of his realm and, no. Even if he were earning a fair salary the chances of his building up an estate of more than $60 000 the minimum on which his widow would pay succession duties were remote.

The federal government is in part responsible for the change in the tax. If someone like Sy. James Dunn died — as it did which threatened for a while as Empire Canadian Lehman or Algoma Steel as Lash Dunn sought cash to pay the tax — government revenues got a real blip. Otherwise it was a minor source. So little import ance has been put on it that Ottawa has withdrawn from 70 per cent of the tax paid in favour of the provinces and retains the rest only because the estates tax returns supply valuable information on estate income tax.

PICTURE ALTERED

But suddenly a great many people have become aware of the tax and are wondering whether they ought to follow them into the death by a few years. The estate tax law are of course, being constantly altered and the estate planner are likely to become of prime political importance.

This year the Canadian Labour Congress put its annual brief to the government ignored income tax and concentrated its attention on the Estate Tax calling for major amendments and pointing to its evasion. It was no unusual that the CLC don't mentioned that until then it had had only an academic interest in the estates tax but that with the coming of the Canada Pension Plan it has assumed practical importance for the wage earner. Group pension plans to which employer and employee paid contributions have been in existence (employer are of relatively recent origin and the average employee aside from a vague realization that he was saving up something for his old age and for his survivors, is only just waking up to the fact that he may be building an estate that will interest the tax collector.

The Canada Pension Plan to which he and his employer and contribute whether they like it or not has brought this problem to much closer

INCLUDES MANY

If he is earning $5 000 a year or more, his widow after the CPP retires to maturity will be entitled to a pension of $64 01 at age 45. This assumes no dependent children. The Department of National Revenue look at this pension and calculate a lump sum value on the ba of the number of years she p expect to receive it. This is a figure of the expecta tables from the actuarial Long. The capital value of a CPP widow's pension of $14,500 to which would be ad $5 40 death benefit.

The $19 900 sum, say, to make a way below the $60 00 estate tax. But sin tax law has been changed in recent years to include in the estate the value of pensions of all kinds. Thus the $19 900 is worth $29 a month. If the widow 45 the value of this benefit be ye of the Revenue Dep mor is $30 000.

INSURANCE ESTATE

Take another case a hus ex 65 whose survivor ben is $200 a month. The value has purposes of her pension at $ If the Canada Pension Plan a sur vivor benefit is added to t plus is over the $60,000 limit and pays tax.

Heap cheerleaders

MacDuff Ottawa report

Even in the case of pensions of less value if there are other assets such as a house, possibly a car, a substantial life insurance policy, the estate on this basis can soon build up to the $60,000 level. The pension value has been commuted for tax purposes over the period of life expectancy There is no such commutation in the case of the tax. That must be paid within six months The result is that the house, or car, may have to be disposed of or the proceeds from the life insurance policy paid over to the state in spite of the fact that the husband's premiums through the years have been subject to income tax.

In addition to all this the widow has no certainty of living out her span of expectancy. She may die within two or three years of her husband, in which case the Revenue Department shares the benefits with the insurance company since the annuity can't be passed on further as an inheritance.

BE RETURNED

For illustration take the case where the rest of the widow's estate is valued at exactly $60,000 and in addition to this she is drawing a survivor benefit from the Canada Pension Plan. If she is aged 45 and dies a year after her husband she will have paid $1,800 in tax and received $700 in pension payments

The Canadian Labour Congress has a simple and apparently equitable solution. It suggests that if the pension is to be valued on the basis of life expectancy the tax should be paid in instalments over the same period. Ottawa officials who have examined this proposal before refuse to differentiate between a pension and any other asset left in an estate They will not concede that if the widow dies soon after her husband there has been any overpayment of estates tax.

TREAT ALL ALIKE

One reason for this rigid attitude is that civil servants are probably the most sufferers from the present system and would be the greatest beneficiaries of any change. The civil service pension plan provides a widow with half her husband's pension which, in the case of a number of senior civil servants, could easily mean as much as $500 a month. They have been afraid of accusations that they were discriminating in their own favour Now that the ice has been broken by the CLC and applications of the estates tax widened by the coming of the CPP they may feel they can take a different attitude.

CANEY—In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Edward George (Ted) Caney, who passed away March 10, 1965.

Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain.

When we were all together.

Ryley high school news

This year the Ryley High School annual Spring Prom will be held on April 29. The theme for this year's prom will be "Spring in Paris".

This Saturday Warren Kushnir, Larry Gardeski, Ian Snort and Tommy Anneho will be Ryley's representatives in the County of Beaver High School Bonspiel, in Holden.

Last weekend, the two high school basketball teams motored to Provost, to compete in the provincial basketball semi-finals. Although the teams didn't come up on top, all had a good time. Mr. Vo and Mr. and Mrs. Stasko accompanied the teams. Mr. Lehman drove the bus. The teams left Friday around 4:00 o'clock and came home Saturday evening.

From basketball to broomball! This is what comes next in the gym, and besides reports of sore shins, all enjoy the game.

IN MEMORIAM

CANEY.—In loving memory of Ted Caney, who passed away March 10, 1965:

We do not forget, nor do we intend.
We think of you often, will to the end.
Forgotten by some you may be
In our memory you will ever be.

—Ever remembered and sadly missed by Mom and Dad, Dewick, Ted and Ona, Lill and Lorna, Bob and Marion, Jimmy, Betty and Janice. 28p-3081

CANEY.—In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Edward George (Ted) Caney, who passed away March 10, 1965.

Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain.
To have, to love, and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never—
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.

—Ever remembered and sadly missed by Loving Parents, Brothers and Sisters. 28c-3085

Throwing a party

Planning a party can be just as much fun as throwing one. All you need is a little imagination. First, decide what type of a party you are going to have, then use your theme as a basis for atmosphere For instance, a "come as you were" party — send the invitations attached to diaper pins. All guests come dressed as they were when they were still teething. Have them all send you pictures of themselves when they were still babies. When the guests arrive have them identify the posing babies, to get the party clicking

You may not think that the "Flying Dutchman" and other games you played when you were a child are any fun, but just try them for fun. They will prove to be a riot! While the party is under way, play some of the records you used to listen to in the days of old For lunch, serve your favorite food 10 years ago, and even go as far as to serve baby pablum as a side dish. With a silver spoon, of course!

See how much fun it can be?

There are hundreds of different kinds of parties you can throw and the more way-out and wacky they are, the more fun and laughter there will be.

Here are a few reminders when you plan your next party:

1. Have something to get the party under way. (e.g. When guests arrive, give them several pieces of an unfinished puzzle on the coffee table Finishing the puzzle gets everybody talking!).
2. Have entertainment such as games or dancing
3. Have plenty to eat. Boys are enormous eaters, especially after they've been dancing or out skiing.

Remember, you're the one who must get parties going A well-planned and a successful party is always remembered, so you're bound to be invited to another one.

Fire in fireman's home; fireman was out of town at time

Camrose fireman Gene Thirsk failed to respond to a fire call last week, even though the call came from his own home.

Mrs. Thirsk called the fire department about noon when she noticed smoke coming from her clothes dryer She immediately pulled the plug from the electrical outlet, and as a result damage was kept to a minimum, and the fire was out by the time the brigade arrived. Apparently the motor had overheated and lint in the machine began to smoulder.

Mr Thirsk, an employee of The Canadian, spends each Wednesday in Tofield, Ryley and Holden, servicing advertising accounts for The Tofield Mercury.

Little discussion p. o. s

over, another salesman, who said his wife was a teacher, argued he considered it a "privilege" to have the outlets provided for rural teachers at $12 a month.

In his report, H. A. Pike noted there are 30 fewer students in the county than there were last year. With regard to teachers, he said:

"The County was not able to staff its schools adequately for 1965 - 66. A recruiting program produced five teachers from the United States, three from Nova Scotia, and two from India, plus another six from the bursary program. The County was still forced to ask retired teachers to return to the classroom on a normal program could be carried out. Two high school teachers from India failed to appear, placing classes in an awkward situation.

"The County still offered bursaries for the first two years of the teacher training program and during the fall of 1965 offered a third year to teachers holding a certificate and to teachers in training who would agree to teach in the high school upon graduation.

"There are 13 students in the first year of the bursary program, eight students on a second year of the bursary program and eight students on the third year of the program. The 30 teachers in training comprise a potential teaching force for the next three years. However, at least 12 new classrooms will have to be recruited each year to maintain the force".

Mr. Pike added the county is finding it more difficult to carry on a full high school program "as a result of this age of specialization". He said more consideration might have to be given in the future to more busing and centralization, and taking rational use of junior colleges and vocational schools.

During the discussion of municipal affairs, Reeve Jim Roddick spoke briefly on the proposed network of secondary highways throughout the province, in which all counties and municipalities will be involved. Mr. Roddick and Councillor W. Krupinski are Beaver county representatives on a unit committee whose job it is to work out a system of roads in the area. Most of these roads will be paved, said Mr. Roddick.

"The project is to be completed over the next 15 years. Costs of the survey for road locations is to be shared 20 per cent by the province, he said, with the balance to be split among the four rural municipalities in the unit.

Field Supervisor Rex Boyles gave a fairly lengthy report. He noted there is no agricultural service board any more, and that it is now an agricultural committee, with about the same status as the school committee except it has a much smaller budget. His position now, he added, is "agricultural field man" instead of "field supervisor", and commented, "so if you want me, just look out in some field, I guess".

He noted there are about 40 miles of backsloped roadsides which need grass seeded on them, and recommended that be done by the "hydro-seeding" method, whereby the grass seed is spread with water spray.

Just before the meeting adjourned at 6:00 p.m., there was a request the county supply maps with all assessment figures on them so that farmers may compare assessments. Council agreed to take the matter under consideration.

at the differential aptitude tests which he has given to students from Grades VIII to XII. This series of tests is verbal reasoning, numerical ability, mechanical reasoning and clerical ability.

STUDENTS' VIEWPOINT

The final event of the evening took the form of a symposium with Linda Schaecher, a Grade XII student, doing a most capable job of moderating. Linda explained the purpose of the symposium as being to discuss education, its strengths and weaknesses in Alberta, from the viewpoints of students on both matriculation and diploma patterns.

Portraying the students' viewpoints were Beth Ingram for Grade IX, Bill Sears for Grade X, Doug Grower for Grade XI, Cheryl Halverson and Henry Schroeder for Grade XII diploma pattern students, and Elaine Borell, Grade XII, for the matriculation student. The parents' viewpoint was expressed by Dr G. M. Price, and J. C. Lampitt spoke on behalf of the teachers.

LACK OF FACILITIES

The students in general spoke of the lack of facilities for students in the diploma program. They felt that our schools do not offer sufficiently comprehensive courses in the commercial and vocational fields. These students all delivered well-prepared speeches, which gave evidence of sound reasoning and responsible thinking. Consideration of their views could profitably be given by parents, teachers and administration

Dr. Price expressed, as a parent, both approval and disapproval of various educational practices. Mr. Lampitt explained some points that had caused confusion, and the reasons for and introducing the new mathematics in all the grades at once.

Mr. Pike complimented the panel members on their clear presentations, and educators on their willingness to ask for and accept constructive criticism. The students on the panel received praise from several members of the audience for their polished performances. The moderator, Linda Schaecher, thanked the panel members, and invited the audience to remain for coffee and the social hour to follow.

Beaver Lake level down 13 ft. from '03

BEAVER HILLS — On July 13, 1903, a survey of Beaver Lake was made, in order to find out how much the lake would have to rise in order to come up to the high level mark it was in 1903, and again in 1917. The result was that it would have to rise 12 ft., to come up to the 1903 mark, and 13 feet to equal the 1917 mark.

37 ratepayers attend town's annual meeting

J. E. Stinson was appointed chairman of the Annual Meeting of Ratepayers of the Town of Tofield, held February 28th in the Meeting Room of the Tofield Community Centre.

Rita Halverson was recording secretary.

A total of 37 Ratepayers attended

Rita Halverson read the secretary treasurer's report stating that 1965 was a good year for Tofield. The Town was not only able to show a healthy surplus but was also able to pay approximately $12,000 on unpaid 1964 debenture debts and requisitions. The total tax credits amounted to 102.3% which included 13.3% arrears credits. Eleven and a half town lots were sold and building permits sold totalled an estimated value of $115,850, consisting of 10 new dwellings, nine garages including the County's Municipal Garage and two renovations and additions. As a result the taxable assessment for 1966 is increased by $64,000 which takes into consideration a $10,000 assessment loss due to separation from the Town in 1965. The report stated that for every $100 paid in taxes, $55 went to Education; $8 for Hospital and Health Unit; $13 for local improvement debenture debts, and $24 for Town administration which includes police, fire, street lights, public works maintenance, gravelling, sidewalks, welfare, garbage removal, auditor, assessors, insurance and all the other services provided by the Town.

Mr. E. Watson moved the adoption of this report.

The Municipal Inspector's Report was made by Mrs. Halverson. Mr. J. D. Inness, Inspector, stated that all books and records were being maintained in an efficient manner with the minutes prepared to give a clear account of the Town's transactions and administration Mr Inness recommended that two cancellations of arrears bylaws be submitted for approval by the Minister. Also discussed bylaw be corrected to include the rescinding of a previous discussed bylaw

Clr Allan moved the adoption of the Municipal Inspector's report

Mr. H. G. Seller, manager of the Bank of Montreal, commented on the Auditors' Statement, stating that the Town was in a much better financial position than the previous year's. The Debenture debt at present is $221 per capita, reduced considerably in the past 18 years. Mr. Seller commended the Town on the arrears collections in 1965. But he cautioned against over - spending to enable a good cash reserve to be built up. Mr. Seller felt that the prepayment of taxes was working out well for the Town.

Mr. Neil Nahrebecki moved the report be accepted.

Mrs. John Story very much alive!

This letter received in The Mercury office from our Holden correspondent is self-explanatory, and we can give no excuse for the serious error, except to say it is human error that is ever possible, especially when there are deadlines to meet. We express our deepest apologies to the Story family, and can only say we hope Mrs. Story will celebrate many more birthdays.

It was quite a shock to see in The Mercury, March 10th, the heading above the account of a birthday celebration of Mrs. John Story, "Mrs. John Story Dies in 100th Year".

Mrs. Story is in good health for her age, and it was turned upsetting to have inquiries regarding her death, but the headline surely hits one. It is disturbing for the family, and difficult for me to explain I do not write the headlines.

Sincerely,

Mrs. G. H. Taylor,

FUA to form MSI group

At the FUA meeting on March 8th, Mr. Callen of Medical Services Incorporated explained the benefits of a group plan over individual memberships to all in attendance

Briefly this is the plan:

To form a group any organization has to have 60% of its members enrol These who now have individual contracts can transfer to Group There is no three-months waiting period as in individual, before becoming effective; and no exclusion for chronic or pre-existing ailments. Dependents receive equal coverage and there is no age limit. The premiums are considerably lower.

With the new Provincial subsidy which is at present 50% of the premium and which is expected to be raised considerably at the present sitting of the legislature no family can afford not to have some coverage. After full explanation by Mr. Callen it was passed practically unanimously to endeavour to form a group and within the next week or so Mid will have a man in the field to help canvass the district. If you are interested it would help considerably if you would phone either Ed Ferguson 662-3108 or Reg Caspin, phone 662-3307 and we will call on you to fully explain, no pressure will be used. Next meeting, Tuesday, April 12. MLA Mr. Gordey will be here.

On Gerda

It must indeed be a matter of the utmost concern to Canadians that a case which on the face of it is infinitely less serious than the Profumo case in Britain should through bungling mismanagement have developed into proportions which threaten to pull down not only a handful of senior government members, but quite probably the entire government- and even remotely possibly the institution of government as we know it.

As events continue to unfold there can be little doubt that the move was coldly premeditated by Justice Minister Cardin, though probably the exact time of its revelation had not been established. It seems obvious that he had knowledge of the Munsinger file for some time, and if this is accepted, it seems equally obvious he must have saved it up for some special occasion.

The file, reported to have been smuggled out, nonetheless is duplicated in RCMP files, and everything in it was known to police forces. Since no action was ever taken by these forces, it seems not unreasonable to suppose there was little question of security in their minds. The problem, if it ever existed, is long past, and nothing could now be gained by Mr Cardin's resurrecting it except personal revenge or a little political advantage.

Unless a security problem can be established in the investigation, the whole matter should be dropped, but unfortunately it cannot be. It seems incredible that the lifetime activities and careers of men of established reputation, some of whom served with distinction in the armed forces and all of whom served their government with distinction, should be brought shattering down in ruins by a tawdry "party girl". It seems beyond belief that millions of Canadian men and women who wouldn't dream of admitting this cheap tramp to their homes will read and believe every word she says And it seems unbelievable that of all the players in this sorry drama, only Gerda Munsinger will profit by it. She, obviously, stands to collect handsomely from royalties on publishing rights, now and in the future.

In this whole messy business, possibly we shouldn't overlook the warning issued by Igor Gouzenko, the Soviet cipher clerk defector of twenty years ago, who made a rare television appearance Sunday to point out this is the sort of work indulged in by the Soviets to bring into disrepute the establishment in other places. If they had a hand in this they can congratulate themselves on scoring a ringer- but Canadians should, just the same, keep the possibility in mind there was a plant in the case. Thousands of Albertans living today are convinced they saw another political career wrecked by planted and contrived evidence. Does history repeat itself?

Good news to motorists

Announcement of the survey being conducted into insurance rates in Alberta will be welcomed by thousands of motorists, and quite probably by many of the casualty underwriters, too. Drivers will expect to see demonstrated proof that insurance rates are too high, while the insurance companies, we suspect, will be glad of an opportunity to air their position.

One of the areas they will doubtless attack as being a big problem is the responsibility of carrying the assigned risks- drivers whose business no one wants, but which they carry simply because each company in turn is assigned its share of these risks. The plan was adopted in the hope of avoiding government entry into the insurance field.

If things are as bad as the underwriters say . . . and their figures are open to inspection . . . it seems logical they should not always want to get out of the business and let the government have it. On the other hand, if public examination of the insurance problem produces a clearer understanding of problems and hazards faced by the companies, we may be able to more accurately assess the adjustments to be faced . . . either by the insurance companies or by the motoring public.

Too complicated

Income tax time is rolling around fairly quickly, and on all sides the public is being besieged with advertisements, articles, broadcasts and telecasts to get their returns filled in properly and accurately, in order to avoid departmental trouble in processing them.

It had never occurred to us that the duty of all good citizens lay in making conditions as smooth as possible for the income tax collector, so this is a new concept. After all, if we make things too easy for them, how can all those extra jobs year after year be justified?

That's only an aside, though. What really bothers us is the need for all this advice on how to fill out forms correctly. Surely this indicates that the form is unnecessarily difficult in the first place. If only part of the effort and expense were beamed at simplifying the form, it's probable fewer mistakes would be made in the first place.

At the same time, we have to credit the department on two counts. They really did introduce a "simpler" tax form a couple of years ago, only to be with numerous errors, they are trying to do something about it, in the way of spreading clearer understanding, rather than wringing their hands and complaining.

By George!

I have often wondered lately why one no longer hears the national anthem played at the end of shows in movie theatres. Not too many years ago no one dared leave the building until the completion of the playing of "God Save the Queen". I can't remember when the practice might have gone out of existence

I wouldn't doubt, though, it came about shortly after the time drive-in theatres came into being. It seems impractical for drive-ins, alright (can you imagine the patrons getting out of their cars to stand at attention during the playing of "The Queen"? This is asking too much!

And one certainly couldn't censure of anyone standing at attention inside the car unless he's a patriotic midget or a youngster who should be home in bed at that late hour anyway.

As far as I am concerned, the custom for indoor movie houses was a good one and one that should be revived. Two years or so ago we were all watching with interest the progress of the flag debate. Now we have our very own flag, one of which we can be justly proud. But in the meantime, somehow we have let an age-old patriotic custom slip by the boards pretty well unnoticed.

SURVIVAL COURSE

OTTAWA.—Just over one year ago the Department of External Affairs issued a press release. That release was the start of a series of developments that culminated in the Liberal minority government narrowly escaping its most severe setback in the Commons. It left the government badly shaken and a severe blow to the power and prestige of Prime Minister L. B. Pearson.

In May, 1965, External Affairs issued a statement disclosing the break-up by the R.C.M.P. of a Russian industrial espionage ring that had been operating in Canada. The release went into much more detail than was necessary for such statements dealing with security cases. It was a mistake for which the government was to pay dearly

The government explained at the time that more information was being given out than usual in order to call attention to the dangers to national security that are threatening on all sides today, to focus attention on the kind of conspiracy developing and the relationship of these dangers to civil servants, as a result of the espionage activities that had been uncovered two Russians attached to the USSR embassy in Ottawa were ordered back to their home land

EXPECTED TO RISE

The release revealed that two Canadians were involved One had gone straight to the RCMP when he had been approached by the Russians The second had not. But the government indicated it was taking no legal action against the second man because he was dangerously ill at the time the press release was issued The implication was that he was not expected to recover from his illness.

But recover he did. He was operated on for the removal of a cancerous lung. He survived and eventually made his identity known to a Vancouver newspaper man. He is Victor Spencer, a former postal clerk in Vancouver. The government ordered a civil service inquiry and after the hearing Spencer was fired.

Later Justice Minister Lucien Cardin appeared on a CBC program. "This Hour Has Seven Days" and there he confirmed that Spencer was the second Canadian named in the external affairs release He branded Spencer as a risk to the security of the state and he would be kept under surveillance

SETTING THE STAGE

There it was, all the ingredients for the NDP and the Progressive Conservatives to seize on the case and exploit it as a prime example of the civil liberties of the little man being trampled underfoot by a heartless and arrogant administration. They had no time. Victor Spencer became a cause celebre. The opposition hooked that Spencer had been patently branded a traitor and placed under life-long surveillance without even having the opportunity of a trial The government revealed that Spencer had publicly redentified himself by his own actions Justice Minister Cardin on the advice of law officers and undoubtedly others refused to be drawn by the RCMP, argued vehemently against any inquiry being launched into the case Inquiries cannot be made into national

Open Letter to
Ratepayers of Tofield

It is being suggested around town that as a centennial project, a library be built at a cost of some $24 000.00

It is hoped that the ratepayers will give this careful consideration

In the first place a town the size of Tofield cannot support and does not need a structure of this size, which we understand is to also have a room where senior citizens can use as a sort of club room This we believe a good, but would suggest that we have plenty of buildings to fulfill this purpose here already, such as Legion Hall, Community Hall meeting room rotunda, etc None of these are at present used to capacity

We presume that if a building of this proportion was built, it would entail a full time librarian and caretaker—this takes money Our present library seems to be working adequately, and should fill the needs for some time to come

If you think your present taxes are high enough give this careful consideration and let your councillors know. The main cause to benefit would be the ratepayer —don't be misled

Let's hear your opinion

"One Interested".

Editor, The Mercury

We extend to you our sincere "thank you" for publishing our letter in your paper as an appeal for clothing for the Metis Centre of Edmonton

The response from the public was something terrific, thanks to your paper At this time we will ask you to please discontinue and thank you none the less for your very generous help in donating clothing

Once again, Thank You sincerely yours, security cases as they would expose to the view of Canada's enemies his counter-espionage organization

The cabinet studied the case. Prime Minister Pearson at the outset was included in the view that Canada's national security procedures might perhaps be due for a searching examination by a judicial committee or commission. But the majority of the cabinet were opposed to such a move and the decision was taken to stand firm against the demands of the opposition for an inquiry into the Spencer case.

NEW FOR THE HOUSE

The battle was joined on the floor of the House. The Conservatives and NDP dug in their heels and stalled and delayed passage of estimates, arguing vehemently about the need to have an inquiry look into the Spencer case to ensure that the former postal clerk had been fairly treated. The Prime Minister said Spencer had not complained about his treatment, on the contrary he had sent a letter to the government in which he thanked those concerned for the considerate manner in which they had handled his case.

The verbal battle dragged on. The government was getting close to the deadline when it would have exhausted its financial resources. Still the opposition refused to budge. Justice Minister Cardin, his patience exhausted, turned on his tormentor, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, and blasted him. Seldom has the Tory leader been so mauled before in the Commons. The fury of the attack left Diefenbaker reeling on the ropes and Cardin was the hero of the Liberal backbenchers. Cardin declared firmly, emphatically and finally that he had stated the government's position and it would not be changed.

STUPIDITY

But up rose David Lewis, of the New Democratic Party. In a reasoned appeal to the Government and Prime Minister, he argued that such obstinacy bordered on insanity. Had there would be no threat to national security in granting an in-camera inquiry into the Spencer case

His clinching argument was that he had contacted Spencer through a Vancouver lawyer. Spencer had informed Lewis that he was not satisfied with his treatment, that he regarded it as unfair that he should lose his pension and insurance benefits and that he wanted an inquiry

That did it. Prime Minister Pearson wavered. He was now concerned that perhaps an ingenuous inquiry should be held to ensure that Spencer had not been unfairly treated. There were those in the government who wanted to still stand firm against the demands of the united opposition —all four groups were now against the government. A motion of confidence in the Justice Minister was moved. A vote might have meant the defeat of the government. A minority government must give ground under such circumstances.

NEVER THE SAME

The Prime Minister did just that. He capitulated. He agreed to set up an inquiry in-camera. But first he would personally telephone the alleged spy to ensure that Spencer did indeed want an inquiry The phone call was made, probably the first time in history that the head of state has telephoned a man accused of being involved in an espionage ring. But Mr. Pearson went further He returned to his original intentions and announced the decision to establish a sweeping inquiry into the whole national security procedures in this country.

The opposition was jubilant. It had humbled and humiliated the government. The Liberal backbenchers and many of the cabinet were indignant and disgusted with Mr Pearson's capitulation. They were irate at the treatment he had accorded Mr. Cardin, who was left shattered and visibly embittered. His political enemy, the Opposition Leader, tasted the fruits of victory and found them sweet. He was not magnanimous. He revelled in his triumph and whiplashed the Justice Minister while other Conservatives poured salt in the open wounds. The government had survived the crisis but it will never be the same.

Sign of early spring

I have caught my first butterfly today, March 13th, which just crept out from the cocoon in the basement. It was probably carried into the basement as a caterpillar last fall with the vegetables. We see dozens of them in the autumn hovering over the cabbage, and is called the 'cabbage butterfly.'

May be the sign of an early spring, but the only definite sign of an early spring is when I sit on a thumb tack!—J. W. T.

Tips on dieting

So you've decided to diet! Here are a few hints to help you stay on that diet:

1. Paste pound reminders on the refrigerator door, candy dishes, and the kitchen cupboard.
2. Have a diet section in the refrigerator. Place in it, celery, carrots, apples and such.
3. Buy or make a dress that's one size too small.
4. Every time you lose 2 or 3 pounds, buy yourself something—a new lipstick, a new blouse.
5. Celebrate the loss of 5 pounds by throwing a party.
6. Keep a progress chart on the pounds you lose. Once you see the line going down, you won't be so tempted to backtrack.
7. Diet with a friend to keep an eye on each other.
8. If you tend to forget to exercise every morning, set your alarm clock as a reminder.
9. Tape up your present measurements. Every time you see them, you'll probably turn away doing strenuous exercises.
10. Make a deal with your friend. Every time you "snitch" a cookie or a bottle of pop, add a nickel to her piggy-bank.

Plan your diet according to your own requirements and then stick to it. Don't cheat!

The Recipe Box

Here is a do-it-yourself (basic mix) with four variations, to please most anyone — especially since the (mix) can be stored at room temperature, in a covered container.

Rolled Oat Cookie (Mix)
4 cups all purpose (brand) flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons baking soda
1½ teaspoons salt
2 cups brown sugar
1½ cups shortening

Sift the flour, baking powder, soda and salt (2 times); stir in the sugar; cut in shortening until in fine crumbs; add the rolled oats and mix well. Store in a covered container, ready to be used when needed

(Orange Tuesdays)

These are delicate and thin. Combine 2 cups of the (basic mix) with ¼ cup corn syrup, (1 egg), 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 teaspoon vanilla and ½ cup chopped almonds.

Drop by teaspoons on greased cookie sheet. Bake in a 350° F. oven for 10 to 12 minutes.

(Coconut Cookies)

Combine 2 cups (basic mix) with 2 tablespoons milk (1 egg), 1 teaspoon vanilla vanilla and ½ cup coconut. Drop by teaspoons on greased cookie sheet. (Press ½ nut—such as walnuts or almonds—on top of each cookie), and bake for 10 to 12 minutes in a 350° F. oven.

(Chocolate Whirls)

Combine 2 cups of (basic mix) with 1 sq. square of unsweetened chocolate (melted), 1 egg and 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Shape dough in long roll. Wrap in wax paper. Chill for several hours. Slice in ¼-inch slices and bake for 10 to 12 minutes in a 350° F. oven.

(Ribbon Bars)

Combine 2 tablespoons of melted butter to 2 cups of (basic mix). Take half of the mixture and press into an ungreased 8-inch square pan.

Spread the mixture with about 1½ cups sweetened fruit filling, such as (mincemeat), raisin pie filling, chopped dates and nuts or perhaps a favorite fruit filling of your own choice.

Filling is made by taking ½ cups of fruit and cooked with ½ cup water and ½ cup sugar, until thick

Spread the other half of (mix) on top of (fruit) mixture. Press down gently and bake for 25 to 40 minutes in a 350° F. oven

Cut in squares or bars.

On teenage marriages

Teenage marriages have increased greatly in the past 20 years with "disasterous consequences", Dr. I. Lief reported to physicians attending the American Medical Association's 62nd annual Congress on Medical Education in Chicago recently. We're not sure what the statistics would show in Camrose in this regard, but we wouldn't doubt there is a similar trend in this area.

The Tulane University psychiatrist noted that more than 40 percent of U.S. brides are teenagers; that in a recent year more than 600,000 babies were born to mothers between the ages of 14 and 19; that one out of every three high school brides is pregnant when she marries (and one out of six brides generally); and that approximately half the teenage marriages end in divorce. Dr. Lief urged more active and intensive counseling of young people to head off the "individual waste, pain, and lives irreversibly scarred or wrecked."

Giant strides will be made to halt family breakdown, Dr. Lief observed, when physicians and other adults assume responsibility for a broadened concept of family planning. Young people must be guided not only in contraception, but in such matters as when to marry, when to have the first child, child spacing and the desired size of the family.

The physician said that while not all teenage marriages are poor risks, many young people are motivated to get married for such essentially unsound reasons as the search of illusory security, to achieve status or sexual pleasure, or to make a pregnancy legal. Sometimes such marriages represent a rebellion against parental wishes, an effort to overcome loneliness and to become one of the crowd, or a wish to attain independence before being emotionally ready for it.

While many of these motivations occur later in life as well, by that time the individual has usually developed certain firm values and beliefs that are less likely to change.

Dr. Lief believes that every effort should be made to get young people to postpone marriage for a few years, and that meaningful pre-marital counseling is a must.

Such counseling should include not only a blood test for venereal disease, a complete physical examination, and contraceptive advice, but also sound information about sex to overcome fears, consideration of the timing of the first child, child spacing. (Dr. Lief points out that children coming in quick succession can be emotionally and economically burdensome for the parents, leading to emotional problems in the children), and number of children.

Such counseling, the physician believes, will help reduce illigitimacy, abortion, individual and family breakdown — and will thus contribute to the health of the entire nation

FROM TH ESCRAP BOOK (J.W.R.)

The future walls for those who strive,
And falling, try again,
And show the world they're still alive—
No dreams they hold in vain;
The glory road is long and steep,
With obstacles beset—
But he who can his courage keep
May to the summit get.

Modern etiquette

Q. Just what should be done with the paper wrapper on a lump of sugar when dining in a restaurant? Do you place it on the tablecloth, in the saucer of your coffee cup, or in the ashtray?

A. There's really no rule for this. You may put it on the tablecloth for later clearing by the waiter with the crumbs. If you put it into the ashtray, there's danger of fire, and if put into the saucer you could cause the cup to tip over when replacing it on the saucer.

Q Should one always use the napkin on the lips before drinking from a glass of water at the dinner table?

A. Yes, and for a very practical reason. This prevents any chance of leaving an unsightly smudge of food on the rim of the glass

Born in Belgium in '99 Mrs. E. Goubalt passes

On February 15th the Lindbrook district lost a long time resident when Mrs. Emile Goubault passed away in the Tofield Hospital. She had been in ill health for some time, but her sudden death came as a shock to family and friends.

Born in Belgium in 1899, Mrs. Goubault came to Edmonton in 1914 and lived there until her marriage, when she came to a farm north of Lindbrook, where she resided until last fall when she and Mr Goubault moved into Tofield Though she was not one of the earlier settlers in the district, she possessed the fine qualities of kindly hospitality and generosity and the ability of "making do", that meant as much in the '30's as in the earlier years, and she was a beloved member of the community. This fact was made very apparent when a large crowd of neighbors and friends honored Mr. and Mrs. Goubault last fall with a surprise picnic party at their farm home before their move to town

She is survived by her husband and six children, Mrs. Emil Tiedeman (Martha) of Tofield, Mrs. Cliff Gossell (Adele) of Edmonton, Robert of Drayton Valley, and Leon, Victor and Armand, all of Tofield.

Funeral services were held on February 18th from the United Church, Tofield, Rev McDonnold officiating. Pallbearers were John Dunn, Kenneth Vice, John Wood, Edward Ferguson, Jim Hooper and Bill Lancaster port from the Police Department stating that the Police Department had processed fifty one third greater than the previous year which resulted in an increase of $302.95 in fines collected Prosecutions under the Liquor Control Act had increased by seven totalling 32 in 1965, resulting in liquor fines being increased by $ 200.00.

Cons' J Wall moved the adoption of the P ice report

Mayor Dr. W. H. Freebury wished to thank Mrs. Boyle, Mr. McPherson, Mr. Stinson, Father Arris, Mr. Wa.ren and Mr. Lilbury Staff and the Volunteer Fi. Department for the many hours of work donated for the welfare of the Town of Tofield. Dr. Freebury informed the ratepayers that the terms of Cr. Allan and Fverit, and his own as mayor, expire this fall. Turning to the Towns finances he noted that the surplus was due to a larger revenue as the expenses had remained almost identical to that of 1964 Although the Town ended the year with approximately $9 000.00 cash assets plus $6 000 00 receivable from debenture funds it also carried a temporary loan of $12,500 so that the Town would be actually beginning the new year from scratch. Dr Freebury hoped for an over all street improvement and curb and gutter program for 1966.

Dr. Freebury moved the adoption of the Mayor's report.

Cr. Allan, chairman of the fire and light committee, reported that new vapour lights had been installed in 1965 and the voluntary firemen were now covered by Workmen's Compensation He hoped a new fire alarm system could be installed in 1966. Cr. Allan commended the fire department on the fine job done in 1965.

Cr. J.han moved the acceptance of his report

Cr. W. A. Swift reported as Chairman of the Utility Department 200 homes were now under metered control, stating that it was in Tofield Approximately 50,000 gallons of water was being used each day compared to approximately 80,0000 gallons before metering. A new chlorine feeder had been ordered and a new pump would be installed this year. Cr. Swift informed the ratepayers that there was a good supply of water for the coming year but that consideration was being given to a larger reserve supply for the future.

Cr. Swift moved the adoption of the report.

Questions were directed to E. Watson regarding the construction of the Library Building Mr. Watson informed the ratepayers that the Town Council had called for Centennial suggestions, but that the only application received from the Library Board Mr. Watson believed a three wall structure could be erected for the $5,500.00 which the Town was eligible for in grants including the Town share of $2,650.00. A further grant would be applied for and with the hoped for aid from local organizations, the building could be furnished. Some of the ratepayers felt that the Town had enough public buildings now which were having difficulty operating

Mr J. F. Stinson commended the Town Council on their 1965 achievements especially concerning the installation of vapor lights, two blocks of sidewalks, street improvements and the construction of a new Cemetery gate.

The question of dogs running at large was discussed. The Council believed those present that the Dog Pound had been occupied sufficiently since last fall Because of having to keep stray dogs for six days, it allowed dogs to run at large until there was room to impound them.

Unsightly grass and weeds on Town owned property was brought to Councils attention, Cr. Everett by stating that an assistant maintenance man was being hired which would enable the Public Works Department to take care of this in the future

A ratepayer inquired about the availability of trees and was informed that as soon as the owners in a block leveled their yards fronting on sidewalk to a standard, trees could be planted by the Town.

Mr Watson asked Council to consider the possibility of a sidewalk past the play grounds on Main Street and Mr Seller asked that a dust laying program on Main Street be implemented this year

At 10.30, Cr Allan adjourned the meeting

Award for hunter training

Premier E. C. Manning presents an award of merit to Hon. Henry Ruste, minister of lands and forests, on behalf of the National Rifle Association of America. This was the first year Alberta had entered the annual international competition for hunter training programs. The Alberta program was one of nine selected from 34 states and provinces for the award

East Central rural road study under way

Some months ago the provincial highways department came out with the idea of instituting a study of the road situation in Alberta with a view to developing a "secondary" system of quality roads to complement the present provincial primary highway system. It was felt that such a secondary system was needed, to meet the growing demand for improved rural roads for industrial, agricultural and recreational requirements. In this connection the department extended an invitation to the various municipal districts and counties to take part in the study, the cost of which will be borne 50% by the government. Local municipalities and counties responded favorably to this request and as a result a meeting was called to formulate a working group.

FOUR COUNCILS

Late in January of this year representatives from the County of Beaver and the MDs of Provost, Wainwright and Flagstaff met in Sedgewick to investigate and study the proposition Discussed was the road of the operation, the ultimate results and the hiring of engineers to assist in the study. This examination was concerned decided to go ahead with the scheme and form a study group. Each municipality was invited to send two representatives to a further meeting to be held in Flagstaff Board Room on February.

The East Central Rural Road Study Group No. 13 was born at this meeting involving the aforementioned municipalities. The County of Paintearth was invited to participate but declined on the grounds that they were carrying out their own study. Representing the County of Beaver on the study group are J. H. Rodnick and W. Kropielnicki, MD of Provost representatives are W. J. Cromerty and J. Penman; MD of Wainwright, A. C. Archibald and D. Mills; MD of Flagstaff, G. Matthews and A. P. Blois. Mr. Mills is chairman of the group.

ENGINEERS

The firm of Stewart, Weir, Stewart and Watson, surveyors, engineers and consultants were retained. Mr. Weir, who was present at the meeting, presented his company's proposals for conducting the study, distribution of work and responsibility, chart and cost estimates. The estimated costs of the study to the four contributing municipalities would be in the amount of $7,500 over and above the estimated cost of $4,500 to the planner and $13,000 to the consultants These were estimated as maximum costs and could run slightly under. These costs are to be apportioned to the four municipalities on the basis of their 1965 financial reports. These costs will be cut in half as the government reimburses 50%.

Mr. Weir will meet with the councils of each participating municipality at their March meetings to finalize the agreements between the group and the government and the group and consulting engineers, allowing the business of the study to proceed with the least possible delay.

It is anticipated that the study will get underway early this spring.

Holden drainage district holds annual meeting

(Mrs. G. H. Taylor)

HOLDEN — The Holden Drainage District No. 1 held its annual meeting March 16C, in the Gladstone Curling Rink. All Trustees, Oscar Aleith, Hans Huseby and Nick Laskoski with the secretary-treasurer, Ray Howland, were present, and 16 other ratepayers attended.

Brush spraying and the beaver problem were discussed. Nick Laskoski gave the report of the trustees regarding the cost of cleaning ditches for the year, the total cost being $7,079.28, and also stated that for the past six to eight years approximately 60% of the total ditches had been cleaned.

A resolution was passed that the board forward a resolution to the minister of agriculture asking that the department look after the beaver problem when the water has receded from the spring run-off Nomination for one trustee was received for the ensuing three-year term. Oscar Aleith, whose term of office was finished, was re-nominated.

John Baergen at conference

J. Baergen of Tofield was at Winnipeg Monday to Wednesday this week to attend the annual conference for managers of consumer-owned retail co-operatives of the Prairie Provinces.

More than 300 persons attended the event arranged by Federated Co-operatives Limited, the wholesale owned by 580 retail co-ops.

Ways to render more economical services to consumers as formulated by a management consultant firm, and plans to form larger but fewer retail co-ops were main topics discussed, Mr. Baergen told The Mercury in a report from the convention.

It is proposed that the present 580 prairie retail co-ops be eventually cut to about 160. The larger associations would serve regions embracing several communities rather than individual communities. Such a plan had been approved in principle last month by delegates representing consumer-members at Federated's annual meeting, reports Mr. Baergen.

Tofield Centennial project

It is unfortunate, indeed, that ill feeling may develop within the community over a project that should mark a most outstanding celebration — the Canadian Centennial. There seems to be a lot of misunderstanding regarding the proposed Tofield project, a Centennial library. We hope, in this column, to clear up a lot of the misunderstandings by a presentation of the facts as we have been able to uncover them.

First of all, let us point out with haste that the new library will not be a $24,000 project, but rather, one-third of that amount, of which the Town of Tofield will be contributing only $2,686 The insinuation from certain quarters that a local contractor may be promoting the project simply to gain a contract for his firm is sheer nonsense, for an $8,000 project, while it may sound like a lot of money to many of us, is actually peanuts to a contractor of any size. The margin of profit is very small, and even to take time to prepare estimates of the cost of such a project would likely eat up any profit that might be derived. Let's be realistic about this whole thing, and not too quick to condemn those who are showing their community spirit.

Here are some more facts, as we have been able to dig them out.

The Tofield Library Board submitted a proposal to the town council that a Centennial Library be built as a unit of the Municipal Building on Fourth Avenue. The proposal was that the building be an extension east of the present fire hall, using the east wall of the fire hall and completing the other three walls, the roof and floor, resulting in a library building 24 feet by 32 feet in dimension. This was the only proposal received by the town council and was accepted by the council providing it could be built within the amount of money available to the town from Centennial grants.

Council decided the matching grant of $2,686 from the town would be raised by the allotment of $800 in 1965, $943 in 1966, and $943 in 1967. A by-law was passed by the town council to this effect and submitted to the Provincial Centennial Committee for approval, and accepted.

On the basis of the 1966 assessment of $1,401,235, this represents a total of less than $2 per $1,000 assessment to be raised over a period of three years.

At present the council is still awaiting final approval of the proposal from the provincial government, and when this is obtained, will obtain specifications for the building and a firm bid for completion.

As presented to council, the library board considers a new library necessary because: the present library room in the Community Centre is not adequate for the increasing number of volumes and book racks required for display and storage; area is needed for reading tables for children and adults, and for display racks for periodicals and magazines; library patronage is increasing each year and it is planned to open the library more than two afternoons which is now the case; the present volunteer librarian and the staff are handicapped by restricted space and working conditions; the library board plans to apply for a further grant available from the provincial government to assist in the furnishing of the new library building.

We cannot see where the proposed Centennial project will be much of a burden to the Tofield taxpayer, but we can visualize a building, library and Centennial monument, all wrapped up in one, of which local and district residents can be justifiably proud.

By George!

GUEST ITEM FROM DEV TRIBUNE

Little Jack Horner sat in a corner not bothering to see what could be done. What happened to the good Samaritans? How easy it is to sit back and pass judgment. Our government is crooked, our politicians crazy, our . . . Stop!

Who stands by and watches hoodlums beat up a policeman for four of getting involved? Who keeps their noses out of city or public works till all is complete then complains that things are not the way they should be? Who doesn't bother to look into their government till some dirty scandal arises? Who condemns the Americans for their handling of the Negroes, overlooking our own problems of the Metis?

Shall I continue? What a treadmill our society has become as North Americans, watch a human being fall by the wayside, not blinking an eyebrow till they are able to tear apart. Is no one responsible for anyone else? Is it indeed every man for himself?

Frightened of having to appear in court, of answering questions or missing some work and play we have acquired such puny social consciences that we just don't react.

Parental influence

Brian Ferguson

Do parents bestow too much pressure on the adolescents of this modern generation? In my opinion, some tend to hold with pain-gripping fear to the past and the days of their youth.

These days, cars and scooters have come into demand by the average youth, whereas in the days of our parents, youth cars were few, and if you did have one it was no rough-riding that you'd rather walk. For recreation, there was skiing and skating in the winter, and swimming and baseball in summer. Their dances were out of this world, though I'm not saying that the dances of today are particularly good.

The hours were set by their parents and if they weren't home, too bad for them. Here is where I think a slight change could be made. We, the younger generation, should be able to set our own hours for night-owling. I believe that any youth with a sense of reasoning can choose and fix his own hours very sensibly. But, there are always exceptions to the rules, and here lies the reason for the parental arguments. On weekends I feel that if there is a dance, and the dance ends at twelve, you should be allowed to go to a place to eat and then take the girl home without too many questions asked. Is this too unreasonable for parents to allow?

There seems to be a communication barrier between the youth and their parents. This barrier sometimes leads to difficulty and quarrelsome problems. I believe that if the parents would trust their children more the child would then trust their parents. Furthermore, this relationship would draw unity between parents and the youth of today. If this unity was accomplished, the generation of this era and their parents would bring about greater understanding of the delinquency problems of today.

School committee meets March 8th

Minutes of the County of Beaver No. 9 School Committee meeting, Tuesday, March 8th, 1966.

In regards to the teacher recruitment the Committee was advised that all superintendents in Zone 3 had been contacted in this matter and that all School Authorities, except the Killam and Provost School Divisions, were prepared to take part in the teacher recruitment program.

Mr. G. M. Gault, Superintendent of the County of Minburn had indicated that he was prepared to head the recruitment program again but would of course have to have a release from the Dept of Education in order to do this. It had been suggested that two Superintendents should go but Mr Pike felt that he could better serve the purpose by staying at home and dealing with the recruitment program from this end. It would be a matter of direct recruiting with the Superintendent, interviewing the teachers, hiring them on the spot It was also suggested that each School Authority taking part in the recruitment program should put up $100.00 for the incidental expenses

Moved that the report be accepted Cd

Moved that Mr G M Gault, Supt of the County of Minburn be authorized to hire teachers for the County of Beaver No 9 Cd

Moved that we go on record as being in favour of the recruitment program with the cost of the program being shared on a per teacher basis and that a basic fee of $100.00 be paid to Mr T. Pawlichuck, Secretary-Treasurer for the A.S.T.A. Zone 3 Cd

In regards to the building program at Viking the Committee was informed that the block construction was being started today that the County's own maintenance crew had started some of the conversion work last week and that this particular part should be completed sometime next week

In regards to the bus tenders that the basic rate of pay be $0.60 per day

The amendment was carried with 7 members voting for the amendment and 3 against.

The amended motion calling for a basic daily rate of pay of $0.60 per day plus 4 cents per mile in excess of 10 miles per day was then put before the Committee and carried.

Referring to prior correspondence from the Deputy Minister of the Dept. of Education, concerning the County's request that it be given the additional $2.00 per sq. ft. per foot increase in construction cost as effective January 1st, 1966, a letter was now placed before the Committee. The request could not be acceded to as, in the opinion of the Dept., the date of the approval of the Minister was the date on which the Minister had given his approval of the Day Labour Scheme which in this particular case had been prior to January 1st, 1966.

Moved that the letter be received and filed Cd

Letter from United Grain Growers Insurance Agencies Ltd. suggesting that the fire insurance on a buildings should be increased due to the rise in building costs in the past three years on account of the 11 per cent and 9 1/2 on building materials and also annual increases in wages and material. The letter indicated that the replacement costs of a school is $16.12 per square foot, a rise of 12 to 15 percent over the past three years It was recommended that the Council give serious consideration to a reappraisal of the value of the schools and other buildings on a replacement cost basis. The letter further indicated that if the County so wished the Insurance Agency would send coverage for any increases that might be necessary. It was felt that it should not be necessary to have a new appraisal made the last having been made in 1964, but that a blanket percentage increase would be sufficient It was therefore moved that the insurance coverage on

In regards to the increase in bus drivers wages, the secretary-treasurer referred to the Committee a letter signed by the bus drivers at Tofield requesting a basic wage of $0 per day plus additional mileage. The Committee was informed as to the wages earned by the various drivers and it was realized that as from July 1st an hourly rate of $1 per hour would be in effect.

It was also realized that most of the drivers had other employment or were self-employed, such as farmers, etc but that it was felt I at this should not affect the right of the drivers to receive full pay for their services for the County. It was moved that the basic daily wage for the bus rivers in the County be $7.00 per day plus the 4 cents per mile in excess of 10 miles per day.

An amendment was moved by Mr. Gault, seconded by Mr. Mowat and carried that the report be accepted and that the recommendation to purchase the four buses from Blue Bird Bus Sales (1964) Ltd. be concurred in. The Committee was advised that the members of the Court of Revision had dealt with this matter on February 17th, and that they had decided that the tenders, submitted by Pioneer Bus and Body Sales and Blue Bird Bus Sales (1964) Ltd., should be considered, inasmuch as the Pioneer Bus and Bus and Body Sales had only started in business and was not fully established and as the Blue Bird Buses had proved satisfactory during the past three years, it was recommended that the tender submitted by Blue Bird Bus Sales (1964) Ltd. in the amount of $6,497 per bus be accepted and that the following extras be included: storm windows $84, right-hand heater $95, new hooks $35, rear wheel-cover $10—total $6,702 per bus.

Moved and carried that the report be accepted and that the recommendation to purchase the four buses from Blue Bird Bus Sales (1964) Ltd. be concurred in. An amendment was moved by Mr. Mowat, seconded by Mr. Gault and carried that the report be accepted and that the following extras be included: storm windows $84, right-hand heater $95, new hooks $35, rear wheel-cover $10—total $6,702 per bus.

Come spread your wings in a Falcon

(You'll fly first class on Economy fare!)

Right from your first glance you can tell Falcon's styling has taken on a new aloofness. It's low, lean, sporty, with a long-hooded bluestang look.

And right from your first trip, you'll realize that's not the only change! Falcon has a new handling "feel"... thanks to its new wider track. The ride is smoother and quieter as well... the longer wheelbase and new front torque boxes see to that.

When you take over the controls, you'll appreciate Falcon's new driving conveniences. A suspended accelerator pedal, recessible keys, key-hole lighting, an outside rearview mirror and lighted selector quadrant on the optional 3-speed dual-range Cruise-O-Matic are all new on Falcon. And your passengers will find Falcon much more roomy, with more hip room, more shoulder room and more knee room under the "swept away" instrument panel.

But with all this new styling, new handling ease and extra roominess, Falcon is as thrifty as ever. The standard Six is tops in economy. And there's an optional 170-hp Six or 200-hp V-8, if you like even more lively performance

See your Ford Dealer. Ask him about the Falcon luxury at economy fares... you'll be amazed at the savings you'll make!

Moved that a letter from the Secretary of the Annual Meeting of the St. Paul School District No 1238, suggesting that Foundation Program Payments from the Provincial Government be requested to be made on a monthly basis, be received and filed. Cd.

It was felt that this request was not needed as far as the County was concerned.

A letter from Mrs. Martha Lillo, offering to sell approximately five acres of land that she owns and immediately west of the Ryley school was referred to the Committee

Moved that Mrs. Lillo be informed that the School Committee is not interested in the purchase of this land at the present time. Cd.

Moved that the Bus Supervisor's Report for the months of February be accepted and his account in the amount of $83.40 be approved and passed for payment. Cd.

Moved that Graham Allen of Tofield be appointed Spare Bus Driver with retainer. Cd.

The minutes of the Salary Negotiation Committee meeting held on February 24th were now read and it was moved that the minutes be accepted as read Cd

The Salary Grid as presented by the Teacher's Committee represented an average of 10 in 11 per cent increase exclusive of increments. The County's Committee presented a Salary Grid representing an average of 1½ per cent increase exclusive of increments. This had not been formally received by the Teacher's Committee, neither had their proposal been received with favour by the County's Committee The Asst. Secretary-Treasurer had worked out a new grid representing four per cent increase exclusive of increments and this had been placed on the blackboard for the quest had also been for no collective information. The rising on the Principal's allowance.

After some considerable discussion it was moved that:

1. The proposed salary grid, indicating a 4 per cent increase, be offered to the teachers.

2 That no increases in Principals' allowance be considered.

3 That the question of Secretarial help be considered later in the meeting.

4 That seven years training be not considered in the grid.

5. That Sabbatical Leave, as such, be not considered but that Leave of Absence help Mrs Diederman at home to help Mrs Adeline Foss celebrate her 80th birthday Mrs Foss is in real good health and enjoyed the afternoon very much She received many lovely gifts

Mrs. Tiedemann served a delicious lunch including three beautiful birthday cakes. After lunch everyone joined in singing happy birthday and the song "Mother" was very nicely sung by her daughter, Mrs. Albert Bottom. 7 That notice be served that the "pro rata" payment will not apply to teachers taken on staff as of Sept. 1st, 1967 and that all "pro rata" pay be discontinued in 1970. Cd

It was suggested that any apprentice with the County who was being paid a salary while attending the courses at the N. A.I.T., might be requested to sign an agreement to remain with the County for a period of time after having obtained his journeyman's papers and that if he wished to move to another area he would agree to repay a percentage of the salaries received on a pro rata basis.

Moved that the suggestion be approved and that a suitable type of agreement be prepared. Cd.

Mr Lars Olson attended the meeting at this time and stated that he had written to Palm Dairies concerning the shortage of commission which had accured last year and which had been referred to the representative from the Palm Dairies at the December meeting of the School Committee The shortage had been $15.27 at Holden and an unknown amount from Tofield Mr Olson suggested that possibly a letter from the office might have the desired result

Moved that a letter be forwarded from the County office to Palm Dairies requesting payment of these amounts. Cd

Mr Olson stated that the service, otherwise, at the Holden school was very good with the milk being top grade and the supply quite sufficient. In this connection Mr Pike stated that a dealer had requested permission to install a soft drink vending machine at the school in Tofield and he asked what Mr Olson felt about this matter. Mr Olson stated that he did not feel that soft drink vending machines should be installed at any of the schools The soft drinks were not the best for the students and that, if they needed something to drink, they should drink milk. The Committee agreed to this and it was moved that no permission be granted for the installation of soft drink vending machines in the schools in the County Cd

The Superintendent informed

Tofield Curling Club

The Curling Club executive, acting on the advice of many interested curlers, have decided to hand a drive to clean the inside of the curling rink with plywood and install heaters

The accumulation of frost on the walls of the rink and subsequent drip on the two outside sheets of ice has been a source of annoyance and interference with good curling since the rink was opened

Each member of the Tofield Curling Club and farmers' club, and anyone interested is asked to donate two sheets of plywood for the completion of the project during the first two weeks in April. The cost will be $3 each to cover the price of the two sheets of plywood and paint.

A committee has been set up, composed of Conrad Patterson, Jack Whyte, Andy Heiberg, Elmer Gordzin and George McPadzen, to head the project.

Fake $20's

By Roy Sinclair

At R C M P headquarters in Ottawa the counterfeiting squad is worried that the worst is yet to come. A "series" of bad bills that first appeared two years ago and were judged to be the best ever produced in Canada is still flooding the urban areas.

The authorities say the fake $20's have improved with every reprinting. They are afraid that a master issue for these phony bills—perhaps worth more than $1,000,000 — will begin appearing for Expo 67, a counterfeiter's paradise.

The RCMP is busy working on a pamphlet that will help local police forces and the general public detect the fake currency. Meanwhile, they say, the best way to tell a counterfeit from a good bill is to examine the Queen's portrait. A messy hairdo or an unbecoming droop in the head lip always betrays the phony bill.

CD rescue course is successful

Father J. L. Scriven told the February 21st meeting of the County of Beaver Emergency Measures that meeting the rescue course at Tofield was very good. Eight candidates had taken the course. However, he suggested the course should take five or six evenings instead of three as it is almost too condensed.

Father Scriven said that the matron of the Tofield Hospital had taken a nursing course in Edmonton. She said it was a good course and in future a nurses' aide could attend these courses. The hospital plan would be brought up to date when the new administrator was organized.

INTEREST LACKING

David Dorward said there was not much effort being put into organizing anything in Viking having to do with Emergency Measures. He said there did not seem to be any interest among the town officials.

Rex Boyles, who had been to a radiation defence course recently, outlined the plans that EMO headquarters had for this part of Alberta. He said he was prepared to give some courses in radiation monitoring but this would be up to the co-ordinators to organize.

New stamps

The floral emblems and coats of arms of the Yukon and Northwest Territories are featured on two new stamps to be released March 23rd.

These are twelfth and thirteenth in a series initiated in May, 1964, honouring the various geographic regions in Canada as a prelude to Centennial celebrations in 1967. The final stamp in the series will be issued later this year.

Yukon's colourful fireweed emblem adopted in 1958 is pictured in tones of blue, red and green. Its companion issue will use shades of yellow, green and olive to illustrate the mountain avens, chosen as a symbol by the Northwest Territories in 1957.

Release new varieties of seed stock

Seed of the new Harmon oat, Noralta flax and Galt feed barley is being released for sale to selected growers for multiplication this spring.

Seed will be made available to foundation seed growers selected and approved by the Provincial Seed Stock Committees. The move will provide maximum production of seed for further distribution in 1967.

Harmon, a high-yielding oat variety, and Noralta, an early flax variety with high yields, have been recommended for release in all western provinces. Galt barley, however, has proven superior only in some areas of Saskatchewan and Alberta and its release will be restricted to an area west of the third meridian.

The Swingin' set

By FRANCES REDINGER

What is school spirit? Is it a few hard-working people who plan and take part in each and every school activity while a large majority sit back doing nothing? Students probably have many different ideas on this subject, but basically it is the working together of an entire student body to achieve a high standing for their school. It involves pride in one's school, and a willingness to work to show this pride.

How is school spirit shown? It can be shown in many different ways. Sports activities usually show us if a school has or has not got the "spirit". All students who take part in sports activities, either as a player or spectator, must remember that you are representing your school and everything you do reflects back on your school. All other extra-curricular activities also show the "spirit" by how successful they are. All that can be said here is that each student has certain talents and these talents should be used to show their pride in their school.

Modern etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Please comment on a girl's acceptance of gifts from a man.

A. Do not accept expensive or personal gifts — never any wearing apparel more intimate than gloves, scarves or handkerchiefs —never such things as dresses, nightgowns, slips or furs. Flowers, of course, are always acceptable. Gifts that are too expensive or too personal are compromising, and a man with good taste will not embarrass a girl by offering them.

Q. When eating prunes at the table, should the fruit be cut from the pit in the dish, or may the whole prune be taken into the mouth, and then the pit removed to the saucer with the spoon?

A. It is better to cut the prune in half, leaving the pit on the plate.

Library Week opens Saturday

By Paulette Tomaszewski

"Reading—Key to a Changing World" is the theme of Canadian Library Week, March 26 - April 2, stressing the importance of libraries in Canadian life. Because this age demands so much knowledge and so many skills, Canada's future and indeed the very existence of the world depends on the degree to which its people form the habit of reading and learning new knowledge and skill. Being able to intelligently interpret and weigh ideas and reflect on the history and literature of past ages allows each individual to confidently face tomorrow with high and and active ambitions.

Because of its combination of national and local activities libraries of all kinds whether public, university, or school are promoted through Library Week.

Reading is the key and always will be for all time and all persons opening the door to continuing education, to inspiration, wisdom and enduring pleasure.

IN MEMORIAM

BJELTER.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Harold Bjelter, who passed away March 22, 1962

The Golden Gates stood open
Four years ago today,
With farewells left unspoken
You gently slipped away;
You suffered much in silence,
Your spirit did not bend,
You faced your pain with courage
Until the very end.
You tried so hard to stay with us,
Your fight was all in vain,
God took you to his home above
And freed you from all pain.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by Dad, Mother, Sisters and Brothers

What's New

The Mod look is the "innest" look. Paisley prints, crazy colors—just about anything goes. The wilder the better! To-days teens have a new look—the "total look". Mini-skirts, the above the knee fashion look best when worn with white lace stockings and a shell or a pour-boy sweater.

The shell, a sleeveless topper, designed as an all-round accessory, is typified by its versatility. Worn with anything from sports clothes to evening wear, it comes in a variety of color patterns, and materials.

A new material you'll be glad to hear about is "Koratron" which does not wrinkle and requires no ironing.

The most popular color this year, especially in dresses, is navy with pastel colors running a close second. Lace, which used to be worn only by grandmother-type is now the smartest thing in the "young look".

Sleeves aren't just plain sleeves anymore—they're fancy: belled, pouffed, flared, or cuffed. As far as waistlines go, they're either empire or hip sling, never at the waist. The three-piece granny co-ordinates, skirts, slacks and jackets in a flower print are the wackiest things to hit the fashion scene yet.

The London Look has even hit shoes. Ghillie ties, block or spanish heels and colors are "real boss" . . .Pigskin is the new material. Toes are rounder and less pointed. But don't call it a "round toe", girls; it's called "the new toe".

As just about everyone has noticed by now, bell-bottoms and bell-bottom surfers are "the thing" in sportswear. Denim, cords, suede and stretch fabrics seem to be the favorite materials as yet, but who knows what they'll think of next!

So you see, . . . fashions are getting wilder and kookier every year. Where will it all end?

Survey shows public

Would drop voting age for minors, retain liquor age

By Paulette Tomaszewski

Much controversy has recently arisen pertaining to the present age limits on the federal voting and obtaining of alcoholic beverages in Canada. The government is serious considering lowering the age from 21 to 18 years.

A recent man-on-the-street survey taken in Camrose produced the following results when asked the following questions.

1. In your opinion, should the age for obtaining liquor be lowered from 21 to 18 years?
No—20.4% Yes—20.8%.

2. In your opinion, should the Federal voting age be lowered from 21 to 18 years?
No—40.1% Yes—42.9%.

A frequent statement voiced was that, if a boy can fight for his country when he is 18 years old, he should be allowed to vote. Then again, many considered this age too young and felt that the majority of would-be-voters are not mature enough to adequately handle this responsibility.

Concerning the purchasing of alcoholic beverages, the pros and cons were strongly argued. It was viewed that a great number of young adults were not yet ready to satisfactorily accept this proposed change On the other hand, others commented that because teen - agers drink regardless of the laws, lowering the age would curb the novelty and eliminate much illegal accessability of liquor.

Beaver ag. committee holds its first meet

The first meeting of the newly-formed agricultural committee of the County of Beaver was called to order by Secretary Olaf Monsen, March 3rd, with the following members present: Councillors Weatherill, Gibson, Raddick, Knudsiien and Krupicinski. Also present were Frank Rose, D.A., and Bert Boyles, Fieldman

The secretary called for nominations for chairman for this committee Cr Krupicinski was nominated by Cr Raddick, and with the motion that nominations cease, Cr Krupicinski took the chair.

There was some discussion on a gully-filling demonstration on the S. 1/2 29-50-18-W4th.

It was the opinion of the committee that, as this gully was made by draining a large slough, it should not get involved until after it is certain there will be no legal consequences.

Mr. Boyles outlined the department of agriculture's thinking regarding the organization of the advisory committee They said this committee should cover all elements of agriculture and should include some women, he said

Mr Boyles said he would like to have two weed inspectors this year so that weed inspection could be done earlier.

In addition to Charles Senyk, he suggested Reginald Meeks of Bruce who had done work for PFA and was interested in this type of work. Committee members accepted the recommendation.

Mr Boyles said there are several places where gully-filling should be done. He suggested a

ORIGIN OF EASTER BUNNY UNCERTAIN

The Easter bunny may originally have been an Egyptian rabbit. In ancient Egypt the rabbit symbolized birth and new life, and some ancient peoples considered it a symbol of the moon. One encyclopedia says the rabbit may have become an Easter symbol because the moon determines the date of Easter.

Camrose Barbershoppers at Tofield Saturday

Tofielders will again have the privilege of enjoying a program of Barbershop singing featuring the Camrose Chorus and the Northernaires Quartet. This is one of the events sponsored by the Canadian Legion in aid of the Tofield Community League and one which by popular choice has been brought back to Tofield

Many will remember the hit this group made in Tofield a few years ago and will be anxious to hear them again; and those not lucky enough to hear them then will have an opportunity to do so this Saturday evening in the Tofield Community Centre at 8:30 This will be one of their last engagements this season so don't miss it!

District pioneer passes March 24th

(L. Van Beukhi)

Word has been received of the passing of another of that rapidly diminishing group of people who pioneered this area John Sbertel passed away on March 24, at the age of 83 years. He settled in this area early in the 1900's and farmed here until he retired to Edmonton in 1956. He had been in ill health for a number of years, but he still enjoyed his yearly winter trip to Arizona.

Farmers' curling to wind-up Friday

The Tofield area farmers who began their curling activities last November will conclude their curling on Friday evening starting at 7:15 with the finals in all events of the closed bonspiel. Immediately after the curling all members and friends will retire to the Legion Hall for a banquet and presentations of the prizes.

The finalists in the first two events have already been decided, with Ingram playing Goubault in the first event and Wyllie and Walker tangling in the second event The finalists in the other two events will be decided during the week.

Members of the Afternoon Curling Club are also reminded of the plans for improving the rink for next year; this will include the sheeting of the inside of the rink and installing of heaters. It is hoped that all members will contribute money and some volunteer help towards this project. Donations may be left with A. Heiberg, treasurer.

New books here mark annual Library Week

Arriving in time for the annual Library Week, many new books are available at the Tofield Municipal Library for readers of all ages

In the latest additions there is a great variety of subject material, ranging from children's stories to fantasies, to educational subjects, and for adults such fiction books as "The Big Sky", "Double Image", "Strictly a Loser", and non-fiction such as "Faces of India". For Canadians of any age there is a very complete history of Canada in three volumes, that is a "must" for getting a clear picture of early Canada, as our Centennial year approaches. In order to know more about our "first beginnings".

Prepare for many hours of delightful reading as you browse through these and other books at the library. The library will be closed April 8th. Good Friday, but will open to the public on Thursday, the 7th.

White spruce available at Oliver nursery

"We have received word that the Department of Agriculture Nursery at Oliver has a surplus of white spruce These trees vary in size, but would average about three feet in height," Rex Boyles, Field Man for the County of Beaver, informed the Mercury early this week.

Ratepayers who wish to get these trees may pick them up direct from the Nursery after May 10th. An approved application must be obtained from the district agriculturist or county fieldman.

"I expect to pick up a supply of surplus trees and ornamentals after May 10th and will include white spruce for ratepayers who are unable to pick them up themselves", said Mr Boyles. "Ratepayers are asked to let us know as soon as possible if they are interested in getting three four-to-six-year-old white spruce".

Parents and teachers to have conferences

On Tuesday, April 5th, the second parent-teacher conference of 1965-66 will be held in the school. The schedule is now complete and it is hoped that all parents will take advantage of this opportunity to confer with the teachers of their children regarding the progress of these

Paying can be fun

Organizations in Tofield this winter have proven beyond the shadow of a doubt that paying off an old debt can be fun if it is properly handled.

This may sound like a bold statement, but the fact of the matter is that some very entertaining concerts or programs have been staged in the Tofield Community Centre by various Tofield organizations for the sole purpose of lowering and eventually eliminating debt against the community centre building. Reports are the programs have been most enjoyable to date, and more are anxiously awaited.

This Saturday night another in the series will be a program presented by the Camrose Barbershoppers and the Northernaires Quartet — by no means strangers to the community since this will be the Barbershoppers' third show here in as many years. They are being sponsored locally by the Tofield Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Legion members are hoping these shows will continue to get the fine support they have received to date. It offers Tofield residents not only an evening's entertainment at a reasonable price, but also an opportunity to help defray the expenses of the Community League which has provided this town with a lovely and most practical community hall.

Vitamins for the mind

"The mind needs vitamins, too," we were told recently by a friend in the city who reads a great deal, and easily accepted the interesting statement. But the next comment brought us up short: "... and books are the vitamins for the mind."

Book readers can well understand the depth of meaning contained in this keenly perceptive statement. They will agree with us that newspapers are necessary to keep us up-to-date on what's going on in the world, that magazines provide a great deal more information in depth from time to time on a wide range of subjects, but most of the time neither cause any thought on the part of the reader.

Books, however, open the mind to entirely new horizons; bring us into touch with the minds of fascinating people, open the pages of history, and explore concepts totally new and unrelated to anything we have known before. Books can amuse, annoy, uplift and destroy. Books can set whole new trains of action into motion, damn the wrong, and point the way. Books may console the lonely, comfort the dispirited, inflame the excitable, incense the agitated, or kindle the passionate.

Emphasis this week on National Library Week focusses attention on the place of books in our world, and stresses their importance in the life of hundreds of our citizens right here in Tofield and district. But it's not just something for this week alone; it's for all year round.

Remember, "Books are the vitamins for the mind."

Dancing, drinking, driving

It seems curious that a number of complaints of drinking and brawling at dances in certain district points should have come in all at one time this week, and the complaints are so widely scattered they couldn't all be referring to the same area.

It's too bad when adults have to upset such dances for their own flings, but it's a downright shame when school dances become problems for the staff putting them on; the result can easily be that it's such a problem and such a nuisance the teachers will just not have any programs in the school.

Undoubtedly stepped up activity of enforcement patrols is called for, and no doubt the police teams have their hands more than full in trying to cope with the problem, often in the face of hostile crowds. Those who approve and applaud their actions usually stay discreetly and quietly in the background, which may help maintain the peace, but doesn't do much for morale.

Naturally, one of the big questions readers should ask themselves is: "If your son (or daughter) is at the dance, or out in the car, how is he spending his time?"

It's been pointed out innumerable times that driving and drinking don't mix; has it reached the point that dancing and drinking won't mix, either?

Production budget?

This is being run up too soon after news of the budget to be sure, but it seems Finance Minister Sharp is aiming to encourage greater production here, by eliminating the sales tax on production machinery. This, too, should help keep Canadian production competitive. That sales tax wasn't eliminated in the field of building materials seems sensible in light of the already incredible pressures on building forces within the country.

Income taxes have been dropped slightly on lower incomes, but statistics say this will not affect very many Canadians. On the other hand, incomes that are only modest will face sharply increased levies. Affecting thousands, this decidedly unpopular move seems designed to chop spending power and help curb inflation

Tofield Mercury.
Dear Editor

I have an voice in the spending of the suggested $40,000 to Centennial Funds, but suggest that the best use would be into a covered skating rink or swimming pool for the youth of the town.

—Geo. G Abernethy

Editor, The Mercury

It was with great interest I read in The Mercury of the meeting of the Tofield ratepayers— and the present financial report. It seems much better than in the Old Days, when I was on the council and mayor of Tofield But I was pleased to hear that some of the old names are still interested in the affairs of the town— Dr Freeburg Edwin Ritson, Geo McFadzean Arnold Swift, Graham Allan and Mrs Rita Halverson

As to the item under The Mail Bag by "Concerned" re. the suggested centennial project, a new public library, this in my opinion could be quite feasible in say some 25 years from now, but at the present time, with the Community and Legion Halls, the town needs this about as much as I need a hole in my head.

Got a kick about the native son, my nephew, Dr. Max Rogers We did have a few other Tofield boys who made good in the big town— Bill Swift, A. B. Everson, "Bill" Bellamy, and my old friend and protege, Horace McBelley.

As a social item, Bert and Mrs. Calvert and myself spent out to Whiterock, B.C., and had a lovely visit with old time friends. Burt and Louise Lovell.

See you all at Sports Day, July 1st, 1966

MacDuff Ottawa report

FRENCH WITHOUT TEARS

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson wants to make the civil service bilingual But he wants to do it without hurting anyone This is a typically paternalistic position, not only for the Prime Minister, but for Canada itself Mr Pearson's policy on bilingualism makes sense only in the way that Canada makes sense In other words, given a country that is part American part English, part French, part federal and part provincial, and government itself becomes a many-textured thing

In the area of bilingualism for example, one side of Canadian life says that it's more efficient to carry on government in one language rather than two But another side of logic says that all citizens should have the right to speak in their government and to be answered in either one of the two official languages The logic of efficiency doesn't work because it doesn't meet the Canadian situation

100 YEAR SITUATION

Being basically unilingual in English, the government can't effectively serve the 30 per cent of Canadians whose mother tongue is French That's a situation that has prevailed since Confederation The only wonder is that French Canadians in great numbers have continued to consider that the federal government is their government as well as the government of English-Canadians

Now however, French-Canadians want a change They want the public service to be bilingual where it counts They want to be able to serve Canada even though their first language is French Like all French-English questions, this one of bilingualism in the public service is explosive

That explains why Mr. Pearson is feeling his way cautiously, one might say timidly It's more than a year now since he outlined the government's concern relating to bilingualism in the public service, and he still hasn't got very far Nothing has been done at least nothing that suits Mr Pearson's concept of bilingualism in the public service as his Government sees it But he remains hopeful He says "an opposite picture only" He does not see needs from a practical standpoint that other versions of government in both languages Nor does he see any problem in "speaking employees" he must guard against the position of people in the public service

HAS TO HURT SOME

That, of course, is the most tricky It he can do it A degree of bilingualism can hardly be effective if it doesn't put a premium on bilingualism and if it doesn't downgrade the unilingual

Bilingualism has to hit some.

or the strains on Confederation will become intolerable. The main job will be to minimize, as much as possible, the effects of this an unlikepath.

While it may be too gradual for some French-Canadians, the moderate approach seems the only one possible An interdepartmental committee has been at work on the question for a year and has prepared an exhaustive report.

There are indications of what the report contains. The limited objective will be to make the civil service bilingual, over a period of years, in Ottawa and in areas where a large number of people speak the two official languages.

JUST RIGHT SIZE BONUS

There will also be an effort to find qualified bilingual persons to fill posts in the higher levels of departments, and government agencies. A "bonus", of perhaps $1000 a year will be paid to civil servants with demonstrated proficiency in both languages. On civil service examinations for recruitment or promotion, a bonus of ten percentage points will be given to those contestants who are bilingual. At the same time the bonus factor is rather small, not so large that bilingualism in itself would over-ride the merit system.

Even these small steps, however, have brought violent response Some warn that it is not enough. Others that it is far too much How the familiar, blind reactions are being heard—French-Canadian persecution by the English on the one side, concessions to Quebec on the other

BALANCING ACT

Mr Pearson will move far enough to satisfy his Quebec supporters But not too far to inspire the wrath of his English-speaking supporters It's the same old Canadian dilemma

The danger here is that these small and useful steps may prompt an exaggerated response which could do more damage to French-English relations As the argument develops, Canadians would do well to remember what is being proposed, and to keep it in perspective No one is trying to force French down anyone's throat No one is saying that the army should be completely bilingual No one is suggesting that the clerks in the Vancouver Post Office need to be bilingual. It will probably not even be possible for many years, at least, to make bilingualism a condition of employment in areas where both languages are spoken, or even to ensure that top-ranking officials are bilingual. There are simply not enough bilingual persons of quality available

Al that is asked at the moment is that when a French-speaking person wants to address his federal government, there will be someone there to understand him, and to answer him in words he will understand

If English - speaking Canada can't accept that simple and human condition, then French Canada would have every right to pronounce Canada a failed union

Small turnout at ham 'shoot'

A rather disappointing turnout of shooters competed for their Easter Hams at the shoot held by the Tofield Gun Club on Saturday, March 26th.

Two competitors from out of town, Arnold Bugge of Ryley and Paul Pang of Edmonton, each picked up the limit of two hams while two local men, Bill Friesen and Larry Willson, each won a single

A father and son team of George and Dale Thiessen each won a ham on the "luck" targets, to ensure a bountiful Easter dinner at the Thiessen household

The next public function of the Gun Club will be their third annual Black Powder Shoot to be held on June 26th this year. This shoot is becoming quite well known throughout Alberta, and this year promises to be bigger and better than ever.

Father and son bonspiel sparks keen interest

No small amount of interest is being created as the Ryley Father and Son Bonspiel progresses this week. The 30 rinks entered in the spiel attended a banquet on Wednesday evening, when over 80 pounds of meat were made into gallons of stew by chef Ernie Brown.

Proud and often amused parents and friends watch as fathers and sons, ranging in age from 7 to 77, take part. The rules are simple: two sons per rink, one of whom must play third; all sons must be under 14 (sons can be "borrowed" if fathers happen to be blessed with a family of daughters only), and rules for delivery are forgotten for any son under 10.

In regards to the Municipal Development and Loan Act and the proposed sewage system for the Hamlet of Kinsella the Secretary-Treasurer informed the Council that the 25 per cent forgiveness on loans approved by the Board would be extended by six months to September 30th, 1966 on project costs incurred up to and including that day. The extension would only apply to loans which were approved by the Municipal Development and Loan Act Board up to and including March 31st, 1966. This information had been received from the Deputy Provincial Treasurer who had also suggested that any applications should be in his office no later than March 15th in order to obtain approval by March 31st In view of this the Secretary-Treasurer had contacted the Associated Engineering Services Ltd and they were going ahead with the preparation of the necessary plans and the Secretary-Treasurer would, upon the same being approved by the Council, forward the documents required from the County office to the Engineering Firm who would then present it to the proper authorities

One prerequisite was a motion from the Council to authorize the submission of the application for the loan The report was accepted and it was moved that the Secretary-Treasurer be and hereby is authorized to submit on behalf of the County of Beaver No. 9 the application for loan in connection with the proposed sewerage system in the Hamlet of Kinsella Cd

This represents 57 per cent of the arrears outstanding as at December 31st, 1965, leaving arrears outstanding as of March 4th at $216,245.61 This, in the opinion of the Secretary-Treasurer was a very good record

Moved that the report be accepted Cd

Thoughtfulness in visitors speeds recovery in hospital

Interview with Mother Superior by Gordon Poolok

When a patient is admitted to a hospital, he is there for one purpose, to receive medical treatment. Because he is ill, he requires much more rest than usual and is easily fatigued. When visiting, there are many courtesies which make the visit more pleasant for the patient and visitor.

Firstly, the relatives and friends should plan their visits and come in groups of two or three, as an excessive number of people in the room will tire the patient. They should only stay for 15 minutes to half an hour at a time. Consideration can be shown by not smoking or causing undue noise, because the hospital is a place of rest, not a recreation hall.

The hospital staff keep their uniforms immaculately clean to protect the patient from germs. Visitors should not put coats on patient's diet will permit this this puts him in contact with germs. Also, any person with a cold or cough should not come to visit, as this is detrimental to their friend's or relative's health.

Gifts should be chosen with care for the patients. Before buying a gift of food, an inquiry should be made as to whether the

This is the Centennial Symbol.

What does it mean? What does it mean to you?

We hope it means more than any other symbol you have ever been exposed to. Because this symbol is Canada. And Canada is you.

It is composed of eleven triangles. Ten representing the Provinces and the other, our northern territory. The triangles are arranged in a stylized Maple Leaf, the identifying symbol for Canada and Canadians.

It is your symbol and it can help stand for your involvement in Canada. It can show your pride. It can interpret your enthusiasm for a greater Canada. From this point on, all Canadians will be caught up in the growing excitement of honouring 100 years of Confederation. Individuals will soon be involved with their own Centennial projects. Many communities have already begun to embark on large scale Centennial endeavours. Industries have initiated widespread Centennial efforts of varying degrees. All Canadians working to say "Canada" to the world.

You will be seeing this symbol everywhere. Like to be one of those behind it? We'd like you to use the symbol in your home; your office; at school; in your plans; wherever you can. The unusual mail-in below may help to explain how you can use it.

Remember, this is an opportunity for all of us to understand Canada, its history, its process and its future. Let's explore what can now be called a great country. Let's all be a symbol for Canada, the same way this is a symbol for Centennial.

demonstration to show the proper way to fill these pulleys, and it was moved and carried that two gully - filling demonstrations be carried out, one at each end of the County.

Mr Boyles noted the pocket gopher was getting to be a bad pest in some areas. He suggested a demonstration using a machine which makes artificial burrows and deposits poison in them. This machine apparently works quite well Mr Kehoe said it is used quite extensively in the Lacombe area. The committee agreed to investigate the price of this machine and that this matter be tabled to the next meeting.

The sum of $30 was budgeted for 1000 coyote bait for this year.

The brucellosis program was discussed and the committee was pleased with the results of the voluntary vaccination Mr Boyles said the captains had spent a lot of time talking to farmers and explaining the scheme However, he said, they felt they were not being paid enough for this work, and it was agreed $1.50 per hour and 12 cents per mile be paid for organizing the brucellosis campaign

Because of difficulty in seeding some backslopes, particularly on the 100 foot road allowance, it was moved and carried that Rex Boyles be authorized to equip the sprayer unit for hydro seeding.

The committee of selling wood chemicals was brought up. It was noted that some of the agents were giving chemicals out on time and were very late in turning in their accounts, so it was moved and carried the committee continue to sell wood chemicals and the agents be notified it is on a cash basis.

It was agreed the tree planter will only be available to those persons who intend to plant trees 50 feet or more inside the property line.

Modern etiquette

Q Is it permissible at the table to cut a croquette with the knife?

A. No. The fork should be used to break it up and then, with the tines up, use the fork to convey the food to the mouth.

Q Isn't a guest at a cocktail party privileged to arrive and depart at whatever time he wishes?

A Yes—within the prescribed time limits of the party.

Q. Is the bride really obligated to give gifts to each of her attendants?

A. This is not so much a matter of "obligation". It is a long-standing custom, and therefore accepted as good form.

Q. When attending a very large dinner, should a guest wait until all the other guests have been served before he begins to eat?

A. No.

Q. Isn't it all right, when introducing a man to a woman, merely to say the names, as, "Miss Forbes. Mr. Keston"?

A. Yes—with a slight pause between the names

Q. Don't you think it's rude and ill-bred of a bride who waits until she has returned from her month's honeymoon before acknowledging her wedding gifts?

A. Indeed I do. These gifts are best acknowledged as they are received, while those received at the last moment can be acknowledged while the bride is away.

Provincial Scene

By JOHN WARREN

Legislation making major changes in hospital and medical care in Alberta was introduced on the final day of a busy week of budget debate.

Among other things, the legislation will make it more expensive to get hospital care after July 1 and will extend the range of services covered by the province's health insurance plan.

On that day Alberta residents will begin paying a deterrent fee of $1.00 a day in all active treatment hospitals. They will also have to pay a charge of $3.50 on entering hospital. Health Minister Hinman said the fee was being imposed to bring the patients' portion of hospital expenses more into line with spiralling costs. Present fees range from $6.00 to $7.00 daily.

The revised insurance plan will make prescription drugs, artificial limbs, rental of hospital appliances and the services of optometrists, physiotherapists and psychologists insurable. These would be separate from the comprehensive physicians' services now covered by the plan and might involve a small deductable charge for benefits.

Dr. Ross also outlined a change in government subsidies for people with low incomes. And he said he thinks the proposed new plan will result in medical insurance for about 98 per cent of Alberta's population within a year.

gifts are always appreciated, type of food. Useful and practical such as a radio or reading material. Other useful items are thank-you cards and stamps. Of course, flowers are always welcome.

If children are brought along, they should be under supervision so they will not create any disturbance. The hospital rules stipulate that the minimum age for visitor admittance is 16 years.

If out of town people are unable to make the specified time for visiting, they will not be denied the visit, providing the patient is free. Co - operation, courtesy and a pleasant attitude are appreciated by both the hospital staff and the patients.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

Every day the newspapers are full of incidents of drama, tragedy and suspense. Many of these dramas revolve around the theme of saving human life. Many times these stories have happy endings. They often happen because of the Red Cross Blood Transfusion service.

This service is just one of the many offered by this enterprising society. There's the Junior Red Cross . . . a vital force for healthy living and good citizenship that reaches school children. The Canadian Red Cross Society in Alberta operates a disaster service, a water safety service and a reunion and enquiry service. Members of this society lead the way in providing surgical dressings, layettes, clothing and bedding to those in need.

We're proud to salute the Canadian Red Cross Society and give grateful thanks for this organization that contributes so much to OUR ALBERTA

Modern Etiquette

Q. I have just received an invitation to a shower on a girl whom I scarcely know. Am I really obligated to attend or to send a gift?

A. You are obligated neither to attend nor to respond with a gift. The person who issued your invitation failed to remember that showers are only for CLOSE and GOOD friends of the bride.

Q. Is it proper to say "thank you" to a waiter and, if so, when?

A. Certainly—for any courtesies you may think "above and beyond the call of duty" It is not necessary to thank him simply for the performing of any duties, however.

A general strike is a strike against the public, not a strike against an employer

Hgwy. 13-14 group meets next week

The question of whether the Highway 13-14 Association has justification for further existence will be decided a week from tomorrow at a general meeting of the association to be held in the Rose Grill Banquet Room.

The Highway 13-14 Association was organized about five years ago when residents of Camrose, Viking and Wainwright, and their districts, decided some action should be taken to urge the provincial government to consider making the correction line road between Camrose and Kinsella a provincial highway linking Highways 13 and 14. C. W. "Rusty" Campbell of Camrose was the association's first president, and the reins were later handed over to Ormond Koehli of Daysland. At most year's annual association meeting, Bill Ritson of Camrose was elected president.

HIGHWAY HISTORIES

Reason for some members to question the justification for the association continuing is the proposed secondary paved highways network for Alberta, as outlined some months ago by Highways Minister Gordon E. Taylor. Groups of counties and municipalities throughout the province are currently meeting to draft plans for the proposed secondary highways

According to a map published in The Canadian earlier this year, the counties involved have suggested the correction line road east of Camrose to Kinsella as part of the network. If this is found acceptable to the counties or municipalities involved, as well as to the provincial highways department, the correction line road will be improved and paved according to highways department standards, to become part of the secondary highways program. Rumors are that the program will be well under way inside of five years, and that the correction line road will be one of the first to be considered It has also been assumed in some quarters that the provincial government will be picking up the tab for the construction, or at least the major part of it.

Tofield Town Council reviews insurance rate

The meeting of Council of the Town of Tofield was held Monday, April 4th, with Mayor Dr. W. H. Freebury and Councillors Allan, Bosse, Everitt, Herndon, Patterson and Swift present

D. Zaralk was present and complained about a balance of taxes owing on the property he had purchased in August 1965 Mr. Zaralk was informed that the Council could do nothing for him, that this was a matter to be settled between the previous owner and himself

INSURANCE

C. T. Squire and E. Regehr, representing Royal Globe Insurance Company, explained the insurance policies presently carried by the Town, and proposed a package deal insurance plan Mr Squire recommended that a "Replacement Cost Value" be carried instead of the "Actual Cash Value" policy now carried. Also, the proposed deal would permit an annual payment in place of a number of due dates and amounts.

The secretary-treasurer was instructed to notify Royal Globe Insurance to reduce the grader value from $8,000 to $4,000 and to include the Library Books for the estimated value of $3,000

Correspondence was read from the UGG Insurance Co., stating that a survey would be completed soon and forwarded to the Town

A Bulletin from the Union of Alberta Municipalities was read, stating that information regarding a Group Municipal Insurance Plan would soon be distributed It was moved and carried that a decision on the renewal of Royal Globe Insurance be tabled until information from UGG Insurance and from the Union of Alberta Municipalities is received

CLEAN-UP WEEK

Date for a Clean-Up Week is to be decided on by the Fire Department and then advertised by the Town. The Council requested the Public Works Department to clean up and burn all weeds and grass on Town-owned lots as soon as possible. # Money-Back Guarantee

He received the reply, "Sorry no refund, we find your money quite satisfactory".

Barbershoppers planning 'all Alberta' program

The Camrose Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America is planning an "All-Alberta" show for their annual Harmony Night to be held April 30th.

The only choruses on the program will be the Camrose and Wetaskiwin groups.

Those who attended the show last year will be pleased to know the Calgary quartet which proved so popular last year, the Rolling Tones, will be on stage again. Two others returning will be the ever popular Northernaires of Camrose and the Unbalanced Four of Edmonton

Newcomers on the scene this year will be two more quartets from Edmonton, the Solfamors and the Naggafons. A member of the latter quartet is John Markan of Camrose, a well-known member of a Camrose singing group of a couple of years ago known as the Tri-Kan

Harmony Night chairman is Bob Reid

Gas rates reduced for some points in area

Natural gas rates will be reduced May 1 for residents of Chipman and Hilliard. Northwestern Utilities, Limited, has announced

In making the announcement, Murray E. Stewart, president of Northwestern Utilities, said the communities were two of 21 served by the company in which rate reductions will apply.

Cost of the first 20 therms, or less, per month will remain at 83 but the rate for all additional therms in these two communities will be reduced from eight cents per therm to 7.5 cents

A customer who uses 2,000 therms a year—like residents of a modern five-room bungalow—may expect annual savings of approximately $9 a year in these two communities

The rate reduction results from a company study of all communities it serves Rates for natural gas service, which are regulated by the Public Utilities Board, are based upon the cost of providing service in the various parts of the company's system

The study involved an analysis of the company's investment in transmission lines, distribution mains, equipment and facilities to serve customers in each area, and the level of sales in these areas

Other communities in which rate reductions will apply are: Bentley, Breton, Bruderheim, Buck Creek, Caroline, Innisfree, Islay, Josephburg, Lamont, Lavoy, Minburn Mundare Peers, Rimbey, Rimbey Rocky Mountain House, Sunnybrook, Thorsby and Warburg

Rate reductions will also apply to large volume users in the four areas affected

These reductions are in no way related to income tax refunds which have been the subject of discussions in the Alberta legislature recently. Such refunds are still awaiting further action from Ottawa.

Real Albertan

Speaking of museums reminds us we ran short of space recently without commenting on the extremely generous gift of Eric Harvie of Calgary, who has given the province his exceptional collection of early Albertianna, valued at well over a million dollars, coupled with a cash grant of five million more to help establish and maintain as complete as possible a provincial museum.

Well known lawyer and philanthropist, Mr. Harvie's gift betokens his appreciation for this province which made him so wealthy, through its oil resources, but also betokens a generous and far-sighted type of citizen. There is no compulsion forcing this kind of donation, and indeed, many of us would want to collect and maintain this sort of material as our own personal . . . strictly private . . . collection.

That Mr. Harvie is willing to share with his fellow citizens makes him that much more of a MAN.

Hard selling job

Premier Manning may have a hard selling job ahead in his suggestion to eliminate succession duties in the province, but we think he's on the right track. And he'll have support from thousands of citizens very quickly as the discussion moves ahead.

In the first place, we thoroughly agree with his premise that Alberta could become a haven for wealthy Canadians. And the importing of their money here could probably do far more for the development of the province than the four or five million dollars presently collected through this medium does. Right now these people move to places like Bermuda, with tremendous effects on their economy, while Canada lags behind for want of development capital. (Alberta's wealthier these days might convince anyone they still should move to Bermuda, but that's another question!)

Of course, it may be said that if Alberta started this, other provinces would follow, and then we'd be no better off. This is not true, if only because all of Canada would prosper with more development capital available. After all, one of the big reasons we have to import capital from the States is that Canadians are moving their money out of their own country to avoid taxation. It may not be patriotic, but money never was known for its attachment to any country.

Two factors we suspect may influence the decision are pensions and inflation. The impression is pretty general that only the "rich" pay estate tax, and a few years ago $50,000 or $60,000 was pretty big money. But inflation has moved this down within the range of a pretty broad cross-section of citizens: inflation, insurance and pensions.

Today, it's not uncommon for insurance agents to write policies with family benefits which in the early years are worth considerably more than the exemptions if the breadwinner suddenly dies. Today, it's not at all uncommon for the man building up a pension which transfers in whole or in part to his wife, plus a bit of life insurance, a home, and other savings for old age, to leave an estate that falls well into the tax bracket . . . and if she's a bit younger than he, the widow will need it all.

Today, it doesn't take a farmer on a very big scale to build up an estate of $50,000.

Often, though not by any means always, these estates are built up of savings from earnings on which taxes have already been paid. Surely it's not fair to tax them twice. If the earnings had been spent as earned, there'd be no estate to tax, nor would they have helped provide the capital to develop our provinces and provide jobs.

We like Mr. Manning's idea best, but if we can't eliminate the tax completely let's adjust our thinking in line with what inflation has done, and get back to the "rank the rich" principle. It's the small businesses which are being so seriously crippled, and which we so badly need to be sustained

Light from New York

Well known for its staid and starched approach to divorce for many years, New York State has passed many eyebrows with its recent move to adopt a far more liberal attitude in this controversial field.

Far from letting down the barriers completely, New York is saying in effect, there may be far worse sins and far more serious strains against a marriage than isolated or infrequent instances of infidelity. New York is also saying it's time to recognize that their failure to acknowledge this earlier has led to a situation which may be worse than relaxing divorce laws will bring. They are recognizing that quickie divorces from the divorce mills -even though not legal in New York- are so far pervading the population as to breed complete disrespect for law and morality and public mores.

Proposed regulations are still pretty stringent, but far more realistic. Let's hope that staid old Canada may yet have a chance to imitate staid old New York, and not hide behind legislation which has been outdated for decades

MR. GORDON RETURNS

OTTAWA.—Walter Gordon, the former Minister of Finance, who resigned from the Cabinet after the last general election, remains politically amotuous. There are persistent reports that he is planning to make a run for the national leadership of the Liberal party

If he does, and there is reason to believe he will, he will give a good account of himself because there is still a segment of the Party that leans towards Mr Gordon and the policies he espouses

Meantime there is no vacancy Prime Minister L. B. Pearson made it clear recently at the Quebec City founding convention of the Federal Quebec Liberal Federation, that he is prepared to carry on as leader of the party. He said he was resolved to continue his work in carry on for as long as he has strength and vigor and the Party wants him

That seemed to pretty effectively rule out any early leadership convention. There is a minority group within the Party that would like to see Mr Pearson step down this summer turning the October conference of the Party into a leadership convention But it is a small minority By far the great majority wants him to continue at the helm throughout the centennial year

There is a possibility that he might indicate in the summer of 1967 that he had decided the time had come to go into retirement That would mean a leadership convention in the Fall of the next year or the Spring of 1968

Four of his cabinet colleagues are aware that Mr Pearson has no intention of carrying on for an other four or five years, have quietly let it be known that "Barbis a willin" They include External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp Trade and Commerce Minister Robert Manes and Defence Minister Paul Hellyer

All four were seriously considering making the trip to Quebec City for the founding convention of the new federal section of the Party Then plans became public knowledge and at a caucus of the Liberal M P's just ahead of the Quebec meeting there was a protest raised The Liberal back benchers suggested it was embarrassing to Mr Pearson and presumptuous of the aspirants to be appearing to out off a possible leadership convention campaign in Quebec

The four members of the cabinet took the flight and stopped plans to make the trip to the French speaking capital Mr Pearson nevertheless made a meeting he addressed when he said he had no intention of stepping down for some time to come. He joked with the press about the noticeable absence of the more ambitious members of the Cabinet

But overlooked in the speculative stories that appeared as a result was the name of Mr Gordon He is planning his return to power within the Liberal party carefully

He has written another book it is to be entitled "The Choice for Canada—Independence or Colonial Status" It will be on the bookstands in May Mr Gordon hopes it will stir up a controversy in the country and particularly within the ranks of the Liberal party over what policy that Party should follow in the years ahead The book presumably will have a strong appeal to the left wing elements within the Liberal party and to nationalists Mr Gordon more than once in recent times has expressed concern to a few of his former colleagues that he is afraid the Liberal party is reverting to its more moderate or middle of the road position

Using his book as a springboard and capitalizing on the debate that is expected to stir up within the Liberal party Mr Gordon will undoubtedly take a lead role in the discussions on policy at the Liberal conference. That conference has been called for October 9th to 12th in Ottawa It is expected to be attended by two thousand delegates from all across Canada

Mr Gordon according to close associates hopes to be in a position to exert a strong influence on the policy discussions in that conference The precipitation of the conference in February within the Liberal party as at Ottawa over the question of whether to lift the six per cent interest ceiling on chartered bank lending.

The former finance minister spoke out at the caucus against any proposal to lift the six per cent limit In this position he had the support of a few groups within the caucus who are worried that if the Party agrees to the removal of the six per cent limit it will be immediately labelled the party of big business Up the Conservatives and the New Democratic Party.

A cabinet committee is reported to be working on a compromise which it hopes to submit to the caucus when the Bank Rate Bill finally reaches there after receiving the report and any recommendations from the Commons committee which the Party hopes to have finished by the end of May. It was one of Mr

Pearson's closest friends and presented his resignation to the Prime Minister on the grounds that he had given the party issues or had advice in persuading Mr Pearson that the time was ripe to hold a federal election There have been suggestions that Mr Gordon was somewhat surprised to find that his offer to resign was taken up by the Prime Minister.

Should Mr Gordon this Fall make a determined drive to re-establish himself in a position of power and influence within the trolled the Ontario wing of the Liberal party it could bring on a crisis that might seriously divide the Party. He managed and controlled the Ontario wing of the Liberals for some time. There are several in that Province who would rally around him But whether he could win support elsewhere in the country is doubtful.

Impressions on a UNESCO tour

Last month Tim Pantry of The Canadian Canadian joined a group of other Canadian weekly news paper representatives, [illegible] by Mrs. Pantry, they toured several European cities where they met and heard reports of UNESCO (United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization) in action. A partial report of Mrs. Pantry's impressions of the tour follows:

As I have just returned from this wonderful trip to Montreal, Paris, Geneva and Rome, will give you the highlights as seen from a "woman's point of view."

First we were introduced to a branch of the U.N. in Montreal called IAO (International Aviation Organization). We met on the 10th floor of IAO edifice on March 7th at 10:00 a.m., and were taken to a conference room. This was a large room, with an immense circular table used for desks with chairs for each one of our group. The desks being equipped with individual headphones for interpretation purposes, we could listen in to speeches, if not in our own language, by pressing our own mother tongue button and receive immediate translations as the speaker spoke on. We were told that we were an "easy group" for we required only two interpreters—French and English. Our group consisted of 24 in all — three French papers from Quebec and their two wives, one leader from UN in Ottawa, and a government agricultural reporter speaking four different languages, our leader, King Gardiner, from the U of A, teaching staff, and representatives of two Montreal papers, two couples from Ontario papers, one Manitoba paper, three papers from Saskatchewan, two papers from British Columbia, one from Fort Nelson, one from Nova Scotia, and Ken and I from Alberta. A real good group.

To tell you a bit about the IAO and what it means and does. They have a meeting once every two years in Montreal, where they draw up the air routes, regulate rules—this I had often wondered about—how it was determined where planes would fly and not run into each other? When you fly in jets it isn't long before you are soaring along at over 500 miles per hour and 30,000-35,000 feet up. This year we could see several jumbo jets along side us in this glorious realm of sunshine, above the clouds.

At this meeting the various countries join together and decide which lanes and routes the various lines will follow (the regulations are very strict). They determine the number of planes to fly similar adjoining courses, the types of loads, the costs and rates, also what each company can pay beneficiaries, etc. All very interesting, and before we realized it, it was 1:00 o'clock, and we went to lunch at the "Queen Elizabeth."

During the luncheon we were briefed on our trip, and given our tickets, labels and tags. We had sent in our money before we left, thus all were bought for the group together. We were now free until 6:00 p.m. when we were to meet at the "Queen Elizabeth" and have our luggage all tagged and ready to be checked through to Paris. We all took off in an airport bus for Dorval in a group. Our flight was two hours late, being via "Air France"—I can tell you a happy group yet, some trying not to think about the two air crashes that had just occurred in Japan. The time went quite quickly, and being in a large group we were photographed. There were also other groups on the same plane, one being a clique of skiers going to ski in the Alps. Their outfits, I must admit, were very smart. I kept wondering how on earth could they carry all their gear, as well as luggage? They did, and they, too, were all enraptured with their plans—singing and laughing. Thus, what a merry send-off, when we at last went through the last gates to board and be on our various ways.

The plane had come in from Chicago. It was a large plane and a very nice one. You are hardly seated before hard candy drops are passed to each on, as you are gliding upwards. I must say the crew are very clever about keeping you occupied while soaring up through the clouds which you seem to do very quickly. There is no smoking allowed during this period, and you are fastened in your seats with seat belts. As soon as you are settled down, sucking your sweets, the hostesses are giving demonstrations on how to don the "Mae Wests", inflate them—also, if you require air masks, where to find and how to use it; next, magazines and papers of your choice are passed around. By this time you are "airborne" and the captain is sending his greetings and telling you of the route he is taking, the cruising speed and altitude the trip is to make. By this time, coffee, milk or tea and biscuits are being served.

After the coffee, you realize you are quite tired, so settle down to doze in the beauty of the sky above the clouds, with the moon and stars shining as you go a-sail off to dreamland—always a thrill for me. We had been out a little over two hours when the light went on and we were quickly told to fasten our seat belts, as it was going to get rough. Music was played and some more coffee was served the hostesses certainly are kept busy and I thank ours their money. It's surprising how quickly they can serve a big crowd like that, for they had a full load on board that

Regional HSA conference slated for Wetaskiwin

Home and School representatives from several points will meet in Wetaskiwin Saturday, April 23rd, for a one-day area convention. Registration starts at 9:30 a.m., and the meeting will conclude before 5:00 p.m.

Plans for the meeting are being arranged by Mrs. Clif Hilgartner of Camrose, with a committee of workers from each of the county areas in the region.

Featured at the day-long program will be a guest speaker discussing the implications of the Dewney Report on the Small High School, while other sessions will deal with revised Home and School structure, new financial bases for the group, and program planning.

Resolutions offered by some of the groups will also be discussed, and if accepted, will be forwarded to the provincial convention in June.

Counties included in the area are Camrose, Wetaskiwin, Leduc, Beaver and Ponoka. Area chairmen, such as Mrs. Hilgartner, have in the past been appointed at the provincial level. However, electors will be held in future to decide these questions, and Mrs. Hilgartner's successor is to be elected at this meeting.

1,427 alcoholics were received into Salvation Army Harbour Light Centres in Canada last year, and 688 were satisfactorily discharged.

Jackpot replaces former Jamboree $25 draw

Members of the Camrose Chamber of Commerce at their meeting April 5th agreed to abandon the $25 draw on each night of this year's edition of the Jaywalkers Jamboree in favor of a new idea which it is hoped will generate more interest.

In a new scheme to be known as "Jaywalkers Jamboree Jackpot", patrons will be able to purchase tickets at the central booth at five cents each, or 25 for $1. These tickets will then be filled out at any number of the Main Street booths and deposited in a container. A number of merchants will be asked to have one prize each in their booths. Then patrons will be able to deposit as many tickets as they wish on the prize or prizes of their choice. There will be a draw in each booth participating starting at 5:00 p.m. on the Saturday night of Jaywalkers Jamboree.

"This will not be a money-making scheme by any means", commented Jamboree Chairman Andy Taschuk. "The prizes will be purchased by the committee from the merchants involved. Prizes will be valued at about $5 each".

night, every seat taken. We soon again settled back to nap again. The next awakening was the sun coming up. This is a most inspiring display to see the sun rise in the heavens. As you are sitting there enchanted with this spectacle, you see another large "bird of the sky" going your way, not too far from you. The breakfast is being served — a full course meal—juice, cereals if you so desire, scrambled eggs and bacon, fancy rolls, toast, jam and coffee. As there was a can of water on the tray and neither Ken nor I drank ours, I decided to take both and put in my purse, we had been warned that we were not to drink the water in France and Italy—we could buy bottles of desiydrated or mineral water.

No sooner the meal was over, we were fastening our seat belts to come in for a landing . . . and "Paris". One thing about travelling in a group, our leader collected our passports, and when an officer from "Air France" met us, he took the passports and had them checked and stamped, so the usual long wait to go through immigration and customs was taken care of. On coming down, the first sign we sighted was a large "Esso" and it had a tiger in the tank—then, the "Orly Hilton". I must say these airports are very well organized—and the long "walks" one gets in Canadian airports. Their's are serving planes from all over the world. We happened to land close to the "in" door, so not much of a walk in the lovely sunshine. We had to wait for our baggage and then get a cart, similar to ones at supermarkets, load our luggage and take it out to an "Air France" bus, which we had all to ourselves. When all was loaded, which took a while, we had our ride into the City of Paris. It was as nice to see green grass and flowers blooming — the forsythea and plum trees were just out—a lovely smile drive. Everything looked so clean — the trees, a species of sycamore, attracted our attention, with no bark, yet a pretty shaped tree—the leaves were just starting to show green. The buildings are of a yellow sandstone which really shows up, with green cedars, green grass, flowers and blue sky—they are built mostly on the same architecture, which lends a pleasing appearance.

There being a mix-up in our hotels, after our leader contacted the Canadian Embassy we were at last delivered to our hotel about 3:30 p.m. You see there is eight hours time change, Edmonton time and Mountain Standard. Our hotel, the "Claridge" on the Champs Elysees, is an old established one, but very nice and comfortable.

When we got dressed we decided to have dinner. We met our friend, Evie Dunning from B.C. and decided to go out and see the sights and eat. Evie has been in Paris several times before, so knew the ropes. The crowds of people out walking, the cars on the streets—this was our introduction to Paris at night. It was a lovely spring night; we walked down the Avenue with the rest of the crowd—the expensive shops along this avenue—as me, I'd to glance in the windows as we went along—What a place! We finally came to this restaurant I said "let's sit out on the sidewalk and eat", but Eric said "No, we don't at night, we go inside". The place was a long one filled — the first floor, by the window, wasn't for us — we went two tiers up — but could easily see the sights below and outside. Eric said "there is class and distinction here". Then, after asking for an English waiter, we ordered. We weren't too keen on the roast, but the rest was nice, quite different to Canadian cooking. We were then broken into the wine list to drink with our meal—the coffee last, we didn't find to our fancy. After this repast we walked for awhile, then turned in for the night.

Mrs. Patrigio's report will continue in next issue.

The Recipe Box

A special occasion warrants a special dinner, and Spring Roast of Lamb is ideal for such days.

Whether it's a family party or whether you plan to entertain company, Dot's recipe, developed by the New Zealand Lamb Information Centre, adds a festive air. Just before serving, the roast platter is garnished with colorful crabapples and fresh mint, watercress or parsley.

It's a gala roast which requires only a minimum of preparation.

Spring Roast of Lamb

6 pound leg of New Zealand Spring Lamb
½ teaspoon dried sweet basil
½ teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup apple jelly
1 jar spiced crab apples

Make several slits in the top fat of lamb; sprinkle with sweet basil and ginger; place, fat side up, on a rack in a shallow open roasting pan. Roast in a pre-heated 325° F. oven. Allow 25 to 30 minutes per pound depending on how well cooked you like lamb. If using a meat thermometer it should register 175° for medium and 180° for well done. Season half way through roasting time. About half an hour before serving, drain crabapples and use to garnish roast platter along with sprigs of fresh mint, watercress or parsley. Makes about 16 servings.

and to instruct the secretary-treasurer accordingly. The secretary-treasurer was instructed to draft a bylaw regulating unsafe and unsightly premises.

Vacated houses without water and sewer services was discussed. It was Council's unanimous decision along with that of the Health Inspector to condemn such dwellings until they are brought up to standard. The secretary-treasurer was instructed to notify the owners of several residences in town of the decision.

Assessment Equalization Board set the figure for 1966 of $1,270,287.00 for the Town of Tofield an increase of $27,220.00 over 1965 equalized assessment. Department of Education foundation requisition for 1966 is set at $32,309.00, increased by $1,323.00 over 1965.

Council approved application from Darlene Dunlop to operate a Beauty Parlor on Lots 3 and 8, Block 18, Plan 3280 E.

BUS SERVICE

The secretary-treasurer reported that Sunburst Bus Lines had been contacted by telephone to inquire as to why the Bus route into Town has been discontinued. The reason given was that the previous agency had been unsatisfactory and other places of business had been approached but no one was interested in the agency. The secretary-treasurer was instructed to ask J. Lahaie to see if he would be interested and, if so to draft a letter to Sunburst Bus Lines requesting that they consider extending the bus route into Tofield.

Cecil Wall informed Council that he was prepared to carry out the Dog Bylaw, which meant the prosecution of anyone who has not purchased a Dog License for their dog. He stated that in some instances he made as many as five calls on dog owners before selling a dog tag.

MAINTENANCE MAN

The question of enough work to merit the hiring of an assistant maintenance man was discussed. Council felt that an assistant was needed, and that Emil Halverson be hired at $310 per month beginning April 1, 1966. Cir. Swift requested that the Public Works Department supply one man for five days when necessary.

Meeting adjourned.

Modern etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. If all the other guests at a dinner table have refused a second helping of some dish, and then you are asked, is it all right to accept?

A. Under those circumstances, it would probably be better if you refused, too. If you were the only one to accept, you might be delaying the serving of the next course—and a well-bred person is always considerate of others.

Q. When a girl is walking along the street with a man, and he speaks to someone whom she doesn't know, should she speak also?

A. She should smile and nod her head. And this likewise holds true for the man should she speak to an acquaintance

Q. What is the really proper order in which the engagement ring and the wedding ring are worn on the third finger, left hand?

A. The wedding ring first, the engagement ring on top of it.

Q. When you have entertained an out-of-town guest and have received a "bread-and-butter" letter from her, is it necessary to reply to this letter?

A. This would be far better than ignoring the letter. Your guest will certainly appreciate that you, too, enjoyed her visit, and that you are looking forward to seeing her again.

Highway 13-14 . . .

Ashley Cooper of Vermilion, and Leeds and Forests Minister Henry Ruste of Wainwright, met with Highways Minister Taylor about a year ago to ask him to once again consider making the road a provincial highway, whether or not it be paved. The minister's reply was to the effect that "you're not asking for pavement now, but I know you'll want it as soon as the road is made a highway", and he went on to say paving of the road could not be considered for some time to come since preference would be given to other areas. He said, too, that the program as at that time would take at least three years to complete.

At that time, however, no definite plans for the paved secondary highways network had been formulated.

"BEAUTY WITHOUT GRACE IS THE HOOK WITHOUT BAIT"

Grace in itself is attractive, but your figure, health, clothes, and personality also benefit from it. If you suffer from poor posture, soon your figure will suffer from it, too. Your muscles cannot take the unnatural strain imposed upon them by awkward movements. Figure problems can be due as much to improper carriage as to improper weight. On the other hand, good carriage helps to prevent figure-faults, and it helps to correct those which are also present. Lack of grace also interferes with the normal functioning of breathing, circulation, and digestion. Therefore, the way you feel is caused by the way you carry yourself. If you slump in your desk at school or at home, your are cramping your lungs, which interferes with proper circulation and breathing. Not only that factor results, but also your energy is lowered, your concentration is poor, your skin will become drab, and your eyes will become dull. Your clothes will look slipshod when you do not look graceful. Poor carriage leaves a negative impression on others, so be graceful, if not beautiful.

BANGLES AND BEADS

No one wears "real" jewellery any more. From Mexico to B'a Yukon, it's "fake" jewelry. Look for it everywhere—in your pand drawer, in the attic, in a pawn shop, in the pocket of your worn-out levis.

If you like long necklaces, you'll love the hollow - the - waist styles. Made from one or many strands of wales or plastic beads, they can be worn in a knot, doubled, or swinging.

Wear rings on your fingers—lots of 'em! Plastic globule rings are the rage now. Buy them in vivid colors to suit your mood. If you feel "way-out", wear them to clash with your outfit. Now entering the scene in rings, are the home-made type These can easily be made in contrasting colors from cleaners, bottons or ribbon.

Not only are fashion - setters wearing simple, eat-going jewellery, but they have been hunting in antique shops and their grandmothers' cedar chests for old-fashioned clunky brooches, pendants, and rings Polish them up. They'll look great!

Fully-grown bottlenose porpoises sometimes weigh more than 800 pounds.
